Youth Sheds Little Light On Bombings

Says It Was 'Stupid' But 'Right' As Well

By JEFF GREER

"It was a stupid thing, I know. But I thought it was right, because it had been done before."

That cryptic explanation was the only light Paul Lohmann, 16-year-old Tamalpais High School sophomore, would shed on the bombing of his school and two bank branches.

BRUCE PAUL LOHMANN
Held for bombings

The arrest of young Lohmann, said by police never to have been in serious trouble before, drew varied reaction from his classmates, including the theory that he was claiming responsibility for something he didn't do in order to gain attention.

Lohmann of 40 Miller Avenue, Sausalito, was booked into Marin County Juvenile Hall yesterday on suspicion of using explosives with intent to injure persons. He was held to appear today in juvenile court on charges of bombing a boys' restroom at the school on Wednesday, the Mill Valley branch of the Bank of America April 23 and the bank's Sausalito branch March 23.

Terzich said he had no reason to believe young Lohmann lied in claiming the bombings.

Terzich said Lohmann denied setting fires at the school Monday afternoon or Wednesday evening. The student also denied any connection with a rash of telephoned bomb threats against all three high schools in the Tamalpais district, the chief said.

One threat shortly before 11 a.m. yesterday caused the closing of Tamalpais High School for the rest of the day.

At a meeting last night with school officials, Terzich advised against future closings in the face of threats, but the officials said each situation would be weighed before any decision on closing.

Another telephoned threat was received before 8 a.m. today, the chief revealed. The school was not evacuated.

School officials held a student assembly this morning to clear up a rash of rumors about the recurring violence and threats.

Terzich credited Lohmann's arrest to "just good, hard, logical police work" in which his men and FBI agents sifted rumors at Tamalpais High School. Some classmates and teachers reported Lohmann showed an unusual interest in reports of any bombing. The student, according to Terzich, was "antiestablishment" and "pesty" in expressing antiwar feelings. But he was also described by Terzich as polite, quiet, and intelligent.

Lohmann at first refused to talk after being picked up yesterday morning at school, Terzich said. The boy and his stepmother, Carolyn, permitted a search of his room in the family's comfortable Sausalito hillside home.

Terzich displayed part of the findings — an assortment of glue, tacks, cans of dog repellent, and several bundles of chalk studded with heavy thumbtacks.

Terzich said no explosives were found in the home, but an investigator indicated that fuses had been. After the search, Lohmann admitted the bombings, Terzich said.

Lohmann said he regretted the slight injury to a student near Wednesday's restroom explosion. Terzich said the youth explained he had not realized the blast would shatter so much glass in adjoining classrooms. Lohmann strongly denied any connection with Weatherman or other radical groups, Terzich said.

The chief said Lohmann was still being questioned about Wednesday night's fire in the Tam High principal's office,

Ferry Terminal Nod To Larkspur

By PAUL E. PETERZELL

A committee of Golden Gate Bridge District directors, ending months of wrangling over where to put the Central Marin ferry terminal, yesterday decided to recommend it go on the Hutchinson Quarry property in Larkspur.

The committee withheld public announcement of its decision, reached in a one-hour closed session, but newsmen quickly learned the decision.

The chairman of the committee, Marin Supervisor Michael Wornum, told newsmen, "Let's say Mr. Wornum is happy about the decision." Wornum has urged the Larkspur site over a competing one in Corte Madera.

The committee's recommendation did not necessarily kill Corte Madera's chances, however, since it still faces action by the full board of directors, probably on May 14.

The committee withheld announcement of its decision for fear of scaring off hoped for federal funds. At the urging of director Ben K. Lerer of San Francisco, the committee directed the district's Washington lobbyist to seek a federal loan or grant for the land purchase, reportedly to cost $1.5 million.

The lobbyist, Richard J. Smart, cautioned the committee that if the district took an option on the ferry terminal site, the government could be precluded from making a loan or grant on the land.

The committee made no decision on whether to seek such federal money, but referred the question to the finance-auditing committee, which will set a special meeting on it sometime next week. Only after that committee decided the question of federal funds was the transportation committee's decision to be announced, Wornum said.

The supervisor indicated that tentative agreement had been reached by the committee on where to put the district's bus maintenance facility, but declined to disclose the selection. Four sites in Corte Madera and San Rafael were under consideration.

The committee met behind closed doors at the request of the district's attorney, Thomas M. Jenkins. He said the closed session was needed so he could report on his negotiations with the property owners.

The full bridge board last month authorized Jenkins to negotiate for the best deal he could get from the two owners of the proposed ferry terminal sites.

No price was disclsed yesterday, but spokesmen for TI Properties, promoters of the quarry property, have said they originally asked $1.5 million for 25 acres. If the district bought more of almost 100 acres available, the price per acre would be reduced, according to spokesmen for the Los Angeles-based corporation.

BULLETIN

An Air Force Recruiting Sergeant from Novato was stabbed to death today by a young man enraged at the military for "sending people to Vietnam."

Killed in the Berkeley recruiting office was Staff Sgt. Rogers D. Mobley, 32, of 1088 San Jose Boulevard.

The attacker, Christopher Cowsar, 21, of Berkeley, was overpowered by two witnesses who rushed to the office when they heard a scuffle.

28th Bank Is Bombed

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—An east Los Angeles supermarket and a Bank of America branch in nearby Montebello were bombed less than an hour apart last night.

The bombings were the third and fourth in the Los Angeles area since late Tuesday and all were suspiciously similar. The bank incident was the 28th of its kind in the last 14 months.

Sheriff's deputies said a small black powder device was thrown onto the roof of a Safeway market shortly after 9 p.m. while the store was closing.

Thousands of brightly colored California wildflowers will herald the first of May at the 13th annual Stinson Beach Wildflower Show this weekend.

The wildflowers will be on display from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. tomorrow and Sunday at the Community Center in Stinson Beach.

PICKETS AT FBI: JURY REINDICTS

'Try Criminal' Signs Carried

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Antiwar protesters picketed the Justice Department and the FBI today carrying placards proclaiming "We Are All POWs" and "Try Criminals Not War Resisters."

About 100 demonstrators were on hand as employes of the government's legal and investigative arms came to work.

There had been some threats of "action" in advance of the demonstration, but the first phase at least was peaceful, with some singing and chanting and distributing leaflets.

About 40 persons sat down in the doorway of the FBI entrance at 9th and Pennsylvania Avenue about 9 a.m., but building guards managed to keep open a narrow passageway so that workers could get through.

Protesters' request for "free access" to the always heavily guarded building was denied and they said they rejected an offer for "group conferences" with selected officials.

At midmorning, building guards closed the massive ornamental bronze doors of the FBI entrance. A few minutes later, two women were arrested on charges of crossing a police line. Both walked quietly to a police van.

On Capitol Hill, Deputy Attorney General Richard Kleindienst briefed a group of Republican senators on plans to cope with protesters' announced plans to disrupt rush hour traffic by blocking key bridges and roads leading to downtown

Kissinger Plot Involves Eight

WASHINGTON (UPI) —A federal grand jury today reindicted eight persons on charges of plotting "antiwar vandalism" intended to culminate in kidnapping of Henry A. Kissinger, President Nixon's national security adviser.

The office of Attorney General John N. Mitchell announced a 10-count indictment by a U.S. District Court grand jury in Harrisburg, Pa., superceding a seven-count indictment returned there Jan. 12.

The new indictment names two additional defendents and drops three previously named as co-conspirators in the controversial case. Three additional counts plus 13 more overt acts were listed.

Named as a defendant in the new indictment as well as the previous one was a former Catholic priest, Rev. Philip Berrigan, 47, now already serving a sentence at a federal prison at Danbury, Conn., for his part in destruction of Selective Service records in Catonsville, Md., in 1968.

It is unusual for a grand jury to issue an indictment superceding a previous one, but today's action was not unexpected because the grand jury continued to take testimony and subpoena witnesses weeks after the original indictment.

The case created a controversy because FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover had disclosed some of the details last Nov. 27 to a Senate subcommittee.

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The government announced today final air quality standards that are likely to force sharp limits on driving in cities and put tight restrictions on emissions by every industrial facility in the nation.

Administrator William E. Ruckelshaus of the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA), which issued the standards, said they must be implemented by July 1, 1975, and would change some aspects of Americans' daily lives.

Rejected Applicant Will Seek Bolinas PUD Recall

By GLORIA EAGAN

A rejected applicant for a seat on the Bolinas Community Public Utility District board vowed last night to lead a recall campaign against members of the five-man board.

After a unanimous vote by directors to appoint retired auditor Fred W. Wade to the seat, William E. Niman, 26, a teacher in the Bolinas-Stinson Beach School District charged members are unresponsive to the public and insensitive to environmental needs.

A petition signed by more than 200 residents backing Niman was presented to directors before they met in closed session to chose between the two applicants for the seat vacated by Albert William Meyer Jr. The term expires in November 1973.

About a dozen Niman supporters packed the small meeting room at the Bolinas Improvement Club and hurled insults at directors, coloring their commentary with four-letter words.

In nominating Wade after the 20-minute closed deliberation, Director Edwin A. Cadagon said the board represents the entire community.

"That's a lie," said a young man wearing a headband and poncho who then walked out the door, but returned prior to adjournment of the eight-minute open session.

"xxxx," he said as he made his exit.

Outside other supporters, unable to squeeze into the tiny room, clapped their hands.

"We came here with petitions representing half the registered voters in Bolinas. How can you say your choice represents the feelings of the community," asked Greg C. Hewlett, 31, a former teacher at Bolinas School.

Red-faced, but holding his temper board chairman Jose A. Silva shot back, "We don't pull sides."

Niman told directors they were passing up a chance to seek a liason between the hip and the straight members of the community. He warned that further polarization will result.

Although Niman said during the meeting he expected "a fight to recall all four of you" he later said he would not know until Monday how many directors he will attempt to have

Nixon Will Not Be Intimidated By Protesters On Indo Policy

WASHINGTON (UPI) —President Nixon said Thursday night he would not be "intimidated" by antiwar demonstrators in Washington but would stick to his policy of attempting to win a lasting peace in Indochina.

In a televised news conference, the President said a more rapid withdrawal from Vietnam advocated by his critics would lead to a "very dangerous situation in the Pacific and would increase the dangers of war in the future." He said demonstrators who break the law will be prosecuted.

Nixon also bid to further improve American relations with communist China, saying "I hope and I expect to visit mainland China ... at some time in my life, in some capacity."

He said he would in a matter of weeks announce a list of nonstrategic goods the United States would be willing to trade with China, but he cautioned it was "premature" to speculate about whether the United States would support Peking's entry into the United Nations. He said he had not made a decision on this issue.

"I would just summarize it this way," Nixon said of the improvement of contact between the United States and China illustrated by the recent visit of a U.S. table tennis team to the mainland. "What we've done is broken the ice. Now we have to test the water to see how deep it is."

When he said he would like to travel to China, Nixon said, he was "referring only to a hope, an expectation."

Referring to antiwar demonstrations in Washington for almost two weeks, Nixon said he wanted to correct an impression from television accounts that "Washington is somewhat in a state of seige."

Fall Decision On Pipeline

WASHINGTON (UPII —Interior Secretary Rogers C.B. Morton says his decision on whether to approve construction of the controversial Alaska oil pipeline will not be made until mid-September.

He also reported, in an appearance Thursday before the Senate Interior subcommittee, that he has urged oil industry officials to take a look at whether the pipeline could be built across Canada instead.

Whatever his decision, Morton added, the issue is far from settled since the matter almost certainly will wind up in the courts once he acts on the requested construction permit.

Remain Hopeful

VIENNA (UPI) — American and Soviet negotiators at the Strategic Arms Limitation Talks (SALT) still have hope of reaching an accord on curbing nuclear arsenals, despite some press reports to the contrary, conference sources said today.

The two delegations gathered today at the Soviet embassy for their 67th round of talks, and the 11th session since the bargaining was moved to this city March 15.

The sources discounted press reports from Washington that the negotiations were bogged down because neither side was willing to soften its position. They said both countries "are very serious about achieving a nuclear limitation treaty."

As evidence, the sources cited the two and one-half-hour meeting Wednesday at the U. S. embassy, the second-longest session since the talks began in Helsinki in November of 1969, and that a second full meeting was being held this week.

Face Starvation

NEW DELHI (UPI)—About four million persons in the area of East Pakistan ravaged by a cyclone and tidal wave last November face starvation because the civil war has halted emergency food distribution, officials from the area said today.

In Paris, where representatives of 11 nations involved in the relief operations were meeting, it was estimated that as many as 30 million to 60 million of East Pakistan's 74 million inhabitants could starve.

In Washington, officials also said the food distribution had been disrupted and urged the government of President Agha Mohammed Yahya Khan to resume shipments immediately.

Officials from the 10,000-square-mile disaster area said the relief work has stopped completely since the Bengalis declared their independence.

Tito Expected To Visit United States

BELGRADE (UPI) — President Tito will visit the United States later this year, a high U.S. administration official said today.

"We in our country are looking forward to President Tito's coming to America later this year," Robert Finch, President Nixon's special adviser, said in a statement to newsmen here.

Signal To Rogers: No Israeli Shift

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

A high government official said today Israel will not soften its conditions for peace in the Middle East despite U.S. urging that it be more flexible in its demands.

Minister without portfolio Israel Galili, a close aide of Prime Minister Golda Meir, said in an interview with the newspaper Yedioth Aharonoth the Israeli position will be presented to U.S. Secretary of State William P. Rogers during his Middle East tour.

"The visit will give us an opportunity to explain to the American secretary of state the problems of the existence of our state," Galili said. "I believe that Mr. Rogers will find in Israel a united nation, strong in the justice of its demands.

"And if there still are hopes in the (U.S.) State Department that it is possible to erode the Israeli position, or to soften it, by compensation or deception it will be made clear to him there is no basis for this hope."

Galili added that "I fear this awareness is necessary to them, the managers of American policy, and it is essential they come to the conclusion that Israel indeed is ready for compromises but these have a limit."

Galili's mention of compensation apparently alluded to military aid from the United States.

The interview coincided with reports that Mrs. Meir had rejected changes Washington wanted made in Israel's plan for reopening the Suez Canal under a partial peace agreement with Egypt.

Rogers, in Ankara, Turkey, on his European-Middle East tour, was telling members of the Central Treaty Organization (CENTO) the United States is determined to keep momentum going in the search for a permanent Middle East peace.

The Department of Agriculture's meat and poultry inspection service has 7,750 employees.

Youth, 18, Charged In Girls' Slayings

SAN JOSE (UPI)—A clean-cut, hard-working college freshman who underwent psychiatric evaluation three years ago is charged with the knife murders of three teen-age girls.

Karl Werner, 18, described as "an all-American type" and "the typical boy next door," was booked Thursday for the murders of Deborah Furlong, 14, and Kathy Snoozy, 15, on Aug. 3, 1969, and the murder of Kathy Bilek, 18, last Easter Sunday.

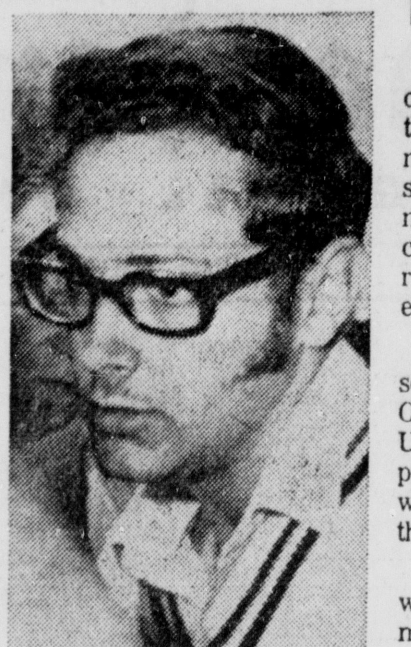
All three victims were slashed to death, Deborah with 200 knife wounds, the Snoozy girl with 100 and Miss Bilek with 50.

Police in Marlboro, Mass., where Werner lived before moving here two years ago, said the youth was arrested there at the age of 15 on a charge of assaulting a woman with a knife. She was not seriously injured and juvenile authorities dropped the charge against Werner and committed him to Westboro State Hospital for 35 days' observation.

Santa Clara County Undersheriff Tom Rosa would not elaborate on the evidence against Werner, a lanky 6-foot-2 freshman at San Jose City College who worked six nights a week at a hamburger stand.

Rosa did say, however, that the youth once attended high school with the two 1969 victims and lived in the same neighborhood where their bodies were found on a sunny hillside a few blocks from their homes. He said Werner was also known to frequent the wooded county park where Miss Bilek's body was discovered by her father April 12.

He said Werner became a suspect a few days after the killing of Miss Bilek, when an unidentified teen-age girl reported that she was frightened in the same park just two days before the murder by a young man matching Werner's description who became angry when she refused to go for a hike with him. The undersheriff described the bespectacled suspect as "an all-American type."



KARL WERNER
'All-American type'

Werner was arrested Thursday at his apartment here, where he has lived since his parents moved back to Massachusetts, and escorted by deputies to the scenes of the murders before being jailed.

"I wouldn't suspect him of anything," said Jim Van Cleve, manager of the hamburger stand where Werner worked seven hours a night, six nights a week. "He was a hard-working man, quiet."

Eve Schulman, 19, a classmate who rode to the campus with Werner each day, called him "the typical boy next door."

She said Werner, a high-ranking student in mathematics and physics who has been constructing a computer as a class project, is "really smart, really neat."

Rogers Asks 'Impetus' For Mideast

ANKARA (UPI)—Secretary of State William P. Rogers said today a strong impetus was needed for a Middle East peace settlement but that an agreement to reopen the Suez Canal could help reduce the danger of renewed fighting while peace efforts continue.

Rogers told the opening session of the Central Treaty Organization (CENTO) that the United States is "prepared to play a role if Egypt and Israel want us to help" bring peace to the Middle East.

Rogers did not say exactly what role the United States might play but diplomatic sources say he probably meant that of an observer capacity toward achieving reopening of the canal, closed since the 1967 war.

"There is a need for a strong impetus toward a resolution," he said.

"An interim agreement to open the Suez, which both the United Arab Republic and Israel are in principle willing to consider, could reduce danger of renewed hostilities," he said.

He emphasized again that the United States is supporting the efforts to U.N. mediator Gunnar V. Jarring for a lasting settlement.

The secretary said he did not expect his forthcoming trip to Egypt and Israel to "produce any dramatic results."

"My efforts will be devoted to encouraging movement on the basis of the possible factors at work in the Middle East today—the factors of organization already made, of logic and enduring self-interest," Rogers said.

U.S. Planes Attack Near Laos Border

SAIGON (UPI)—Waves of B52 bombers struck near the borders of Laos today to prevent the North Vietnamese from attacking the rear of the slow-moving South Vietnamese push into the A Shau Valley. Other B52s hit the Central Highlands and ranged into Cambodia and over the Ho Chi Minh Trail.

The U.S. command said the B52s had dropped more than 3,400 tons of bombs in the A Shau area since April 14 both in direct support of the A Shau operation known as Lam Son 720 and against Communist positions near the Laos border behind the operation.

The A Shau Valley is a 35-mile-long corridor south of the parallel to the Demilitarized Zone and runs from the Hue area to the border of Laos. It has long been a Communist sanctuary despite costly Allied drives into the area in past years. In the new clearing operation which began two weeks ago the approach has been cautious and there has been no heavy ground contact.

The South Vietnamese so far have moved along the northern fringes of the valley which is a dense jungle nestled between 10,000-foot mountain peaks. Maj. Gen. Pham Van Phu, commander of the ARVN 1st Infantry Division conducting the sweep, said today at his Lang Vang headquarters his troops may cross into Laos again "if I think it advisable."

Canadians Will Get Back Civil Liberties

OTTAWA (UPI)—Canadians will have all their civil liberties again at midnight tonight.

The Canadian government announced Thursday it was letting the anti-terrorist control enacted Oct. 16 during Quebec's "kidnap crisis" expire on schedule at midnight. The public order act gave police unprecedented peacetime powers of search, arrest and detention.

Justice Minister John Turner told the House of Commons Thursday that "The government has decided not to seek the extension of the public order act." However, Turner said he would ask a joint committee of the Commons and the Senate to study "the kind of legislation required to seal with emergencies" such as occurred last October.

Turner told newsmen that governments needed special tools to deal with growing political violence in North America. "We believe that there are threats across this country of violence, that the new phenomenum of a confrontation society is part of North America," he said.

The government proclaimed last October there was an "apprehended insurrection" in Quebec as a result of the kidnapping activities of the radical separatist Quebec Liberation Front (FLQ).

Hawaii has imported about everything, including such familiar symbols as the ukelele, says National Geographic.

WIRE NEWS BRIEFS From Everywhere

105 Rain Deaths

SALVADOR, BRAZIL (UPI) —Salvador, a city of 600,000 trapped between the mountains and the sea, dug up its 104th victim from the rubble left by three days of rain, flood and landslides.

Mayor Cleristan Andrade said the number of dead may reach 150 today if the Atlantic tides return victims swept out to sea by the rain-swollen Paraguacu River and salvage workers uncover more bodies.

Andrade estimated the number of people left homeless at 7,000.

Lands Commission Denies Oil Surveys

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —The state Lands Commission, heeding the appeals of conservationists and legislators, yesterday refused oil companies permission to conduct future geophysical explorations along the scenic California coastline.

The extension of state geophysical survey permits was sought by nine major oil companies and their approval was recommended by the commission's staff.

But on a split 2-1 vote, the commission denied a six-month extension of the companies' existing geophysical survey permits.

Lt. Gov. Ed Reinecke and state Finance Director Verne Orr voted for the denial. State Controller Houston I. Flournoy, the chairman, voted against it.

Orr expressed concern about California denying itself sources of energy, but nevertheless made the motion to reject the permits.

"I feel that the sentiment of the people of California is pretty firmly against further drilling," said Orr, who serves at Gov. Ronald Reagan's pleasure.

Opponents of the permits had argued that although geophysical exploration for oil is relatively safe it inevitably would lead to more actual oil and gas drilling offshore.

Extension of the permits until next January was sought by Phillips, Humble Oil, Texaco, Union, Continental, Exploration Services, Inc., Marathon, Atlantic Richfield and Shell oil companies.

Opponents testifying against the exploration permits included Sens. George Moscone, D-San Francisco; Peter Behr, R-Tiburon, and Arlen Gregorio, D-San Mateo, and Assemblyman Bob Wood, R-Greenfield.

The only industry proponent was a representative of Humble who said to deny the permits would be an "unreasonable" act.

The nine permits represent all those issued by the state.

Flournoy said he did not agree with the argument that issuance of the survey permits automatically would lead to new offshore drilling.

Although he voted for the denial, Reinecke—a civil engineer—expressed concern that "we'd be pretty well shutting down the operations of the oil industry."

The commission's executive officers, F. J. Hortig, replied that a denial would "severely hamper" the industry. He said geophysical surveys are a "tremendously valuable" tool in finding oil deposits. Hortig called California an "oil and gas deficient state" and warned that if the current offshore development program is terminated far greater quantities of oil and gas will have to be imported.

Hortig told the commission this would subject California "to greater hazards of oil-spill destruction from accidents involving the super oil tankers."

Muffle Trucks? There's A Way

WASHINGTON (UPI) —No community should have to put up with the noise pollution it gets from trucks, according to Paul S. Veneklasen.

Veneklasen is a Santa Monica, Calif., scientist, who says trucks are the worst offenders among all the noise makers that plague us—worse than jet aircraft because they inflict distress on a broader scale and assail the eardrums of many more people.

But for 15 years, Veneklasen said at a meeting here of the Acoustical Society of America, mufflers have existed which could cut truck noise 75 per cent. They aren't being used.

The theme of the acoustical society's meeting was "noise pollution and noise control." Several speakers described in technical detail how it is possible to erect relatively quiet and "serene" dwellings or high-rise hotels or office buildings in noisy areas, even on top of railroad freight yards.

How do you build grand centers for comfortable living or working in the noisiest parts of town? You do it, according to W.E. The same and other techniques can be used to protect community dwellers from the shattering effect of truck noise. The need to do this gravels Veneklasen.

According to Veneklasen, truckers have resisted mufflers because they think wrongly that mufflers cut engine efficiency and increase fuel costs. Truck buyers have been known to remove mufflers or destroy them.

Veneklasen counsels patience about aircraft jet noise, a much harder problem to solve than truck noise. He predicted it will be solved.

Lands Commission Denies Oil Surveys

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —The state Lands Commission, heeding the appeals of conservationists and legislators, yesterday refused oil companies permission to conduct future geophysical explorations along the scenic California coastline.

The extension of state geophysical survey permits was sought by nine major oil companies and their approval was recommended by the commission's staff.

But on a split 2-1 vote, the commission denied a six-month extension of the companies' existing geophysical survey permits.

Lt. Gov. Ed Reinecke and state Finance Director Verne Orr voted for the denial. State Controller Houston I. Flournoy, the chairman, voted against it.

Orr expressed concern about California denying itself sources of energy, but nevertheless made the motion to reject the permits.

"I feel that the sentiment of the people of California is pretty firmly against further drilling," said Orr, who serves at Gov. Ronald Reagan's pleasure.

Opponents of the permits had argued that although geophysical exploration for oil is relatively safe it inevitably would lead to more actual oil and gas drilling offshore.

Extension of the permits until next January was sought by Phillips, Humble Oil, Texaco, Union, Continental, Exploration Services, Inc., Marathon, Atlantic Richfield and Shell oil companies.

Opponents testifying against the exploration permits included Sens. George Moscone, D-San Francisco; Peter Behr, R-Tiburon, and Arlen Gregorio, D-San Mateo, and Assemblyman Bob Wood, R-Greenfield.

The only industry proponent was a representative of Humble who said to deny the permits would be an "unreasonable" act.

The nine permits represent all those issued by the state.

Flournoy said he did not agree with the argument that issuance of the survey permits automatically would lead to new offshore drilling.

Although he voted for the denial, Reinecke—a civil engineer—expressed concern that "we'd be pretty well shutting down the operations of the oil industry."

The commission's executive officers, F. J. Hortig, replied that a denial would "severely hamper" the industry. He said geophysical surveys are a "tremendously valuable" tool in finding oil deposits. Hortig called California an "oil and gas deficient state" and warned that if the current offshore development program is terminated far greater quantities of oil and gas will have to be imported.

Hortig told the commission this would subject California "to greater hazards of oil-spill destruction from accidents involving the super oil tankers."

Muffle Trucks? There's A Way

WASHINGTON (UPI) —No community should have to put up with the noise pollution it gets from trucks, according to Paul S. Veneklasen.

Veneklasen is a Santa Monica, Calif., scientist, who says trucks are the worst offenders among all the noise makers that plague us—worse than jet aircraft because they inflict distress on a broader scale and assail the eardrums of many more people.

But for 15 years, Veneklasen said at a meeting here of the Acoustical Society of America, mufflers have existed which could cut truck noise 75 per cent. They aren't being used.

The theme of the acoustical society's meeting was "noise pollution and noise control." Several speakers described in technical detail how it is possible to erect relatively quiet and "serene" dwellings or high-rise hotels or office buildings in noisy areas, even on top of railroad freight yards.

How do you build grand centers for comfortable living or working in the noisiest parts of town? You do it, according to W.E. Blazier Jr., a San Francisco acoustical engineer, by erecting buildings that "float on rubber." You insert thousands of two-inch rubber pads between the base of columns and the foundations to insulate against noise.

Kenward S. Oliphant, a San Francisco acoustician, described the myriad ways used to make inhabitable an office building erected 150 feet from the northern edge of the main runway of San Francisco International Airport. The result was that 92 per cent of the jet uproar just outside never penetrated to the inside.

The same and other techniques can be used to protect community dwellers from the shattering effect of truck noise. The need to do this gravels Veneklasen.

Instead of going to the expense of protecting communities from truck noise, why not take the cheaper way of making truckers use the mufflers long since available to them?

According to Veneklasen, truckers have resisted mufflers because they think wrongly that mufflers cut engine efficiency and increase fuel costs. Truck buyers have been known to remove mufflers or destroy them.

Veneklasen counsels patience about aircraft jet noise, a much harder problem to solve than truck noise. He predicted it will be solved.

But, he said, it might take 10 more years.

HIDES FACE — Bruce Paul Lohmann, 16-year-old Tamalpais High School student, hides his head with his jacket as Mill Valley Police Chief Dan Terzich (right) escorts him to Marin County Juvenile Hall. Lohmann was arrested yesterday after police said he admitted to bombing his school and two bank buildings.

and the Monday afternoon blaze in which duplicator fluid was spilled on the floor of the English department office and ignited. The fire, put out by students and school staff, is still under investigation by Mill Valley firemen. No report has been written.

Although only a sophomore, Lohmann was enrolled in a chemistry class usually limited to upperclassmen. Classmates recalled that he was sometimes "loud" in class, questioned the instructor about explosives and was believed to have exploded firecrackers and cherry bombs on campus.

"But I don't believe he did the bombings," two students agreed. "He was just being loud."

Several students said Lohmann "always was excited and talked a lot the next day" about any bombing.

Robert Reiter, one of the chemistry students, said classmates used to tease Lohmann about being responsible for the bombings, which he would deny.

As for the bombings for which Lohmann was arrested, "I think he admitted them just to get attention," Reiter said.

Lohmann's father, Paul, is a free-lance motion picture photographer. Although in some conversation he described his son as a quiet "loner" opposed to the war, the father today declined to talk to the press on advice from his attorney.

Neighbors described the student as likable, saying he had been a dependable baby-sitter for them.

Terzich called the tales unfounded. He said young Lohmann's only previous brush with the law had been in firing a flare gun near his home. But Sausalito police Chief James D. Wright said his files showed no such incident, only a traffic violation for the student.

At an assembly in the Tamalpais High School amphitheater today, Principal Raymond J. Bell thanked students for coming forward with information that led to Lohmann's arrest.

Bell reassured seniors that time lost through recent school evacuations would not affect their school credits or graduation.

operations in 1973.

In other business, the committee postponed action on a proposed six-month test of a 40-mile-an-hour "surface effect craft" between Sausalito and San Francisco. It was manufactured in England, thus would require a waiver from the Department of Defense to operate in American waters.

Gen. Mgr. Dale W. Luehring was authorized to seek the waiver. He noted that the department official who handles the waivers was an old friend of his from the Air Force.

Director Stephan C. Leonoudakis of San Francisco, who proposed the test last month, said the 60-passenger vessel could be available by July 1. He previously estimated that it would cost the district $6,500 a month to operate it during the test, and that 50-cent fares would more than offset the cost.

The district's transit manager, Donald White, told the committee the cost would be much higher — $16,888 a month. Even if 75 per cent of the seats were filled on every trip, he said, a 50-cent fare would raise only $13,500 a month, well below the cost.

If the fare were $1, White said, the monthly revenue would be $18,000 if half the seats were filled.

A spokesman for the manufacturer, noting fears of Sausalito officials that the vessel would be as noisy as similar ones operated on the bay by the Coast Guard, said it was much quieter because its propellers were underwater, whereas the Coast Guard vessels use noisy aircraft-type propellers.

Rudolph V. Alosio, vice president of Transportation Technology Inc., manufacturer of the new vessel, told the Independent-Journal he hoped the test would lead to district purchase of large-scale vessels his firm is building to carry more than 300 passengers.

In other business, the rules and policy committee narrowed to about 12 the number of candidates for the new position of ferry transit manager. More than 40 applied for the position, to pay $26,500 a year, including several military officers.

The committee soon will interview finalists for the new job.

Weather In April A Bit Colder

Marinites the past few days have been complaining about the cold, but this month's temperatures in Marin are not as unusually low as they seem when compared with past April readings, the U.S. Weather Bureau said yesterday.

Average high temperature for the first 28 days of the month stands at 67 degrees with an average low of 46.7, the bureau said.

A year ago the mercury averaged 68.2 degrees for a high and 44.2 for a low.

In 1968, Marin had one of its highest averages with a high of 74.5 degrees and a low of 46.7.

However, in 1967, Marin recorded its lowest April averages in history with a high of 59.5 degrees and a low of 42.2.

"It is a little cooler than usual," the bureau said, "but we're near last year's average."

The highest temperature recorded this month was on April 4 when the thermometer peaked at 81 degrees.

In really chilly 1967, the highest temperature recorded was 68 degrees.

Auto Is Looted

Personal possessions valued at $350 were stolen from an auto owned by Richard L. Kozlenko of 1739 Bridgeway, Sausalito, while the car was parked at Samuel P. Taylor State Park on Sir Francis Drake Boulevard last Saturday, Marin County Sheriff's office reported yesterday.

Washington Monday and Tuesday.

After the closed session, Kleindienst told a reporter that the threat of demonstrators to shut down the government by this tactic was "just a lot of hot air."

He said he advised the senators that "at worst this is going to be nothing more than an irritant."

Washington Police Chief Jerry Wilson also briefed the Senate group and commented: "Our advice to people is not to be intimidated by a bunch of radical kids."

President Nixon served notice at a news conference Thursday night that lawbreakers among the demonstrators "will be prosecuted to the full extent of the law."

Eyeing television cameras, Nixon addressed himself beyond the newsmen at the White House to the public, saying "some of the people on television may have gotten the impression ... that Washington is somewhat in a state of siege." He then declared:

"Well, just let me make one thing very clear: the Congress is not intimidated; the President is not intimidated; this government is going to go forward.

"It doesn't mean that we are not going to listen to those who come peacefully, but those who come and break the law will be prosecuted to the full extent of the law."

He stressed confidence that his policies—not the war protesters'—was the proper way to disengage the United States from Indochina, from the standpoint of gaining freedom of American prisoners of war and leaving South Vietnam capable of defending itself.

He said he felt "the decisions I make now ... are in their (protesters') best interest and in the best interest of their children."

Those decisions, he said later, included continued refusal to set publicly a date for total withdrawal of U.S. forces as demonstrators have demanded.

Nearly 225 arrests took place each of the past two days during demonstrations at the draft headquarters and the Department of Health, Education and Welfare. All but a handful were reported this morning to have been released from jail after posting collateral, usually $10.

The terms of directors Cadagon and Silva expire in November.

"We now have a board composed of three appointees who are going to spend $7 million," Hewlett said, referring to cost of a planned Bolinas-Stinson sewage treatment operation due for completion in September, 1972. Estimates of the cost vary. Other appointees serving the district are Cadagon and Clem C. Slater.

Niman today said he has begun gathering names of recall supporters. The signed petitions first go to district directors then to the Marin County Board of Supervisors, the teacher explained, ten per cent of the 569 registered voters — 57 names — are needed to initiate a recall election.

The challengers, some members of the Bolinas Future Study Center, a group brought together by the January oil slick crisis, dispute an ocean outfall method for dumping sewage. Niman contends that instead of carrying effluent to the ocean via a 2,800-foot long stainless steel pipe, it should be held on the land, treated and recycled.

Director Sherman R. Smith said the pipe would be located two miles north of Agate Beach. A public hearing for opinions on the sewage system goes before supervisors in June.

Director Smith said Wade, a longtime employee of General Cables Corp. of San Francisco who managed a subsidiary branch of the firm, was selected because of his work experience. Wade did not attend the meeting.

Six Drivers Sentenced On Drinking

Six persons have been sentenced by Judge Peter Allen Smith of Marin Municipal Court for drunken driving.

Sentenced Monday were:

Donald Edwin Maki, 20, of Pacifica, arrested April 22 on Highway 101, who was placed on probation for one year and fined $175.

Walter M. Kirkness, 21, of no known address, arrested April 20 on Highway 101, who was placed on probation for one year and fined $150.

Sentenced Tuesday were:

James Gilbert Smith, 46, of Oakland, arrested Feb. 14 in San Rafael, who was placed on probation for one year and fined $250.

Lloyd Raymond Richards, 72, of 50 Idlewood Road, Kentfield, arrested Nov. 19 on Highway 101, who was placed on probation for one year and fined $250.

Ralph Leo Bartlett, 42, of 4 Hammondale Court, San Rafael, arrested May 18 in San Anselmo, who was placed on probation for one year and fined $200.

Theodore Moreno, 37, of San Pablo, arrested April 24 in San Rafael, who was placed on probation for one year and fined $200.

NIXON

President is not intimidated. This government is going to go forward."

But he said he did "not want to leave the impression that those who came to demonstrate were not listened to."

Nixon repeated that he would not set a definite date for the withdrawal of all Ameican forces from South Vietnam. He said it would have the effect of saying to the North Vietnamese, " we quit, regardless of what you do."

The setting of a definite date, Nixon said, would destroy any incentive the other side might have to negotiate and would destroy the American bargaining position on prisoners of war.

"Therefore, the setting of a date is not something that's in our interest; it's only in the enemy's interest," Nixon said.

To get its POWS back, Nixon said, the United States will keep a residual force in Vietnam "no matter how long it takes." He repeated that the other condition for a total U.S. withdrawal is the ability of the South Vietnamese regime to defend itself. Nixon also:

—Said he intervened in the case of Lt. William L. Calley because there was "great concern" across the country. He said his action announcing he would have the final review of the officer's conviction of murdering civilians at My Lai had "cooled down" the public outcry.

—Promised his administration would comply with the Supreme Court decision that bussing and other means would be used to eliminate segregation in southern schools.

—Asked if he would think about naming a court of inquiry to see who got the United States into the Indochina war, said he was "not going to cast the blame for the war in Vietnam on either of my predecessors."

OBITUARIES

ELIZABETH HUENERBEIN

Elizabeth J. Huenerbein, 73, of Petaluma, was pronounced dead at a local hospital yesterday after collapsing at her home at 1286 Sunny Slope Road.

The Sonoma County Coroner's Office was conducting a routine investigation into the cause of death.

Born in Germany, Mrs. Huenerbein, who was divorced, came to the U.S. 15 years ago, settling in San Francisco. She had lived in Petaluma more than five years.

Survivors are two daughters, Kathy Allen of Petaluma and Johanna Novakowitsch of Germany, and two grandchildren.

Funeral will be Monday at 11 a.m. at the Parent Mortuary, Petaluma. Burial will be in Cypress Memorial Park.

AIR

closing of some sections of these cities to auto traffic at certain hours," Ruckelshaus said.

The standards establish limits for six major air pollutants—sulphur oxides, particulate matter, carbon monoxide, photochemical oxidants, nitrogen oxides and hydrocarbons.

Ruckelshaus said the standards for sulphur oxides and particulates would force massive changes in fuels used by electric generating plants and other industries, with a possibility the switch might force "some increase in electric bills."

High sulphur coal would be largely ruled out in some cities, he said.

For example, he said, "We estimate that to bring air pollution levels down to the standard for particulates in New York will require a 300 per cent increase in natural gas usage in the city."

Such a change, he conceded, would severely tax already limited natural gas supplies and would require significant federal action on fuel policy.

The 1970 Clean Air Act required the EPA to work out antipollution standards and the timetable announced by Ruckelshaus.

Each state must submit to EPA by next Jan. 1 detailed plans for implementing the standards, including emission limits for every "stationary source" of pollution-meaning industrial facilities.

EPA must approve or reject those plans by next May 1. By July 1, 1972, all implementation plans must be complete, and EPA will set them for any recalcitrant states.

The rules would put industries and city traffic authorities on a schedule ending with complete compliance by July 1, 1975.

States, cities and industries could appeal in court, Ruckelshaus said, but only on grounds that the standards failed to meet the public health strictures laid down in the Clean Air Act.

Although only a sophomore, Lohmann was enrolled in a chemistry class usually limited to upperclassmen. Classmates recalled that he was sometimes "loud" in class, questioned the instructor about explosives and was believed to have exploded firecrackers and cherry bombs on campus.

"But I don't believe he did the bombings," two students agreed. "He was just being loud."

Several students said Lohmann "always was excited and talked a lot the next day" about any bombing.

Robert Reiter, one of the chemistry students, said classmates used to tease Lohmann about being responsible for the bombings, which he would deny.

As for the bombings for which Lohmann was arrested, "I think he admitted them just to get attention," Reiter said.

Lohmann's father, Paul, is a free-lance motion picture photographer. Although in some conversation he described his son as a quiet "loner" opposed to the war, the father today declined to talk to the press on advice from his attorney.

Neighbors described the student as likable, saying he had been a dependable baby-sitter for them.

Terzich called the tales unfounded. He said young Lohmann's only previous brush with the law had been in firing a flare gun near his home. But Sausalito police Chief James D. Wright said his files showed no such incident, only a traffic violation for the student.

At an assembly in the Tamalpais High School amphitheater today, Principal Raymond J. Bell thanked students for coming forward with information that led to Lohmann's arrest.

Bell reassured seniors that time lost through recent school evacuations would not affect their school credits or graduation.

In other business, the committee postponed action on a proposed six-month test of a 40-mile-an-hour "surface effect craft" between Sausalito and San Francisco. It was manufactured in England, thus would require a waiver from the Department of Defense to operate in American waters.

Gen. Mgr. Dale W. Luehring was authorized to seek the waiver. He noted that the department official who handles the waivers was an old friend of his from the Air Force.

Director Stephan C. Leonoudakis of San Francisco, who proposed the test last month, said the 60-passenger vessel could be available by July 1. He previously estimated that it would cost the district $6,500 a month to operate it during the test, and that 50-cent fares would more than offset the cost.

The district's transit manager, Donald White, told the committee the cost would be much higher — $16,888 a month. Even if 75 per cent of the seats were filled on every trip, he said, a 50-cent fare would raise only $13,500 a month, well below the cost.

If the fare were $1, White said, the monthly revenue would be $18,000 if half the seats were filled.

A spokesman for the manufacturer, noting fears of Sausalito officials that the vessel would be as noisy as similar ones operated on the bay by the Coast Guard, said it was much quieter because its propellers were underwater, whereas the Coast Guard vessels use noisy aircraft-type propellers.

Rudolph V. Alosio, vice president of Transportation Technology Inc., manufacturer of the new vessel, told the Independent-Journal he hoped the test would lead to district purchase of large-scale vessels his firm is building to carry more than 300 passengers.

In other business, the rules and policy committee narrowed to about 12 the number of candidates for the new position of ferry transit manager. More than 40 applied for the position, to pay $26,500 a year, including several military officers.

The committee soon will interview finalists for the new job.

Weather In April A Bit Colder

Marinites the past few days have been complaining about the cold, but this month's temperatures in Marin are not as unusually low as they seem when compared with past April readings, the U.S. Weather Bureau said yesterday.

Average high temperature for the first 28 days of the month stands at 67 degrees with an average low of 46.7, the bureau said.

A year ago the mercury averaged 68.2 degrees for a high and 44.2 for a low.

In 1968, Marin had one of its highest averages with a high of 74.5 degrees and a low of 46.7.

However, in 1967, Marin recorded its lowest April averages in history with a high of 59.5 degrees and a low of 42.2.

"It is a little cooler than usual," the bureau said, "but we're near last year's average."

The highest temperature recorded this month was on April 4 when the thermometer peaked at 81 degrees.

In really chilly 1967, the highest temperature recorded was 68 degrees.

Auto Is Looted

Personal possessions valued at $350 were stolen from an auto owned by Richard L. Kozlenko of 1739 Bridgeway, Sausalito, while the car was parked at Samuel P. Taylor State Park on Sir Francis Drake Boulevard last Saturday, Marin County Sheriff's office reported yesterday.

Washington Monday and Tuesday.

After the closed session, Kleindienst told a reporter that the threat of demonstrators to shut down the government by this tactic was "just a lot of hot air."

He said he advised the senators that "at worst this is going to be nothing more than an irritant."

Washington Police Chief Jerry Wilson also briefed the Senate group and commented: "Our advice to people is not to be intimidated by a bunch of radical kids."

President Nixon served notice at a news conference Thursday night that lawbreakers among the demonstrators "will be prosecuted to the full extent of the law."

Eyeing television cameras, Nixon addressed himself beyond the newsmen at the White House to the public, saying "some of the people on television may have gotten the impression ... that Washington is somewhat in a state of siege." He then declared:

"Well, just let me make one thing very clear: the Congress is not intimidated; the President is not intimidated; this government is going to go forward.

"It doesn't mean that we are not going to listen to those who come peacefully, but those who come and break the law will be prosecuted to the full extent of the law."

He stressed confidence that his policies—not the war protesters'—was the proper way to disengage the United States from Indochina, from the standpoint of gaining freedom of American prisoners of war and leaving South Vietnam capable of defending itself.

He said he felt "the decisions I make now ... are in their (protesters') best interest and in the best interest of their children."

Those decisions, he said later, included continued refusal to set publicly a date for total withdrawal of U.S. forces as demonstrators have demanded.

Nearly 225 arrests took place each of the past two days during demonstrations at the draft headquarters and the Department of Health, Education and Welfare. All but a handful were reported this morning to have been released from jail after posting collateral, usually $10.

removed by special election.

The terms of directors Cadagon and Silva expire in November.

"We now have a board composed of three appointees who are going to spend $7 million," Hewlett said, referring to cost of a planned Bolinas-Stinson sewage treatment operation due for completion in September, 1972. Estimates of the cost vary. Other appointees serving the district are Cadagon and Clem C. Slater.

Niman today said he has begun gathering names of recall supporters. The signed petitions first go to district directors then to the Marin County Board of Supervisors, the teacher explained, ten per cent of the 569 registered voters — 57 names — are needed to initiate a recall election.

The challengers, some members of the Bolinas Future Study Center, a group brought together by the January oil slick crisis, dispute an ocean outfall method for dumping sewage. Niman contends that instead of carrying effluent to the ocean via a 2,800-foot long stainless steel pipe, it should be held on the land, treated and recycled.

Director Sherman R. Smith said the pipe would be located two miles north of Agate Beach. A public hearing for opinions on the sewage system goes before supervisors in June.

Director Smith said Wade, a longtime employee of General Cables Corp. of San Francisco who managed a subsidiary branch of the firm, was selected because of his work experience. Wade did not attend the meeting.

Six Drivers Sentenced On Drinking

Six persons have been sentenced by Judge Peter Allen Smith of Marin Municipal Court for drunken driving.

Sentenced Monday were:

Donald Edwin Maki, 20, of Pacifica, arrested April 22 on Highway 101, who was placed on probation for one year and fined $175.

Walter M. Kirkness, 21, of no known address, arrested April 20 on Highway 101, who was placed on probation for one year and fined $150.

Sentenced Tuesday were:

James Gilbert Smith, 46, of Oakland, arrested Feb. 14 in San Rafael, who was placed on probation for one year and fined $250.

Lloyd Raymond Richards, 72, of 50 Idlewood Road, Kentfield, arrested Nov. 19 on Highway 101, who was placed on probation for one year and fined $250.

Ralph Leo Bartlett, 42, of 4 Hammondale Court, San Rafael, arrested May 18 in San Anselmo, who was placed on probation for one year and fined $200.

Theodore Moreno, 37, of San Pablo, arrested April 24 in San Rafael, who was placed on probation for one year and fined $200.

NIXON

President is not intimidated. This government is going to go forward."

But he said he did "not want to leave the impression that those who came to demonstrate were not listened to."

Nixon repeated that he would not set a definite date for the withdrawal of all Ameican forces from South Vietnam. He said it would have the effect of saying to the North Vietnamese, " we quit, regardless of what you do."

The setting of a definite date, Nixon said, would destroy any incentive the other side might have to negotiate and would destroy the American bargaining position on prisoners of war.

"Therefore, the setting of a date is not something that's in our interest; it's only in the enemy's interest," Nixon said.

To get its POWS back, Nixon said, the United States will keep a residual force in Vietnam "no matter how long it takes." He repeated that the other condition for a total U.S. withdrawal is the ability of the South Vietnamese regime to defend itself. Nixon also:

—Said he intervened in the case of Lt. William L. Calley because there was "great concern" across the country. He said his action announcing he would have the final review of the officer's conviction of murdering civilians at My Lai had "cooled down" the public outcry.

—Promised his administration would comply with the Supreme Court decision that bussing and other means would be used to eliminate segregation in southern schools.

—Asked if he would think about naming a court of inquiry to see who got the United States into the Indochina war, said he was "not going to cast the blame for the war in Vietnam on either of my predecessors."

closing of some sections of these cities to auto traffic at certain hours," Ruckelshaus said.

The standards establish limits for six major air pollutants—sulphur oxides, particulate matter, carbon monoxide, photochemical oxidants, nitrogen oxides and hydrocarbons.

Ruckelshaus said the standards for sulphur oxides and particulates would force massive changes in fuels used by electric generating plants and other industries, with a possibility the switch might force "some increase in electric bills."

High sulphur coal would be largely ruled out in some cities, he said.

For example, he said, "We estimate that to bring air pollution levels down to the standard for particulates in New York will require a 300 per cent increase in natural gas usage in the city."

Such a change, he conceded, would severely tax already limited natural gas supplies and would require significant federal action on fuel policy.

The 1970 Clean Air Act required the EPA to work out antipollution standards and the timetable announced by Ruckelshaus.

Each state must submit to EPA by next Jan. 1 detailed plans for implementing the standards, including emission limits for every "stationary source" of pollution-meaning industrial facilities.

EPA must approve or reject those plans by next May 1. By July 1, 1972, all implementation plans must be complete, and EPA will set them for any recalcitrant states.

The rules would put industries and city traffic authorities on a schedule ending with complete compliance by July 1, 1975.

States, cities and industries could appeal in court, Ruckelshaus said, but only on grounds that the standards failed to meet the public health strictures laid down in the Clean Air Act.

Marin May Vote On South Span

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Residents of six San Francisco Bay counties, including Marin, would have a chance to vote on the proposed Southern Crossing bridge under terms of a bill backed by Gov. Ronald Reagan and approved by the Assembly Transportation Committee.

The committee Thursday approved the bill by Assemblyman Robert W. Crown, D-Alameda, and sent it to the floor on a split voice vote.

It was opposed by Assemblyman John F. Foran, D-San Francisco, and Peter F. Schabarum, R-Covina.

The measure places the question of whether to construct the bridge on the June 1972 ballot.

Voters in San Francisco, Alameda, Contra Costa, Marin, San Mateo and Santa Clara Counties would get to vote on the plan.

The ballot question would read, "Shall the California Toll Bridge Authority be permitted to construct the Southern Crossing Bridge without further specific approval by the California legislature?"

He said Marin County was included because commuters could be affected by possible toll increases on the Golden Gate, San Rafael and Bay Bridges.

Santa Clara was added because the BART system eventually may extend into the county.

Big Money Sewage Plan To Be Given

I-J Special Report

HAYWARD — A plan requiring $847 million in new sewerage facilities in the Bay Area in the next five years will be presented to the Regional Water Quality Control District Board members by their staff in a special briefing on Tuesday.

The session will be at 1:30 p.m. in the Alameda County Public Works Auditorium, 399 Elmhurst Street, Hayward.

The plan, which fixes deadlines for each project to begin, would call for almost $87 million in new facilities in Marin and Southern Sonoma. It provides for strict enforcement of the deadlines.

It also warns that all wastewater discharges into the bay may be prohibited after 1984.

The plan, required by the federal and state governments, must be adopted by the end of next month under a federal deadline. An all-day public hearing on it will be held May 11 in Kaiser Auditorium, Oakland.

Decision Near For Lockheed

HOUSTON (UPI)—Treasury Secretary John B. Connally will decide within 10 days whether to ask President Nixon to save Lockheed Aircraft Co., the nation's biggest defense contractor, with a $250 million loan.

Such a loan is essential to keep Lockheed from going bankrupt, Connally has said. He said the firm is in serious trouble because of high cost overruns on the C5A cargo-transport aircraft it is building for the Air Force.

Connally avoided questions about his political future and reports he would be Nixon's running mate in 1972.

SACRAMENTO ROUNDUP

Maritime Academy Education Viewed

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —A state education official Thursday called the program at the California Maritime Academy at Vallejo "considerably less than desirable" and suggested the school be turned into an upper-division institution.

Russell Reese, chief higher education specialist for the Coordinating Council on Higher Education, delivered the testimony before the education subcommittee of the Assembly Ways & Means Committee.

Reese called the chemistry and physics programs at CMA "deplorable."

Under questioning by Assemblyman John L. E. Collier, R-Los Angeles, however, he conceded that CMA had tried to get additional state funding but without success.

MARRIAGE

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —The Assembly Thursday approved a bill permitting counties to solemnize common-law marriages without publicity.

The measure by Assemblywoman Yvonne W. Brathwaite, D-Los Angeles, was sent to the Senate on a 41-14 vote.

A couple would be able to receive a marriage certificate from the county "without everybody in town knowing it," Mrs. Brathwaite said.

She said the information would not be made public as regular marriage licenses are.

ECOLOGY CENTER

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —A winter deer range in Tehama County has been selected by the Reagan Administration for one of its three new "ecology centers" for conscientious objectors.

The corpsmen will be housed in the Paynes Creek Conservation Camp, a former minimum-security state Corrections Department facility 25 miles east of Red Bluff.

The target date for opening the center is July 1.

The administration said Thursday that the corpsmen "will play a vital role in habitat development" on the 46,000-acre foothill range where deer migrate each winter from the Sierra.

"We have long desired to complete a rehabilitation of this valuable wildlife range," said the state Fish and Game Department.

Corpsemen will also be used for summertime wildland firefighting and for other emergencies such as assistance in search and rescue efforts in northern California, state officials said.

RECALLS LICENSE

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —The state Consumer Affairs Department has revoked the license of a Corona Del Mar structural pest control firm and two of its employees because of fraudulent practices.

The action was taken against Robert M. Koop, president and manager of Countywide Termite Control, Inc., and the firm's field representatives Edward W. Perusse, Huntington Beach, and Ted W. Layman, Mountain Valley.

The department said Thursday that the three were found guilty at a hearing of fraudulent practices and unprofessional conduct.

Layman and Perusse were accused specifically of making false statements to a 77-year-old woman and a nearly blind 74-year-old woman to induce them to enter work agreements.

TAX TALK

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —The Republican caucus chairman says Assembly Speaker Bob Moretti is talking "utter nonsense" when he suggests the GOP plans to "desert" Gov. Ronald Reagan and join Democrats in raising state taxes.

"If he can speak for anyone at all in the Assembly it can only be the Democrats, and there is some doubt in my mind whether he can even do that," said Assemblyman John Stull, R-Leucadia.

Moretti predicted Thursday that Republicans will "ignore" Reagan's "unalterable opposition" and vote with Democrats this year to raise taxes by at least $250 million.

"I have been in contact almost daily lately with the Republican leadership in our house and there's just no question about it," Moretti said. "They will support a tax increase."

Marin May Vote On South Span

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Residents of six San Francisco Bay counties, including Marin, would have a chance to vote on the proposed Southern Crossing bridge under terms of a bill backed by Gov. Ronald Reagan and approved by the Assembly Transportation Committee.

The committee Thursday approved the bill by Assemblyman Robert W. Crown, D-Alameda, and sent it to the floor on a split voice vote.

It was opposed by Assemblyman John F. Foran, D-San Francisco, and Peter F. Schabarum, R-Covina.

The measure places the question of whether to construct the bridge on the June 1972 ballot.

Voters in San Francisco, Alameda, Contra Costa, Marin, San Mateo and Santa Clara Counties would get to vote on the plan.

The ballot question would read, "Shall the California Toll Bridge Authority be permitted to construct the Southern Crossing Bridge without further specific approval by the California legislature?"

He said Marin County was included because commuters could be affected by possible toll increases on the Golden Gate, San Rafael and Bay Bridges.

Santa Clara was added because the BART system eventually may extend into the county.

Big Money Sewage Plan To Be Given

I-J Special Report

HAYWARD — A plan requiring $847 million in new sewerage facilities in the Bay Area in the next five years will be presented to the Regional Water Quality Control District Board members by their staff in a special briefing on Tuesday.

The session will be at 1:30 p.m. in the Alameda County Public Works Auditorium, 399 Elmhurst Street, Hayward.

The plan, which fixes deadlines for each project to begin, would call for almost $87 million in new facilities in Marin and Southern Sonoma. It provides for strict enforcement of the deadlines.

It also warns that all wastewater discharges into the bay may be prohibited after 1984.

The plan, required by the federal and state governments, must be adopted by the end of next month under a federal deadline. An all-day public hearing on it will be held May 11 in Kaiser Auditorium, Oakland.

Decision Near For Lockheed

HOUSTON (UPI)—Treasury Secretary John B. Connally will decide within 10 days whether to ask President Nixon to save Lockheed Aircraft Co., the nation's biggest defense contractor, with a $250 million loan.

Such a loan is essential to keep Lockheed from going bankrupt, Connally has said. He said the firm is in serious trouble because of high cost overruns on the C5A cargo-transport aircraft it is building for the Air Force.

Connally avoided questions about his political future and reports he would be Nixon's running mate in 1972.

SACRAMENTO ROUNDUP

Maritime Academy Education Viewed

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —A state education official Thursday called the program at the California Maritime Academy at Vallejo "considerably less than desirable" and suggested the school be turned into an upper-division institution.

Russell Reese, chief higher education specialist for the Coordinating Council on Higher Education, delivered the testimony before the education subcommittee of the Assembly Ways & Means Committee.

Reese called the chemistry and physics programs at CMA "deplorable."

Under questioning by Assemblyman John L. E. Collier, R-Los Angeles, however, he conceded that CMA had tried to get additional state funding but without success.

MARRIAGE

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —The Assembly Thursday approved a bill permitting counties to solemnize common-law marriages without publicity.

The measure by Assemblywoman Yvonne W. Brathwaite, D-Los Angeles, was sent to the Senate on a 41-14 vote.

A couple would be able to receive a marriage certificate from the county "without everybody in town knowing it," Mrs. Brathwaite said.

She said the information would not be made public as regular marriage licenses are.

ECOLOGY CENTER

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —A winter deer range in Tehama County has been selected by the Reagan Administration for one of its three new "ecology centers" for conscientious objectors.

The corpsmen will be housed in the Paynes Creek Conservation Camp, a former minimum-security state Corrections Department facility 25 miles east of Red Bluff.

The target date for opening the center is July 1.

The administration said Thursday that the corpsmen "will play a vital role in habitat development" on the 46,000-acre foothill range where deer migrate each winter from the Sierra.

"We have long desired to complete a rehabilitation of this valuable wildlife range," said the state Fish and Game Department.

Corpsemen will also be used for summertime wildland firefighting and for other emergencies such as assistance in search and rescue efforts in northern California, state officials said.

RECALLS LICENSE

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —The state Consumer Affairs Department has revoked the license of a Corona Del Mar structural pest control firm and two of its employees because of fraudulent practices.

The action was taken against Robert M. Koop, president and manager of Countywide Termite Control, Inc., and the firm's field representatives Edward W. Perusse, Huntington Beach, and Ted W. Layman, Mountain Valley.

The department said Thursday that the three were found guilty at a hearing of fraudulent practices and unprofessional conduct.

Layman and Perusse were accused specifically of making false statements to a 77-year-old woman and a nearly blind 74-year-old woman to induce them to enter work agreements.

TAX TALK

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —The Republican caucus chairman says Assembly Speaker Bob Moretti is talking "utter nonsense" when he suggests the GOP plans to "desert" Gov. Ronald Reagan and join Democrats in raising state taxes.

"If he can speak for anyone at all in the Assembly it can only be the Democrats, and there is some doubt in my mind whether he can even do that," said Assemblyman John Stull, R-Leucadia.

Moretti predicted Thursday that Republicans will "ignore" Reagan's "unalterable opposition" and vote with Democrats this year to raise taxes by at least $250 million.

"I have been in contact almost daily lately with the Republican leadership in our house and there's just no question about it," Moretti said. "They will support a tax increase."

Cottontail rabbits may have as many as seven litters of young each year.

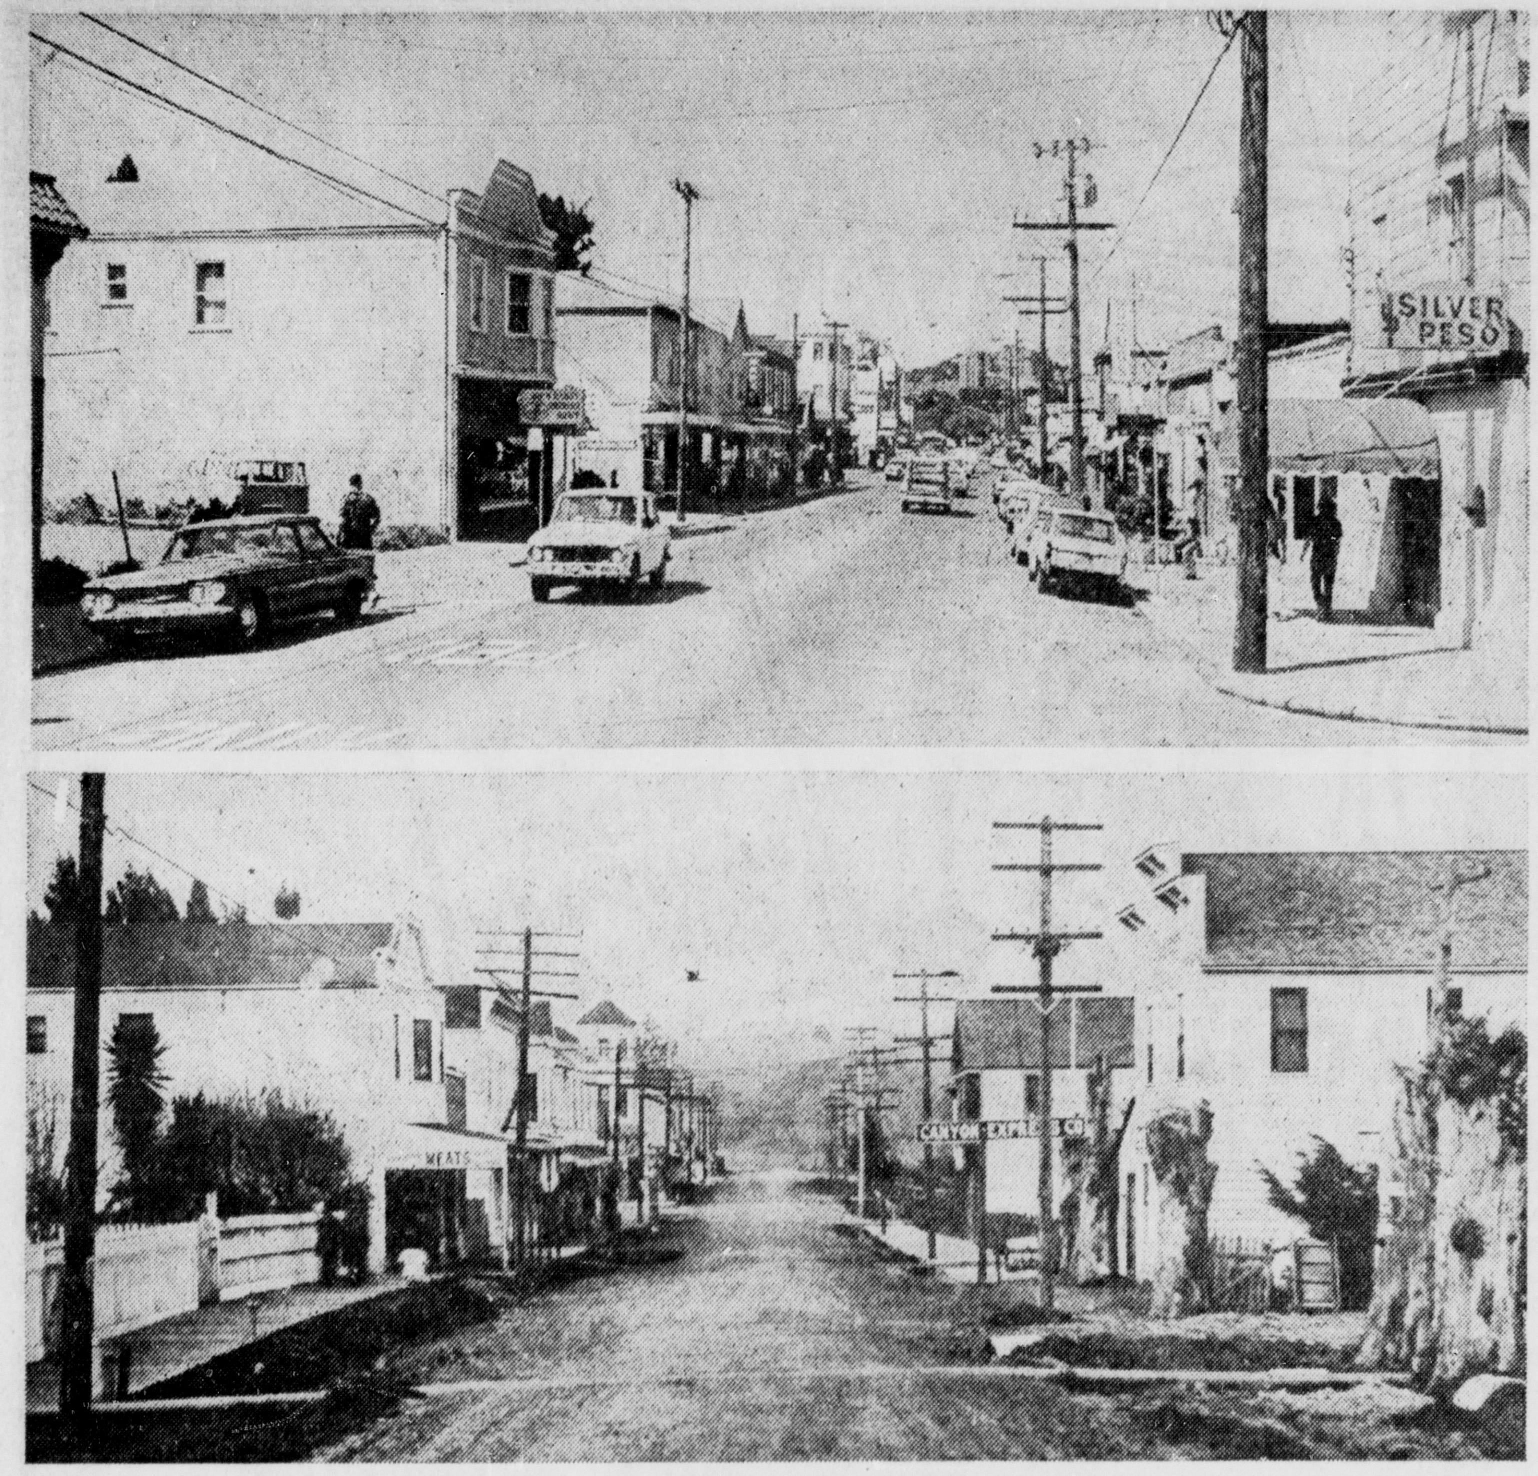
WARDS IS OPEN TONIGHT 'TIL 9 - SATURDAY 9:30 AM



THEN AND NOW — Except for cars and concrete, Larkspur's Magnolia Avenue today (top) — viewed north from Cane Street — is not too different from that in 1910. Many of the white wood frame structures are still standing including those which house the John Barry Insurance Agency, the Rainbow Market, The Silver Peso and the Blue Rock Inn. The future look of Larkspur, as influenced by the population increase, will be the general topic tomorrow of the city's second Town Meeting.

Larkspur Town Meeting Will Tackle Growth Issue Tomorrow

For months, Larkspur's governmental agencies have been wrestling with the sometimes volatile issue of how to control growth legally and equitably.

Tomorrow, the Larkspur Town Meeting will take its turn at probing the controversy which has split city councilmen and planning commissioners into two camps — one expounding property owners' rights and the other the preservation of the environment.

The town meeting, Larkspur's second, this time meets under the banner: "Larkspur — Growing, Growing, Growing. The Economic and Environmental Impact of Population Increase."

It proposes four workshops dealing with population and density, open space preservation, commuter traffic and park development.

Topics of discussion include questions of what the city's total population should be and where it should be distributed, where and how commuter traffic should be funneled through the city, how Piper Park should be developed and if the city should cooperate in a joint effort to preserve the 1,200-acre North Ridge from development.

The meeting begins at 9 a.m. at Henry C. Hall School.

Last November, the first town meeting drew about 250 persons who drafted 16 recommendations for action.

Town meeting officials since have lobbied city and county representatives with moderate success.

The city council, at the urging of the town meeting, has agreed to leave marshland areas of Piper Park undeveloped, has agreed to limit docking facilities at the park, has agreed to require developers to dedicate land for park use and has agreed to improve bike trails.

Papa Doc's Son Pledges 'New Haiti'

PORT-AU-PRINCE (UPI)—The teen-age president of the Western Hemisphere's oldest black republic —and its poorest nation —pledged Thursday to "build a new Haiti." He invited the country's 200,000 exiles to come back and help in the reconstruction.

Jean-Claude Duvalier, 19, told the national assembly in his maiden speech his mission was "to improve health, education (and) abolish hunger" —the legacy of this Caribbean nation's 5 million residents after almost 14 years of dictatorship under his late father, Dr. Francois (Papa Doc) Duvalier.

Papa Doc, who died last week at 62, had amended the constitutional age requirement for the presidency from 40 so his son might succeed him.

Duvalier received a large cheer when he told the packed assembly hall he was "offering an olive branch of peace to the exiles." He drew an even bigger ovation when he stipulated moments later that his offer excluded Communists and "trouble-makers."

"All Haitians living abroad are free to come back and take part in the national regeneration," Duvalier said in his hour-long speech.

"My mission is to improve health, education and abolish hunger and build a new Haiti that is generous and progressive."

The husky young ruler spoke of a new understanding between Haiti and the United States and offered Washington his help against Communism.

Duvalier also pledged to continue his father's fight against subversion and said he was firmly committed to a policy of non-intervention and self-determination of all peoples.

Tricia's Invitations

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The White House says nearly 400 invitations for the wedding of Tricia Nixon and Edward Finch Cox will be mailed out May 10.

The event is being termed a family wedding, with relatively few members of Washington officialdom on the guest list. It was expected that Cabinet members, some members of the diplomatic corps and family friends in Congress would be invited.

Bonaparte Land Condemned For Highway Use

TRENTON, N.J. (UPI)—The last recorded owner of four acres of land the state of New Jersey needs for interstate 295 was Joseph Bonaparte, older brother of French Emperor Napoleon Bonaparte.

So the state Thursday filed two condemnation suits against the "heirs" of Joseph Bonaparte, asking that three commissioners be appointed to fix compensation for Joseph's heirs, if any can be found.

Joseph was king of Naples and Spain while his brother reigned over France and most of Europe.

The armies of the Duke of Wellington forced Joseph to flee Spain in 1813, and two years later he came to the United States. He lived in the United States from 1815 to 1832, when he returned to France.

Graham Closing The Fillmores: 'Success Killed Rock Music'

NEW YORK (UPI)—The operator of two of the nation's most famous rock concert halls is closing them down because he says greed has taken over the music industry.

"The only positive thing anymore is the dollars, and that's not enough anymore," producer Bill Graham said Thursday. "The dues that have to be paid are, for me, no longer worth it."

Graham said Fillmore East, in the heart of New York's East Village, will close June 26 with the last show by the Allman Brothers. Fillmore West in San Francisco is scheduled for demolition late in the summer and Graham said it "will not relocate."

Graham said he now deals with corporations and stockholders instead of musicians. He said the whole rock music industry has become big business.

"Rock is joining America," he said. "With success comes desire and with desire comes greed.

"The inability to cope with success has killed rock music. That's what killed Janis Joplin and Jimi Hendrix, not drugs. They couldn't cope with sudden adulation."

Graham has run the two rock emporiums for six years and during that time has specialized in bringing in big name stars for live one-night stands.

When an artist first makes it big, Graham said, he realizes he can fill a 20,000 seat house with $4 and $5 ticketholders.

"People realize they can make more by giving less," Graham said. "So instead of playing four concerts to 5,000 people each, he wants to play one 20,000 concert and spend the other three days on his yacht."

A fine violin improves with age.

THEN AND NOW — Except for cars and concrete, Larkspur's Magnolia Avenue today (top) — viewed north from Cane Street — is not too different from that in 1910. Many of the white wood frame structures are still standing including those which house the John Barry Insurance Agency, the Rainbow Market, The Silver Peso and the Blue Rock Inn. The future look of Larkspur, as influenced by the population increase, will be the general topic tomorrow of the city's second Town Meeting.

Bonaparte Land Condemned For Highway Use

TRENTON, N.J. (UPI)—The last recorded owner of four acres of land the state of New Jersey needs for interstate 295 was Joseph Bonaparte, older brother of French Emperor Napoleon Bonaparte.

So the state Thursday filed two condemnation suits against the "heirs" of Joseph Bonaparte, asking that three commissioners be appointed to fix compensation for Joseph's heirs, if any can be found.

Joseph was king of Naples and Spain while his brother reigned over France and most of Europe.

The armies of the Duke of Wellington forced Joseph to flee Spain in 1813, and two years later he came to the United States. He lived in the United States from 1815 to 1832, when he returned to France.

Graham Closing The Fillmores: 'Success Killed Rock Music'

NEW YORK (UPI)—The operator of two of the nation's most famous rock concert halls is closing them down because he says greed has taken over the music industry.

"The only positive thing anymore is the dollars, and that's not enough anymore," producer Bill Graham said Thursday. "The dues that have to be paid are, for me, no longer worth it."

Graham said Fillmore East, in the heart of New York's East Village, will close June 26 with the last show by the Allman Brothers. Fillmore West in San Francisco is scheduled for demolition late in the summer and Graham said it "will not relocate."

Graham said he now deals with corporations and stockholders instead of musicians. He said the whole rock music industry has become big business.

"Rock is joining America," he said. "With success comes desire and with desire comes greed.

"The inability to cope with success has killed rock music. That's what killed Janis Joplin and Jimi Hendrix, not drugs. They couldn't cope with sudden adulation."

Graham has run the two rock emporiums for six years and during that time has specialized in bringing in big name stars for live one-night stands.

When an artist first makes it big, Graham said, he realizes he can fill a 20,000 seat house with $4 and $5 ticketholders.

"People realize they can make more by giving less," Graham said. "So instead of playing four concerts to 5,000 people each, he wants to play one 20,000 concert and spend the other three days on his yacht."

Papa Doc's Son Pledges 'New Haiti'

PORT-AU-PRINCE (UPI)—The teen-age president of the Western Hemisphere's oldest black republic —and its poorest nation —pledged Thursday to "build a new Haiti." He invited the country's 200,000 exiles to come back and help in the reconstruction.

Jean-Claude Duvalier, 19, told the national assembly in his maiden speech his mission was "to improve health, education (and) abolish hunger" —the legacy of this Caribbean nation's 5 million residents after almost 14 years of dictatorship under his late father, Dr. Francois (Papa Doc) Duvalier.

Papa Doc, who died last week at 62, had amended the constitutional age requirement for the presidency from 40 so his son might succeed him.

Duvalier received a large cheer when he told the packed assembly hall he was "offering an olive branch of peace to the exiles." He drew an even bigger ovation when he stipulated moments later that his offer excluded Communists and "trouble-makers."

"All Haitians living abroad are free to come back and take part in the national regeneration," Duvalier said in his hour-long speech.

"My mission is to improve health, education and abolish hunger and build a new Haiti that is generous and progressive."

The husky young ruler spoke of a new understanding between Haiti and the United States and offered Washington his help against Communism.

Duvalier also pledged to continue his father's fight against subversion and said he was firmly committed to a policy of non-intervention and self-determination of all peoples.

Larkspur Town Meeting Will Tackle Growth Issue Tomorrow

For months, Larkspur's governmental agencies have been wrestling with the sometimes volatile issue of how to control growth legally and equitably.

Tomorrow, the Larkspur Town Meeting will take its turn at probing the controversy which has split city councilmen and planning commissioners into two camps — one expounding property owners' rights and the other the preservation of the environment.

The town meeting, Larkspur's second, this time meets under the banner: "Larkspur — Growing, Growing, Growing. The Economic and Environmental Impact of Population Increase."

It proposes four workshops dealing with population and density, open space preservation, commuter traffic and park development.

Topics of discussion include questions of what the city's total population should be and where it should be distributed, where and how commuter traffic should be funneled through the city, how Piper Park should be developed and if the city should cooperate in a joint effort to preserve the 1,200-acre North Ridge from development.

The meeting begins at 9 a.m. at Henry C. Hall School.

Last November, the first town meeting drew about 250 persons who drafted 16 recommendations for action.

Town meeting officials since have lobbied city and county representatives with moderate success.

The city council, at the urging of the town meeting, has agreed to leave marshland areas of Piper Park undeveloped, has agreed to limit docking facilities at the park, has agreed to require developers to dedicate land for park use and has agreed to improve bike trails.

Tricia's Invitations

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The White House says nearly 400 invitations for the wedding of Tricia Nixon and Edward Finch Cox will be mailed out May 10.

The event is being termed a family wedding, with relatively few members of Washington officialdom on the guest list. It was expected that Cabinet members, some members of the diplomatic corps and family friends in Congress would be invited.

Embezzlement Case Brings Indictments

CHICAGO (UPI)—Four persons, including a former bank official and three officials of a discount store company, were indicted today for embezzling nearly $7 million from the Cosmopolitan National Bank.

When news of the embezzlement broke in March, it was thought to be the largest bank embezzlement in history. But March 30 it was reported that federal officials suspected up to $10 million may have been embezzled from the Eatonton National Bank in Newark, N.J.

Named in today's 30-count indictment were Louis Steinberg, 48, former vice president of the Steinberg-Baum discount store chain; Frank Baum, president of the firm; Leonard Freedman, 52, general manager of the firm, and Donald Santowski, 42, former vice president and bookkeeper of the bank.

The indictment charged they embezzled $6,779,450 from the Cosmopolitan National Bank on the near North Side of Chicago in a check-kiting scheme involving $28,033,875 in checks.

The indictment, returned by the March federal grand jury, charged that large checks, most of them for more than $100,000 and some for as much as $900,000, were written on Steinberg-Baum's checking account at the bank when there were insufficient funds to cash the checks.

The checks, the charges said, were made to other firms controlled by Steinberg-Baum and were deposited in the checking accounts of those firms. At the same time, checks in the same amount were written on these accounts and the second checks were deposited back into the Cosmopolitan bank, the charges said.

At the bank, these checks were intercepted and concealed so that they were not charged against the Steinberg-Baum account, the indictment said. Some checks were concealed for up to a year before finally being charged against the account, it was charged.

The amount lost by the bank was in 17 separate checks, it was charged.

The indictment was returned before U.S. District Court Judge Julius J. Hoffman, who issued warrants for the arrests of the four men and set $4,000 personal recognizance bonds for each.

On Wednesday, 12 subsidiary Steinberg-Baum companies filed for bankruptcies. In its own earlier bankruptcy petition, Steinberg-Baum listed $5 million in assets and $6 million in liabilities. The bank also has said that because it has become the "involuntary creditors" of the firm, it had assumed control of Steinberg-Baum.

Tam Valley Site May Be Purchased

The Tamalpais Community Services District has decided to buy 5.13 acres of land from the Mill Valley School District for $66,500 unless there is strong community objection.

Services District President Glenn Lambacher said the board agreed on the price, midway between appraisals by the services district and the school district, at a special meeting Wednesday.

The property, called the Alice Eastwood site, is at Eastwood Way and Glenwood Avenue in Tamalpais Valley. The former school site will be used for a park, said Lambacher.

The services district board will make a formal offer to buy the property at its May 11 meeting "unless strong objections are voiced by district residents at that time,'' said Lambacher.

Typewriter Stolen

An electric typewriter, valued at $479, was stolen from an office at Green Gulch Ranch near Muir Beach sometime last weekend, Marin County Sheriff's Office reported yesterday.

Judge Sets Rail Switch For Tonight

WASHINGTON (UPI) —U.S. District Judge Howard Corcoran refused today to order a delay in the scheduled takeover at midnight of most of the nation's railroad passenger service by a semipublic corporation.

Railroad unions made immediate plans to appeal the decision in a last minute effort to prevent the corporation — called Amtrak — from implementing its plan to drop 101 of the nation's intercity 285 passenger trains beginning Saturday.

The unions had charged that the labor protection provisions of the Amtrak contract with participating railroads were inadequate and would work extreme hardship on up to 25,000 rail workers, some of whom they said could be cut off without a cent of severance pay.

Rail labor unions charged that Labor Secretary James D. Hodgson's order stipulating required protections for laid-off or otherwise displaced employes were inadequate and not in compliance with Interstate Commerce Commission regulations.

Judge Corcoran said in a 24-page opinion:

"If this court were to declare invalid the contracts which have been entered into between the corporations and the railroads, the statutory plan would be seriously jeopardized.

"The frustration of the intent of Congress and a threat of grave injury to the public and to the railroads should be obvious."

Corcoran said he had no authority to invalidate Hodgson's labor protection order as the railroads asked because he said the act creating Amtrak specifically gave the labor secretary the power to establish those provisions.

Corcoran said it appeared that the order would "make it likely that far more employes will receive the protections" than they would under ICC regulations.

Let The Radicals Carry The Mail, Says Hayakawa

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—College president S.I. Hayakawa said Thursday night college students need to be offered stiffer challenges to take their minds off such things as revolution.

He told 400 delegates to the national convention of the American College Health Association that colleges of the future should become "experimental" and more closely aligned with the world immediately around them.

"Colleges of the future should take students into the community and students should be given municipal jobs such as directing traffic, caring for the elderly and delivering mail," said the president of San Francisco State College.

"Students today are in a kind of enforced quasi-idleness and they are ready for something more challenging. What is needed for a youth is to be extended to the limit."

Hayakawa of Mill Valley said the major problem in higher education is the "elitist student, generally coming from a higher income family and looking down on the working class and other people . . ."

The root systems of most trees are more extensive than their limbs or branches.

Bullet Fired Into Residence

Petaluma police said a bullet was fired into a Petaluma residence last night but no explanation of the shooting could be found.

Police said the shot, possibly fired from a passing car, entered the residence of Junita Tatum of 1262 Lindberg Lane through the front wall, passed through a bedroom and lodged in a clock-radio. The slug, removed from the radio, was tentatively identified as .38-caliber.

The shooting occurred about 6:45 p.m. a neighbor said she heard what appeared to be a car backfiring at the time the bullet was fired.

Candidates For Principal Interviewed

Ten candidates for principal of San Rafael High School ran the gamut today of interviews by students, faculty members, and parents.

In what may have been their toughest test, the aspirants for the principalship being vacated by Alan W. Ellsberg were quizzed by six students selected by the student body executive board. They also were interviewed separately by panels of eight faculty members and four parents.

Members of the student selection committee are Linda Greene, Jane Thelen, Jode Anderson, Marti Davis, Mark Showers, and Bess Christie.

The faculty committee includes Allan Barahal, Jessie Diffley, Sue-Ann Joy, Joseph E. Brighenti, Lawrence Lack, and Edward Cunningham, all San Rafael High School teachers; Robert R. Royle of Terra Linda High School, and Jerald Gill of the city schools administration.

Members of the parent committee are Robert A. Roumiguiere, Lawrence E. Hoyt, Jean Noble and Willie Vandenbos.

Each committee will present its recommendations to the San Rafael Board of Education, which will make the final choice of principal. Names of the candidates were not disclosed.

Protesters Told To Write Essays In Lieu Of Jail

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Eleven persons convicted of staging a sit-in at the Southwest Museum to protest a display of American Indian bones ..ave been ordered to write 5,000-word essays on civil disobedience.

Municipal Court Judge Irwin J. Nebron Thursday sentenced the nine men and two women to 90 days in jail and three years probation but reduced the sentence to 10 days on condition they write the essays.

All eleven also were fined $375 each.

All but one of the defendants, who staged the demonstration Jan. 12 charging that the display of bones and Indian religious items was "sacrilegious," claimed to be of American Indian ancestry. They were convicted of trespassing for failing to leave the museum at closing time.

Capitol Bomb Figure Arrives In Seattle

SEATTLE, Wash. (UPI)—Leslie Bacon, 19-year-old blonde from a well-to-do California family, arrived here Thursday night to appear before a federal grand jury as a material witness in the March 1 bombing of the U.S. capitol.

Although waiting newsmen could not confirm she had been whisked off the United Air Lines flight which arrived here late Thursday night, several passengers said they had seen her aboard.

She is the first person arrested in connection with the explosion which caused nearly $200,000 damage in a Senate wing. No one was injured.

The government contends that Seattle is not a particularly unusual setting for the investigation of the capitol blast, pointing out that a grand jury can be confined anywhere in the nation because the offense took place in a federal jurisdiction. Miss Bacon's attorneys assert the faraway site will make it more difficult for the defense.

The government implied during court hearings that she knew far more about the bombing than simply the "personal knowledge" of it that was mentioned in a warrant for her arrest.

She was arrested Tuesday night by FBI agents on a warrant she had knowledge of the persons responsible for the blast.

Although her lawyers fought to keep her from leaving Washington, the way was cleared for her transfer Thursday by a decision of a U.S. court of appeals.

Cutbacks In Tam District Administrators Due Study

A recommendation that four Tamalpais High School District administrative jobs be eliminated as part of a test of reorganization will be presented Monday to the district board.

The recommendation, if approved, will save the district about $126,549 next year, according to Dr. Wilber D. Hawkins, district superintendent.

Besides the four administrative positions, the recommendation calls for the elimination of about three and a half secretarial positions.

Hawkins has said the reduction is necessary to "decentralize" the district by moving certain district responsibilities to the school level. Those responsibilities include budgeting and program planning.

However, his recommendation to the board also calls for the creation of one new district position of director of research and development. Responsibilities listed are primarily those held by the soon-to-be-axed positions of director of instruction and his special projects assistant who acts as a grantsman. No salary figure is listed for the proposed position.

The other administrative positions proposed for elimination are those of director of pupil personnel and his child welfare assistant. Their responsibilities would be shifted primarily to school personnel.

The test or reorganization is actually a compromise between teachers who protested being left out of reorganization planning and the superintendent who drafted the plan.

Under the compromise reached earlier this month by the board, the plan will be tried at Sir Francis Drake High School in San Anselmo so its merits and shortcoming can be evaluated.

Also included in his recommendation is a request to reassign district psychologists full time to the schools and to eliminate the professional library at the district office and the clerical position it includes.

The four administrators who hold the positions proposed for scrapping are all listed as teachers to be rehired next year.

The board meeting at 8 p.m. at the Redwood High School faculty lounge also will discuss with its auditor the audit of the fiscal 1969-70 records and hear a report on financial trends, among other items.

Dance Demonstration Is Scheduled Monday

A public informal demonstration of dance will be presented at 8:15 p.m. Monday in the Dominican College gymnasiun.

The demonstration by students of Welland Lathrop, will review the work of the class over the past semester, including group and individual improvisations.

Would-Be Jumpers In Custody

A San Francisco man and his fiance, reportedly distraught over an obstacle to their marriage, were taken into custody yesterday to prevent them from jumping from Golden Gate Bride, according to the California Highway Patrol.

Officers said Richard J. Oba, 24, and his fiance, Susanne Knudson, 22, of Medford, Ore., made their way to the bridge last night after an argument at the home of Oba's mother.

Miss Knudson was picked up by the highway patrol at 8:02 p.m. on the south walk of the bridge. Oba was found at the Round House restaurant near the bridge's southern end 13 minutes later.

Officers said Oba's mother called them and said her son had asked for money for a wedding. When she refused, she said, Oba stormed out of the house and said he was going to take his life.

Miss Knudson then told Mrs. Oba that she would jump as well and left the house, the patrol quoted Mrs. Oba as saying.

The couple was taken to San Francisco General Hospital and committed as being a danger to themselves.

Gopher Problem In Gas Project

DENVER (UPI)—Scientists checking out plans to destroy 3,071 tons of mustard gas at the Rocky Mountain Arsenal said Thursday one thing might put a crimp in the project—the common gopher.

The scientists said gophers on the land near Denver are eating coaxial cable which will be used to transmit data to a monitoring board during detoxification.

M.C. Gilvray, a member of the regional Air Pollution Control Agency's technical advisory committee, said the rodents chew up the plastic and wire cable.

The scientists made no recommendation on how the Army should handle the gopher problem.

Embezzlement Case Brings Indictments

CHICAGO (UPI)—Four persons, including a former bank official and three officials of a discount store company, were indicted today for embezzling nearly $7 million from the Cosmopolitan National Bank.

When news of the embezzlement broke in March, it was thought to be the largest bank embezzlement in history. But March 30 it was reported that federal officials suspected up to $10 million may have been embezzled from the Eatonton National Bank in Newark, N.J.

Named in today's 30-count indictment were Louis Steinberg, 48, former vice president of the Steinberg-Baum discount store chain; Frank Baum, president of the firm; Leonard Freedman, 52, general manager of the firm, and Donald Santowski, 42, former vice president and bookkeeper of the bank.

The indictment charged they embezzled $6,779,450 from the Cosmopolitan National Bank on the near North Side of Chicago in a check-kiting scheme involving $28,033,875 in checks.

The indictment, returned by the March federal grand jury, charged that large checks, most of them for more than $100,000 and some for as much as $900,000, were written on Steinberg-Baum's checking account at the bank when there were insufficient funds to cash the checks.

The checks, the charges said, were made to other firms controlled by Steinberg-Baum and were deposited in the checking accounts of those firms. At the same time, checks in the same amount were written on these accounts and the second checks were deposited back into the Cosmopolitan bank, the charges said.

At the bank, these checks were intercepted and concealed so that they were not charged against the Steinberg-Baum account, the indictment said. Some checks were concealed for up to a year before finally being charged against the account, it was charged.

The amount lost by the bank was in 17 separate checks, it was charged.

The indictment was returned before U.S. District Court Judge Julius J. Hoffman, who issued warrants for the arrests of the four men and set $4,000 personal recognizance bonds for each.

On Wednesday, 12 subsidiary Steinberg- Baum companies filed for bankruptcies. In its own earlier bankruptcy petition, Steinberg-Baum listed $5 million in assets and $6 million in liabilities. The bank also has said that because it has become the "involuntary creditors" of the firm, it had assumed control of Steinberg-Baum.

Tam Valley Site May Be Purchased

The Tamalpais Community Services District has decided to buy 5.13 acres of land from the Mill Valley School District for $66,500 unless there is strong community objection.

Services District President Glenn Lambacher said the board agreed on the price, midway between appraisals by the services district and the school district, at a special meeting Wednesday.

The property, called the Alice Eastwood site, is at Eastwood Way and Glenwood Avenue in Tamalpais Valley. The former school site will be used for a park, said Lambacher.

The services district board will make a formal offer to buy the property at its May 11 meeting "unless strong objections are voiced by district residents at that time,'' said Lambacher.

Typewriter Stolen

An electric typewriter, valued at $479, was stolen from an office at Green Gulch Ranch near Muir Beach sometime last weekend, Marin County Sheriff's Office reported yesterday.

Judge Sets Rail Switch For Tonight

WASHINGTON (UPI) —U.S. District Judge Howard Corcoran refused today to order a delay in the scheduled takeover at midnight of most of the nation's railroad passenger service by a semipublic corporation.

Railroad unions made immediate plans to appeal the decision in a last minute effort to prevent the corporation — called Amtrak — from implementing its plan to drop 101 of the nation's intercity 285 passenger trains beginning Saturday.

The unions had charged that the labor protection provisions of the Amtrak contract with participating railroads were inadequate and would work extreme hardship on up to 25,000 rail workers, some of whom they said could be cut off without a cent of severance pay.

Rail labor unions charged that Labor Secretary James D. Hodgson's order stipulating required protections for laid-off or otherwise displaced employes were inadequate and not in compliance with Interstate Commerce Commission regulations.

Judge Corcoran said in a 24-page opinion:

"If this court were to declare invalid the contracts which have been entered into between the corporations and the railroads, the statutory plan would be seriously jeopardized.

"The frustration of the intent of Congress and a threat of grave injury to the public and to the railroads should be obvious."

Corcoran said he had no authority to invalidate Hodgson's labor protection order as the railroads asked because he said the act creating Amtrak specifically gave the labor secretary the power to establish those provisions.

Corcoran said it appeared that the order would "make it likely that far more employes will receive the protections" than they would under ICC regulations.

Let The Radicals Carry The Mail, Says Hayakawa

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—College president S.I. Hayakawa said Thursday night college students need to be offered stiffer challenges to take their minds off such things as revolution.

He told 400 delegates to the national convention of the American College Health Association that colleges of the future should become "experimental" and more closely aligned with the world immediately around them.

"Colleges of the future should take students into the community and students should be given municipal jobs such as directing traffic, caring for the elderly and delivering mail," said the president of San Francisco State College.

"Students today are in a kind of enforced quasi-idleness and they are ready for something more challenging. What is needed for a youth is to be extended to the limit."

Hayakawa of Mill Valley said the major problem in higher education is the "elitist student, generally coming from a higher income family and looking down on the working class and other people . . ."

The root systems of most trees are more extensive than their limbs or branches.

Bullet Fired Into Residence

Petaluma police said a bullet was fired into a Petaluma residence last night but no explanation of the shooting could be found.

Police said the shot, possibly fired from a passing car, entered the residence of Junita Tatum of 1262 Lindberg Lane through the front wall, passed through a bedroom and lodged in a clock-radio. The slug, removed from the radio, was tentatively identified as .38-caliber.

The shooting occurred about 6:45 p.m. a neighbor said she heard what appeared to be a car backfiring at the time the bullet was fired.

Candidates For Principal Interviewed

Ten candidates for principal of San Rafael High School ran the gamut today of interviews by students, faculty members, and parents.

In what may have been their toughest test, the aspirants for the principalship being vacated by Alan W. Ellsberg were quizzed by six students selected by the student body executive board. They also were interviewed separately by panels of eight faculty members and four parents.

Members of the student selection committee are Linda Greene, Jane Thelen, Jode Anderson, Marti Davis, Mark Showers, and Bess Christie.

The faculty committee includes Allan Barahal, Jessie Diffley, Sue-Ann Joy, Joseph E. Brighenti, Lawrence Lack, and Edward Cunningham, all San Rafael High School teachers; Robert R. Royle of Terra Linda High School, and Jerald Gill of the city schools administration.

Members of the parent committee are Robert A. Roumiguiere, Lawrence E. Hoyt, Jean Noble and Willie Vandenbos.

Each committee will present its recommendations to the San Rafael Board of Education, which will make the final choice of principal. Names of the candidates were not disclosed.

Protesters Told To Write Essays In Lieu Of Jail

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Eleven persons convicted of staging a sit-in at the Southwest Museum to protest a display of American Indian bones ..ave been ordered to write 5,000-word essays on civil disobedience.

Municipal Court Judge Irwin J. Nebron Thursday sentenced the nine men and two women to 90 days in jail and three years probation but reduced the sentence to 10 days on condition they write the essays.

All eleven also were fined $375 each.

All but one of the defendants, who staged the demonstration Jan. 12 charging that the display of bones and Indian religious items was "sacrilegious," claimed to be of American Indian ancestry. They were convicted of trespassing for failing to leave the museum at closing time.

Capitol Bomb Figure Arrives In Seattle

SEATTLE, Wash. (UPI)—Leslie Bacon, 19-year-old blonde from a well-to-do California family, arrived here Thursday night to appear before a federal grand jury as a material witness in the March 1 bombing of the U.S. capitol.

Although waiting newsmen could not confirm she had been whisked off the United Air Lines flight which arrived here late Thursday night, several passengers said they had seen her aboard.

She is the first person arrested in connection with the explosion which caused nearly $200,000 damage in a Senate wing. No one was injured.

The government contends that Seattle is not a particularly unusual setting for the investigation of the capitol blast, pointing out that a grand jury can be confined anywhere in the nation because the offense took place in a federal jurisdiction. Miss Bacon's attorneys assert the faraway site will make it more difficult for the defense.

The government implied during court hearings that she knew far more about the bombing than simply the "personal knowledge" of it that was mentioned in a warrant for her arrest.

She was arrested Tuesday night by FBI agents on a warrant she had knowledge of the persons responsible for the blast.

Although her lawyers fought to keep her from leaving Washington, the way was cleared for her transfer Thursday by a decision of a U.S. court of appeals.

Cutbacks In Tam District Administrators Due Study

A recommendation that four Tamalpais High School District administrative jobs be eliminated as part of a test of reorganization will be presented Monday to the district board.

The recommendation, if approved, will save the district about $126,549 next year, according to Dr. Wilber D. Hawkins, district superintendent.

Besides the four administrative positions, the recommendation calls for the elimination of about three and a half secretarial positions.

Hawkins has said the reduction is necessary to "decentralize" the district by moving certain district responsibilities to the school level. Those responsibilities include budgeting and program planning.

However, his recommendation to the board also calls for the creation of one new district position of director of research and development. Responsibilities listed are primarily those held by the soon-to-be-axed positions of director of instruction and his special projects assistant who acts as a grantsman. No salary figure is listed for the proposed position.

The other administrative positions proposed for elimination are those of director of pupil personnel and his child welfare assistant. Their responsibilities would be shifted primarily to school personnel.

The test or reorganization is actually a compromise between teachers who protested being left out of reorganization planning and the superintendent who drafted the plan.

Under the compromise reached earlier this month by the board, the plan will be tried at Sir Francis Drake High School in San Anselmo so its merits and shortcoming can be evaluated.

Also included in his recommendation is a request to reassign district psychologists full time to the schools and to eliminate the professional library at the district office and the clerical position it includes.

The four administrators who hold the positions proposed for scrapping are all listed as teachers to be rehired next year.

The board meeting at 8 p.m. at the Redwood High School faculty lounge also will discuss with its auditor the audit of the fiscal 1969-70 records and hear a report on financial trends, among other items.

Dance Demonstration Is Scheduled Monday

A public informal demonstration of dance will be presented at 8:15 p.m. Monday in the Dominican College gymnasiun.

The demonstration by students of Welland Lathrop, will review the work of the class over the past semester, including group and individual improvisations.

Would-Be Jumpers In Custody

A San Francisco man and his fiance, reportedly distraught over an obstacle to their marriage, were taken into custody yesterday to prevent them from jumping from Golden Gate Bride, according to the California Highway Patrol.

Officers said Richard J. Oba, 24, and his fiance, Susanne Knudson, 22, of Medford, Ore., made their way to the bridge last night after an argument at the home of Oba's mother.

Miss Knudson was picked up by the highway patrol at 8:02 p.m. on the south walk of the bridge. Oba was found at the Round House restaurant near the bridge's southern end 13 minutes later.

Officers said Oba's mother called them and said her son had asked for money for a wedding. When she refused, she said, Oba stormed out of the house and said he was going to take his life.

Miss Knudson then told Mrs. Oba that she would jump as well and left the house, the patrol quoted Mrs. Oba as saying.

The couple was taken to San Francisco General Hospital and committed as being a danger to themselves.

Gopher Problem In Gas Project

DENVER (UPI)—Scientists checking out plans to destroy 3,071 tons of mustard gas at the Rocky Mountain Arsenal said Thursday one thing might put a crimp in the project—the common gopher.

The scientists said gophers on the land near Denver are eating coaxial cable which will be used to transmit data to a monitoring board during detoxification.

M.C. Gilvray, a member of the regional Air Pollution Control Agency's technical advisory committee, said the rodents chew up the plastic and wire cable.

The scientists made no recommendation on how the Army should handle the gopher problem.

Attorney Sees System Making Youth Haters

By GEORGE NEVIN

(Fifth in a series of 24 raps)

MICHAEL H. METZGER
"Youth wants to believe . . ."

Most youths today want to work within the system to bring about change, but enforcement of unjust laws and the prosecution of an unjust war is turning them into "haters."

This is the contention of 33-year-old Michael H. Metzger, the Sausalito attorney whose own arrest last year on suspicion of drug possession confirmed his feeling that "the police and courts are being used as instruments of oppression."

Charges against Metzger, one of San Francisco's so-called dope lawyers, were dismissed in Marin Superior Court last month on the grounds that an informer used a ruse to gain entry to Metzger's Sausalito home.

The attorney, whose clients usually are accused of violating Selective Service or narcotics laws, didn't arrive at his present way of thinking overnight. "I used to be a member of the Establishment. The change was a long, slow one," he said.

If any man should have remained a member of the Establishment, it would seem Metzger should have. Born the son of a wealthy clothing manufacturer, Metzger, by his own account, grew up "in the lap of luxury" in New York.

To satisfy a vague desire to make the world a better place, Metzger attended law school, graduating near the top of his class, and then turned down offers to join prestigious New York law firms to become head of the rackets bureau in the New York district attorney's office.

Metzger showed an Independent-Journal reporter books of press clippings on his racket-busting days, which credited him with the conviction of influential men in and near government for corruption, bribery and price-fixing.

After five-and-one-half years, Metzger moved to San Francisco to join the staff of then-U.S. Attorney Cecil Poole as an assistant United States attorney.

"It was here," he recalled, "that I had my first contact with the 'ordinary people' in the courts — people accused of violating draft and drug laws."

The slow change began then. It accelerated when Metzger refused to prosecute a young man for a Selective Service violation on the grounds the defendant had been illegally reclassified 1-A by his draft board.

Metzger stayed on at the U. S. Attorney's office, though, and prosecuted Frank N. Werber, former manager of the Kingston Trio, who was accused of illegally importing marijuana.

After Werber was acquitted by the jury, Metzger resigned and joined the law firm which had defended Werber.

He feels that drug laws, contrary to their professed purpose of preventing a harmful activity, actually encourage drug use among the young by making it seem glamorous.

"I see dissatisfaction, disaffection and alienation among young people. Nothing will help the drug situation until the government shows it's really concerned about kids and their welfare," he said. "Those in power must be wearing blinders to be as shortsighted as they are. They have no idea what resentment they're causing" by arresting drug offenders.

If conditions don't change, Metzger foresees a growing possibility of armed conflict. "Youths have lost faith in the Establishment as it exists today, but they're not organized enough to do a great deal about it."

Is there a generation gap? Certainly, he believes, "but it's not divided by age. Some people over 30 think young, and a lot of chronologically young people think old," he said.

Is Metzger a radical? "If you mean do I see need for a sweeping reorganization of the power structure, yes. But as long as this is a country of law I believe in change within the system."

Metzger cautioned the reporter against making him appear too radical. "We've got a great country. It could be a Garden of Eden, an example for the rest of the world, but it needs a lot of change," he said.

Basically, today's youth wants to believe as he does, Metzger said. "The average kid doesn't buy all that radical talk. Part of him wants to believe this is a good country.

"But when he gets busted for dope and the cops sit on the witness stand and lie about how the contraband was found and the judge believes him, kids turn into real haters and hard-core radicals.

Metzger, casually clad in bell-bottoms, a blue work shirt and loafers, said he has no personal stake in fighting for the relaxation of marijuana laws. "I don't smoke the stuff; good Scotch whiskey is my bag."

The solution to the marijuana problem — if one concedes there is one, and Metzger doesn't — is for the government to realize that ours is a drug culture and that marijuana, which has been used for 5,000 years, is a harmless weed, he said.

Instead, pot laws are being used as a "political weapon in an attempt to silent those who oppose the government," he said, "myself included."

If there's a revolution, enforcement of unjust drug laws won't cause it but will be a factor," said Metzger. "Add narcotics laws to other grievances and violence just might happen."

"When the young generation comes into power and control of destiny, I believe it will look back on this period as one of the blackest in American history, equal to the genocide of the American Indian."

Youth Attacked By Classmates

A 14-year-old Martin Luther King School student was hospitalized today with a head injury apparently received when he was attacked yesterday by two classmates who jumped him during a break between classes.

David Swift of 520 Spring Street, Sausalito, was reported in satisfactory condition at Marin General Hospital.

Lawrence A. Lindberg, superintendent of the Sausalito School District, said today that two eighth grade boys have been suspended while school officials investigate the attack.

He said that Swift was apparently beaten by two boys in a corridor of the school about 11 a.m. No disciplinary action except the suspension has been taken against the boys yet, he said.

Lindberg declined to speculate whether the attack by two black youths on Swift, who is white, had racial overtones, saying only that Martin Luther King School is "fully integrated" and that other motives might be involved.

Henry E. Hopkins, principal of the school, who, according to Lindberg knew more details of the incident, was not available for comment today. The Sausalito Police Department also refused to tell details of a report taken by officers.

Minor Injuries In Auto Crash

A Walnut Creek woman suffered minor injuries last night when her car rammed a bridge railing on Highway 101 in Petaluma, the California Highway Patrol reported.

Pearl Reichel, 23, was treated at Hillcrest Hospital for a bloody nose and a head bump.

Officers said the driver told them she lost control of her vehicle when another auto made a sharp passing movement while both were southbound on the freeway. The accident occurred about 9:10 p.m. near the offramp to Route 12.

Pleas Due In Marin Kidnap Case

Three men were arraigned yesterday in Marin Municipal Court on charges of kidnapping a woman who was hitchhiking from Sausalito to Corte Madera.

Abel Homer Carrasco, 22, of Chico; David Hernandez, 26, and Juan Hernandez Medina, 33, both of San Francisco, were to plead to the charges today.

Judge Robert A. Smallman yesterday set bail on the men at $5,000 each.

The three were arrested by Sausalito police early yesterday after they allegedly picked up Karin M. Kellam, 26, of Millbrae, who was hitchhiking with Glenn I. Shear, 21, of Sausalito. At Corte Madera the trio forced Shear out of their car and sped off, police said.

Sausalito police stopped the car at an entrance to Highway 101 and freed Miss Kellam who told officers the men were stripping her when the car was stopped.

Welfare Checks Mailed On Time

About 4,500 welfare recipients in Marin County will get their May checks on time tomorrow because the state has advanced the funds.

Marin County Auditor-Controller Michael Mitchell said he received money this morning from the state to cover a delay in federal funds which had threatened to hold up the welfare checks for a few days. The welfare checks, tolalling $750,000, were mailed to Marin recipients today.

In the past, the federal share of the welfare funds had been sent to the states several days before the end of the month. But this week, federal authorities announced a new policy of not releasing federal funds "before the first of the month."

Mitchell was caught in a dilemma because the state law says he must deliver the welfare checks on the first postal day of each month. But Mitchell was not about to issue the checks until he had the federal and state funds in the county treasury. "I wasn't about to write $750,000 in checks without funds to cover them,'' said Mitchell.

In Sacramento, Deputy State Controller Ralph I. McCarthy said the state has decided to advance funds each month to cover the time lag caused by the new federal policy.

Final Search In Dog Bite Case

Novato police today were making a last-day search for a black dog who bit a 14-year-old boy Wednesday.

If the dog isn't located by tomorrow, Dan M. Liegl of 730 Bradley Avenue will have to undergo antirabies treatment.

Liegl was bitten on the upper right leg by a small, short-haired black dog with a white spot on the crest of his breast at 4:06 p.m. Wednesday near 717 Del Mar Avenue.

An intensive check including door to door checking hadn't shown any results, but this morning police were working on two leads offered by high school students.

Mock Nuclear Accident Staged At Hamilton For City Officials

Hamilton Air Force Base, which has planes that can carry nuclear weapons, yesterday demonstrated its preparations for coping with the worst.

In this case the worst would be the crash of a plane carrying a nuclear weapon followed by fire and detonation of high explosives in the weapon.

Emergency crews carried out their tasks during a simulated crash before about 60 city officials and pressmen during a disaster preparedness briefing.

The Air Force has had some nuclear accidents, but "no nuclear yields," reported Lt. Raymond W. Davies, base disaster preparedness officer.

There has never been an accidental nuclear detonation in a crash, Davies said. When referring to detonation, "We are speaking of the high explosive component of the nuclear weapon," he explained to the visitors seated in bleachers swept by chilly wind, when the exercise began.

First, there was a report that a plane 15 miles east of the base, with "Class A explosives aboard," was coming in with two engines out and a faulty landing gear and "six souls aboard."

Then came the word that it was a "potential broken arrow" and disaster forces moved since "broken arrow" is the code name for an accident involving nuclear weapons.

Fire engines and ambulances raced toward a cloud of white smoke marking the site of the crash and the disaster control unit set up a command post, outside the danger area.

Minutes later there was a cloud of yellow smoke signifying that the fire had reached the nuclear weapons, and the disaster crews had four minutes to clear the area.

They drew back beyond the danger area, 2,000 feet, and took cover behind their vehicles for protection from the forthcoming explosion.

Then a cloud of red smoke signified that the explosives had detonated.

Two members of the Explosive Ordinance Disposal unit, wearing yellow protective clothing and gas masks then went into the crash area to monitor for radiation.

They called back their findings in code, "10,000 apples, 18,000 apples, but no bananas or grapes," and so on until the final message as they neared the downed plane . . . "37,000 apples."

When they completed their job, they returned to the decontamination area where they were checked for radioactivity.

"The danger of contamination is just in the immediate vicinity of the crash, 2,000 feet," Davies said. The radiation is from the radiological components of the nuclear weapon and "isn't fallout," he said.

The recovery job involving disarming and removing the nuclear weapons wasn't demonstrated. It was explained that such a task could take months, as it did when a nuclear weapon was lost in Spain.

Earlier Air Force officers told city officials, mainly firemen and law enforcement officers, how the base and the civilian authorities can cooperate in the event of plane crashes, disasters or demonstrations.

Lt. William B. Slagle Jr., security officer, said that the Air Force would attempt to keep civil disturbances "off the base," and in such cases would need the assistant of local police and sheriff's deputies.

If there are demonstrations in cities, the Air Force can offer some types of aid such as "billeting," he said. Before Air Force personnel, ammunition, cars or planes could be used there would have to be approval from the Department of Defense, he said.

Attorney Sees System Making Youth Haters

By GEORGE NEVIN

(Fifth in a series of 24 raps)

MICHAEL H. METZGER
"Youth wants to believe . . ."

Most youths today want to work within the system to bring about change, but enforcement of unjust laws and the prosecution of an unjust war is turning them into "haters."

This is the contention of 33-year-old Michael H. Metzger, the Sausalito attorney whose own arrest last year on suspicion of drug possession confirmed his feeling that "the police and courts are being used as instruments of oppression."

Charges against Metzger, one of San Francisco's so-called dope lawyers, were dismissed in Marin Superior Court last month on the grounds that an informer used a ruse to gain entry to Metzger's Sausalito home.

The attorney, whose clients usually are accused of violating Selective Service or narcotics laws, didn't arrive at his present way of thinking overnight. "I used to be a member of the Establishment. The change was a long, slow one," he said.

If any man should have remained a member of the Establishment, it would seem Metzger should have. Born the son of a wealthy clothing manufacturer, Metzger, by his own account, grew up "in the lap of luxury" in New York.

To satisfy a vague desire to make the world a better place, Metzger attended law school, graduating near the top of his class, and then turned down offers to join prestigious New York law firms to become head of the rackets bureau in the New York district attorney's office.

Metzger showed an Independent-Journal reporter books of press clippings on his racket-busting days, which credited him with the conviction of influential men in and near government for corruption, bribery and price-fixing.

After five-and-one-half years, Metzger moved to San Francisco to join the staff of then-U.S. Attorney Cecil Poole as an assistant United States attorney.

"It was here," he recalled, "that I had my first contact with the 'ordinary people' in the courts — people accused of violating draft and drug laws."

The slow change began then. It accelerated when Metzger refused to prosecute a young man for a Selective Service violation on the grounds the defendant had been illegally reclassified 1-A by his draft board.

Metzger stayed on at the U. S. Attorney's office, though, and prosecuted Frank N. Werber, former manager of the Kingston Trio, who was accused of illegally importing marijuana.

After Werber was acquitted by the jury, Metzger resigned and joined the law firm which had defended Werber.

He feels that drug laws, contrary to their professed purpose of preventing a harmful activity, actually encourage drug use among the young by making it seem glamorous.

"I see dissatisfaction, disaffection and alienation among young people. Nothing will help the drug situation until the government shows it's really concerned about kids and their welfare," he said. "Those in power must be wearing blinders to be as shortsighted as they are. They have no idea what resentment they're causing" by arresting drug offenders.

If conditions don't change, Metzger foresees a growing possibility of armed conflict. "Youths have lost faith in the Establishment as it exists today, but they're not organized enough to do a great deal about it."

Is there a generation gap? Certainly, he believes, "but it's not divided by age. Some people over 30 think young, and a lot of chronologically young people think old," he said.

Is Metzger a radical? "If you mean do I see need for a sweeping reorganization of the power structure, yes. But as long as this is a country of law I believe in change within the system."

Metzger cautioned the reporter against making him appear too radical. "We've got a great country. It could be a Garden of Eden, an example for the rest of the world, but it needs a lot of change," he said.

Basically, today's youth wants to believe as he does, Metzger said. "The average kid doesn't buy all that radical talk. Part of him wants to believe this is a good country.

"But when he gets busted for dope and the cops sit on the witness stand and lie about how the contraband was found and the judge believes him, kids turn into real haters and hard-core radicals.

Metzger, casually clad in bell-bottoms, a blue work shirt and loafers, said he has no personal stake in fighting for the relaxation of marijuana laws. "I don't smoke the stuff; good Scotch whiskey is my bag."

The solution to the marijuana problem — if one concedes there is one, and Metzger doesn't — is for the government to realize that ours is a drug culture and that marijuana, which has been used for 5,000 years, is a harmless weed, he said.

Instead, pot laws are being used as a "political weapon in an attempt to silent those who oppose the government," he said, "myself included."

If there's a revolution, enforcement of unjust drug laws won't cause it but will be a factor," said Metzger. "Add narcotics laws to other grievances and violence just might happen."

"When the young generation comes into power and control of destiny, I believe it will look back on this period as one of the blackest in American history, equal to the genocide of the American Indian."

Youth Attacked By Classmates

A 14-year-old Martin Luther King School student was hospitalized today with a head injury apparently received when he was attacked yesterday by two classmates who jumped him during a break between classes.

David Swift of 520 Spring Street, Sausalito, was reported in satisfactory condition at Marin General Hospital.

Lawrence A. Lindberg, superintendent of the Sausalito School District, said today that two eighth grade boys have been suspended while school officials investigate the attack.

He said that Swift was apparently beaten by two boys in a corridor of the school about 11 a.m. No disciplinary action except the suspension has been taken against the boys yet, he said.

Lindberg declined to speculate whether the attack by two black youths on Swift, who is white, had racial overtones, saying only that Martin Luther King School is "fully integrated" and that other motives might be involved.

Henry E. Hopkins, principal of the school, who, according to Lindberg knew more details of the incident, was not available for comment today. The Sausalito Police Department also refused to tell details of a report taken by officers.

Minor Injuries In Auto Crash

A Walnut Creek woman suffered minor injuries last night when her car rammed a bridge railing on Highway 101 in Petaluma, the California Highway Patrol reported.

Pearl Reichel, 23, was treated at Hillcrest Hospital for a bloody nose and a head bump.

Officers said the driver told them she lost control of her vehicle when another auto made a sharp passing movement while both were southbound on the freeway. The accident occurred about 9:10 p.m. near the offramp to Route 12.

Pleas Due In Marin Kidnap Case

Three men were arraigned yesterday in Marin Municipal Court on charges of kidnapping a woman who was hitchhiking from Sausalito to Corte Madera.

Abel Homer Carrasco, 22, of Chico; David Hernandez, 26, and Juan Hernandez Medina, 33, both of San Francisco, were to plead to the charges today.

Judge Robert A. Smallman yesterday set bail on the men at $5,000 each.

The three were arrested by Sausalito police early yesterday after they allegedly picked up Karin M. Kellam, 26, of Millbrae, who was hitchhiking with Glenn I. Shear, 21, of Sausalito. At Corte Madera the trio forced Shear out of their car and sped off, police said.

Sausalito police stopped the car at an entrance to Highway 101 and freed Miss Kellam who told officers the men were stripping her when the car was stopped.

Welfare Checks Mailed On Time

About 4,500 welfare recipients in Marin County will get their May checks on time tomorrow because the state has advanced the funds.

Marin County Auditor-Controller Michael Mitchell said he received money this morning from the state to cover a delay in federal funds which had threatened to hold up the welfare checks for a few days. The welfare checks, tolalling $750,000, were mailed to Marin recipients today.

In the past, the federal share of the welfare funds had been sent to the states several days before the end of the month. But this week, federal authorities announced a new policy of not releasing federal funds "before the first of the month."

Mitchell was caught in a dilemma because the state law says he must deliver the welfare checks on the first postal day of each month. But Mitchell was not about to issue the checks until he had the federal and state funds in the county treasury. "I wasn't about to write $750,000 in checks without funds to cover them,'' said Mitchell.

In Sacramento, Deputy State Controller Ralph I. McCarthy said the state has decided to advance funds each month to cover the time lag caused by the new federal policy.

Final Search In Dog Bite Case

Novato police today were making a last-day search for a black dog who bit a 14-year-old boy Wednesday.

If the dog isn't located by tomorrow, Dan M. Liegl of 730 Bradley Avenue will have to undergo antirabies treatment.

Liegl was bitten on the upper right leg by a small, short-haired black dog with a white spot on the crest of his breast at 4:06 p.m. Wednesday near 717 Del Mar Avenue.

An intensive check including door to door checking hadn't shown any results, but this morning police were working on two leads offered by high school students.

Mock Nuclear Accident Staged At Hamilton For City Officials

Hamilton Air Force Base, which has planes that can carry nuclear weapons, yesterday demonstrated its preparations for coping with the worst.

In this case the worst would be the crash of a plane carrying a nuclear weapon followed by fire and detonation of high explosives in the weapon.

Emergency crews carried out their tasks during a simulated crash before about 60 city officials and pressmen during a disaster preparedness briefing.

The Air Force has had some nuclear accidents, but "no nuclear yields," reported Lt. Raymond W. Davies, base disaster preparedness officer.

There has never been an accidental nuclear detonation in a crash, Davies said. When referring to detonation, "We are speaking of the high explosive component of the nuclear weapon," he explained to the visitors seated in bleachers swept by chilly wind, when the exercise began.

First, there was a report that a plane 15 miles east of the base, with "Class A explosives aboard," was coming in with two engines out and a faulty landing gear and "six souls aboard."

Then came the word that it was a "potential broken arrow" and disaster forces moved since "broken arrow" is the code name for an accident involving nuclear weapons.

Fire engines and ambulances raced toward a cloud of white smoke marking the site of the crash and the disaster control unit set up a command post, outside the danger area.

Minutes later there was a cloud of yellow smoke signifying that the fire had reached the nuclear weapons, and the disaster crews had four minutes to clear the area.

They drew back beyond the danger area, 2,000 feet, and took cover behind their vehicles for protection from the forthcoming explosion.

Then a cloud of red smoke signified that the explosives had detonated.

Two members of the Explosive Ordinance Disposal unit, wearing yellow protective clothing and gas masks then went into the crash area to monitor for radiation.

They called back their findings in code, "10,000 apples, 18,000 apples, but no bananas or grapes," and so on until the final message as they neared the downed plane . . . "37,000 apples."

When they completed their job, they returned to the decontamination area where they were checked for radioactivity.

"The danger of contamination is just in the immediate vicinity of the crash, 2,000 feet," Davies said. The radiation is from the radiological components of the nuclear weapon and "isn't fallout," he said.

The recovery job involving disarming and removing the nuclear weapons wasn't demonstrated. It was explained that such a task could take months, as it did when a nuclear weapon was lost in Spain.

Earlier Air Force officers told city officials, mainly firemen and law enforcement officers, how the base and the civilian authorities can cooperate in the event of plane crashes, disasters or demonstrations.

Lt. William B. Slagle Jr., security officer, said that the Air Force would attempt to keep civil disturbances "off the base," and in such cases would need the assistant of local police and sheriff's deputies.

If there are demonstrations in cities, the Air Force can offer some types of aid such as "billeting," he said. Before Air Force personnel, ammunition, cars or planes could be used there would have to be approval from the Department of Defense, he said.

Trial Scheduled In Marijuana Possession Case

I-J Special Report

OAKLAND — A West Marin physician has been scheduled for trial Wednesday on marijuana possession following more than two years of court appearances concerning the constitutionality of the seizure of the evidence.

Dr. William E. Kaye of 40 Manana Way, Point Reyes Station appeared yesterday in Alameda Superior Court where the date for his trial was set.

Kaye and John C. Frankling of no known address were arrested Jan. 11, 1969, on suspicion of possessing marijuana when police were called to Kaye's home, then in Berkeley, because of an alleged disturbance.

Kaye's subsequent petition that the evidence was seized unconstitutionally was upheld by Judge George W. Phillips Jr. who ruled the evidence be suppressed. That decision was appealed and reversed by an appellate court in December 1970, and the evidence will be used in the trial, according to Tom Condit, Alameda County deputy district attorney.

Frankling did not appear in court and a bench warrant was issued for his arrest, according to Condit.

Democrats To Discuss Reforms

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — Party reforms will be discussed by Democrats in the Sixth Congressional District, which includes most of Marin and western San Francisco, at 1:30 p.m. tomorrow at Mission United Presbyterian Church, 23rd and Capp streets, San Francisco.

The caucus, open to all registered Democrats in the district, will discuss reforms proposed in January by a party commission. The reforms include basing local central committees on Assembly district lines instead of on county and congressional district lines, expansion of the state chairman's powers, party identification of candidates in local elections, and pre-primary endorsement of candidates by the state central committee.

Astronaut Chides Moon Trip Critics

HOUSTON (UPI)—Astronaut Eugene A. Cernan says the United States definitely should commit itself to staying first in space and scoffed at space critics who ask "what difference does it make?"

"How would they feel if on the moon today instead of the Stars and Stripes there was a Hammer and Sickle?" Cernan, who flew on Gemini 9 and Apollo 10 and was backup pilot for Apollo 14, asked a Rotary Club Thursday.

HOW TO PLAY WINNING BRIDGE

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

This Hand Is Even Heavy Burden On A Superior Player

A bridge player must have a heart of stone if he can read today's sad story without laughing. The hero of our little tale is a very good bridge player, much better than anybody he plays with — as he takes care to let them know. In spite of this, few of his opponents are really fond of him. The burden of the superior man is a very heavy one. Heavier than ever since the hand shown today.

FIRST TRICKS

East took the first two tricks with the king and ace of diamonds, wondering how he was going to get two trump tricks to defeat the contract. He could see a safety play coming unless he could find a way to mislead declarer.

While East gathered in the first two tricks, South (our hero) prepared to play the trumps to best advantage. Experienced players will agree with South that the right way is to cash the ace of hearts first. Then South must clear the ace of spades out of the way, get to dummy with a club to discard a club on the king of spades and then lead a trump. If East plays low, South must take a safety finesse with the ten.

If West is able to win the trick with the queen or jack of hearts, only one trump will be left outstanding; and South can later pick that trump up with the king. If West is unable to beat the ten of hearts, the deep finesse will be necessary to prevent the loss of two trump tricks.

ODD SWITCH

While South was planning the play of the trumps, East led the deuce of clubs to the third trick. This strange play up to dummy's strength was an obvious singleton, South announced. (He believed in letting the opponents know how transparent their little devices were.)

"This is the wrong time for a safety play," South continued. "I can't afford to let you ruff a club," he told East. And declarer forthwith led out the ace and king of trumps. This gave East two trump tricks to defeat the contract.

The saddest part of the story is that East and West often remind South of this hand.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with one heart, and the next player passes.

You hold:
♠ - J 8 4
♥ - Q J 5 3
♦ - A K 5
♣ - 8 6 2.

What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid two diamonds. The hand is too strong for a raise to two hearts, but not strong enough for a jump to three hearts. Bid a side suit, even a "phony" suit, and raise the hearts later to describe your strength.

Danes Are Mapping Country's Pollution

COPENHAGEN (UPI)—The Danish Pollution Council plans to make a "Pollution Atlas" of the country. All local authorities have been asked to supply information on water and environment.

"The country is in a mess but before we have a full view of the situation the politicians can take no real action," said Joergen Qvist, head of the council's administration.

ALMANAC

Today is Friday, April 30, the 120th day of 1971.

The moon is between its new phase and first quarter. The morning stars are Mercury, Venus, Mars and Jupiter. The evening star is Saturn.

Those born on this day are under the sign of Taurus.

Queen Juliana of The Netherlands was born April 30, 1909.

On this day in history:

In 1803 the United States more than doubled its land area with the Louisiana Purchase, obtaining all French territory west of the Mississippi River for $15 million.

In 1945 the body of Adolph Hitler was found in a bunker under the ruins of Berlin. The Nazi dictator apparently killed himself.

Also in 1945 Russian soldiers captured the Reichstag in Berlin, raising the Communist flag over the Nazi capital.

In 1963 New Hampshire became the first state to legalize a state-run lottery since 1894 when a similar one was ended in Louisiana.

A thought for today: American author Edward Newton said, "From contemplation one may become wise, but knowledge comes from study."

'Antipeonage' Bill For Mental Patients

NEW YORK (UPI)—Indiana has enacted legislation to compensate patients in mental hospitals for tasks performed just as if they were outside employes.

The National Association for Mental Health, Inc., said the state is the first in the country to enact "anti-peonage" legislation. The rate of pay to the patients will be set by a remuneration board.

Trial Scheduled In Marijuana Possession Case

I-J Special Report

OAKLAND — A West Marin physician has been scheduled for trial Wednesday on marijuana possession following more than two years of court appearances concerning the constitutionality of the seizure of the evidence.

Dr. William E. Kaye of 40 Manana Way, Point Reyes Station appeared yesterday in Alameda Superior Court where the date for his trial was set.

Kaye and John C. Frankling of no known address were arrested Jan. 11, 1969, on suspicion of possessing marijuana when police were called to Kaye's home, then in Berkeley, because of an alleged disturbance.

Kaye's subsequent petition that the evidence was seized unconstitutionally was upheld by Judge George W. Phillips Jr. who ruled the evidence be suppressed. That decision was appealed and reversed by an appellate court in December 1970, and the evidence will be used in the trial, according to Tom Condit, Alameda County deputy district attorney.

Frankling did not appear in court and a bench warrant was issued for his arrest, according to Condit.

Democrats To Discuss Reforms

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — Party reforms will be discussed by Democrats in the Sixth Congressional District, which includes most of Marin and western San Francisco, at 1:30 p.m. tomorrow at Mission United Presbyterian Church, 23rd and Capp streets, San Francisco.

The caucus, open to all registered Democrats in the district, will discuss reforms proposed in January by a party commission. The reforms include basing local central committees on Assembly district lines instead of on county and congressional district lines, expansion of the state chairman's powers, party identification of candidates in local elections, and pre-primary endorsement of candidates by the state central committee.

Astronaut Chides Moon Trip Critics

HOUSTON (UPI)—Astronaut Eugene A. Cernan says the United States definitely should commit itself to staying first in space and scoffed at space critics who ask "what difference does it make?"

"How would they feel if on the moon today instead of the Stars and Stripes there was a Hammer and Sickle?" Cernan, who flew on Gemini 9 and Apollo 10 and was backup pilot for Apollo 14, asked a Rotary Club Thursday.

Fine Ordered In Case Linked To Marijuana

Brian V. Beard, 26, of Marin City, has been ordered to pay a $50 fine or serve three days in jail, after pleading guilty in Marin Municipal Court to a misdemeanor charge of being in a place where marijuana is used.

The place happened to be Marin County Jail.

Beard was originally charged with a misdemeanor count of possessing marijuana after a pot cigarette was found in his pocket March 23 when bailiffs were booking him into jail to serve a 50-day sentence for resisting a public officer in a 1969 scuffle.

Beard pleaded innocent to the pot possessing charge, but changed his plea to guilty to the charge of being in a place where pot is used.

Judge Peter Allen Smith also placed Beard on probation for one year.

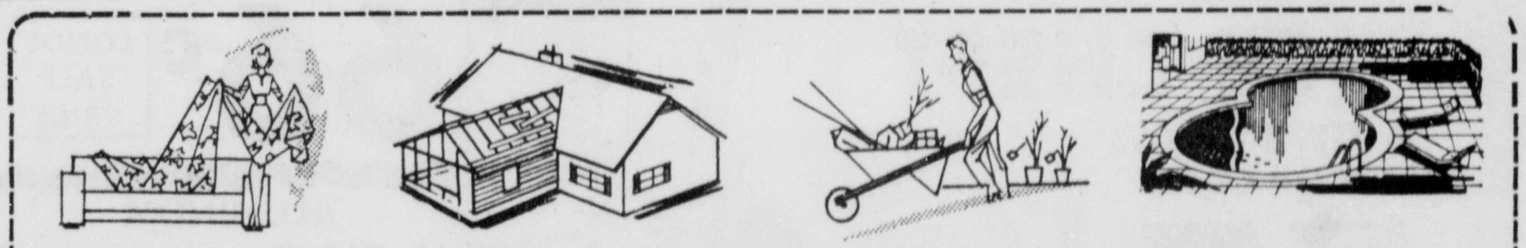
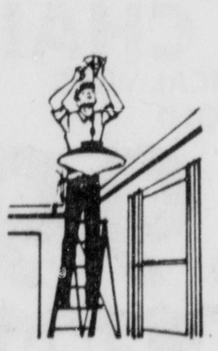
"Everlasting Punishment"





Coming this Saturday in Marin Magazine

Special features you'll enjoy:

Little Cathy Mouchka is a 5-year-old kindergarten student at the Garden School on the Dominican College campus in San Rafael. Like other tykes, she studies, she plays and she creates. But in some ways, Cathy is very different from her schoolmates. She is almost totally deaf and blind. How this courageous little girl is able to attend a regular school and to live a nearly normal life is the subject of a feature story written by Dorothy Gardiner in which the Marin Magazine takes special pride.

There has been a reawakening of interest in the hand crafts. And fine stitchery has been one of the new enthusiasms. Not really new, of course. For earlier generations engaged in elaborate embroidery, crocheting, sewing, etc. Those attending next weekend's Stitchery Faire at the Antiquary in San Anselmo, May 8 and 9, will be reminded of the skill of our ancestors by a special display of a collection owned by Mrs. Neil Burton of Kentfield. It is the work of three generations of her family, all of them interesting as well as gifted personalities.

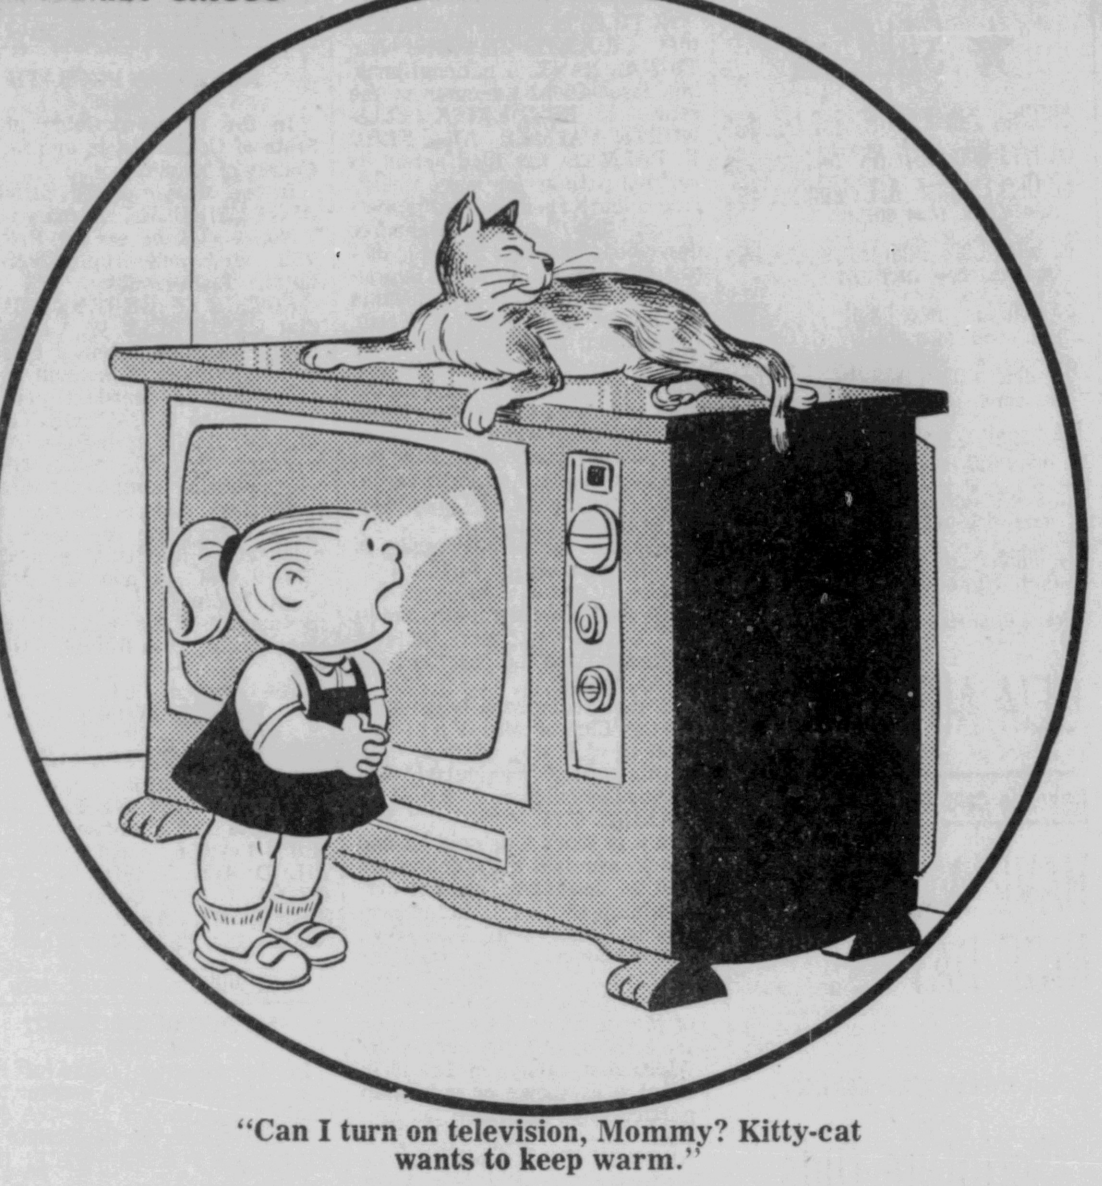
THE FAMILY CIRCUS



"Can I turn on television, Mommy? Kitty-cat wants to keep warm."

ALMANAC

Today is Friday, April 30, the 120th day of 1971.

The moon is between its new phase and first quarter. The morning stars are Mercury, Venus, Mars and Jupiter. The evening star is Saturn.

Those born on this day are under the sign of Taurus.

Queen Juliana of The Netherlands was born April 30, 1909.

On this day in history:

In 1803 the United States more than doubled its land area with the Louisiana Purchase, obtaining all French territory west of the Mississippi River for $15 million.

In 1945 the body of Adolph Hitler was found in a bunker under the ruins of Berlin. The Nazi dictator apparently killed himself.

Also in 1945 Russian soldiers captured the Reichstag in Berlin, raising the Communist flag over the Nazi capital.

In 1963 New Hampshire became the first state to legalize a state-run lottery since 1894 when a similar one was ended in Louisiana.

A thought for today: American author Edward Newton said, "From contemplation one may become wise, but knowledge comes from study."

HOW TO PLAY

WINNING BRIDGE

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

This Hand Is Even Heavy Burden On A Superior Player

A bridge player must have a heart of stone if he can read today's sad story without laughing. The hero of our little tale is a very good bridge player, much better than anybody he plays with — as he takes care to let them know. In spite of this, few of his opponents are really fond of him. The burden of the superior man is a very heavy one. Heavier than ever since the hand shown today.

FIRST TRICKS

East took the first two tricks with the king and ace of diamonds, wondering how he was going to get two trump tricks to defeat the contract. He could see a safety play coming unless he could find a way to mislead declarer.

While East gathered in the first two tricks, South (our hero) prepared to play the trumps to best advantage. Experienced players will agree with South that the right way is to cash the ace of hearts first. Then South must clear the ace of spades out of the way, get to dummy with a club to discard a club on the king of spades and then lead a trump. If East plays low, South must take a safety finesse with the ten.

If West is able to win the trick with the queen or jack of hearts, only one trump will be left outstanding; and South can later pick that trump up with the king. If West is unable to beat the ten of hearts, the deep finesse will be necessary to prevent the loss of two trump tricks.

ODD SWITCH

While South was planning the play of the trumps, East led the deuce of clubs to the third trick. This strange play up to dummy's strength was an obvious singleton, South announced. (He believed in letting the opponents know how transparent their little devices were.)

"This is the wrong time for a safety play," South continued. "I can't afford to let you ruff a club," he told East. And declarer forthwith led out the ace and king of trumps. This gave East two trump tricks to defeat the contract.

The saddest part of the story is that East and West often remind South of this hand.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with one heart, and the next player passes.

You hold:
♠ - J 8 4
♥ - Q J 5 3
♦ - A K 5
♣ - 8 6 2.

What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid two diamonds.

The hand is too strong for a raise to two hearts, but not strong enough for a jump to three hearts. Bid a side suit, even a "phony" suit, and raise the hearts later to describe your strength.

Danes Are Mapping Country's Pollution

COPENHAGEN (UPI)—The Danish Pollution Council plans to make a "Pollution Atlas" of the country. All local authorities have been asked to supply information on water and environment.

"The country is in a mess but before we have a full view of the situation the politicians can take no real action," said Joergen Qvist, head of the council's administration.

'Antipeonage' Bill For Mental Patients

NEW YORK (UPI)—Indiana has enacted legislation to compensate patients in mental hospitals for tasks performed just as if they were outside employes.

The National Association for Mental Health, Inc., said the state is the first in the country to enact "anti-peonage" legislation. The rate of pay to the patients will be set by a remuneration board.

Fine Ordered In Case Linked To Marijuana

Brian V. Beard, 26, of Marin City, has been ordered to pay a $50 fine or serve three days in jail, after pleading guilty in Marin Municipal Court to a misdemeanor charge of being in a place where marijuana is used.

The place happened to be Marin County Jail.

Beard was originally charged with a misdemeanor count of possessing marijuana after a pot cigarette was found in his pocket March 23 when bailiffs were booking him into jail to serve a 50-day sentence for resisting a public officer in a 1969 scuffle.

Beard pleaded innocent to the pot possessing charge, but changed his plea to guilty to the charge of being in a place where pot is used.

Judge Peter Allen Smith also placed Beard on probation for one year.

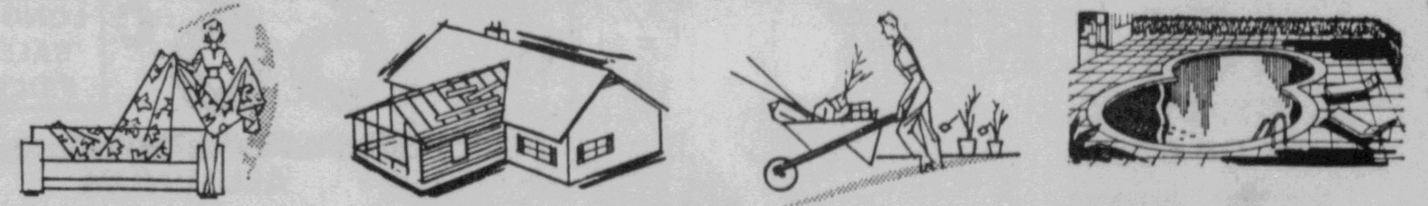
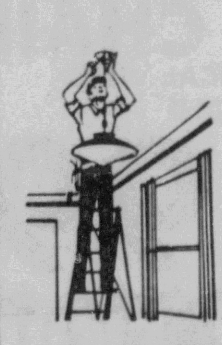
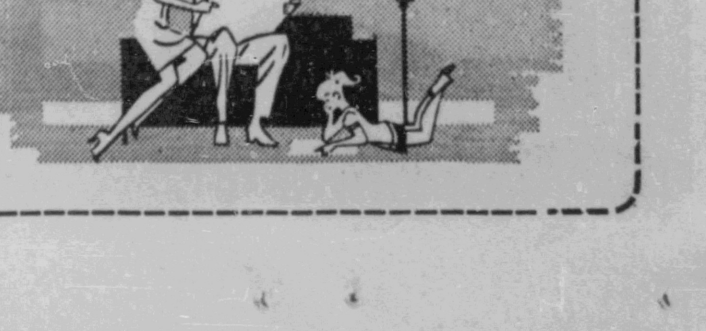
"Everlasting Punishment"







Coming this Saturday in Marin Magazine

Special features you'll enjoy:

Little Cathy Mouchka is a 5-year-old kindergarten student at the Garden School on the Dominican College campus in San Rafael. Like other tykes, she studies, she plays and she creates. But in some ways, Cathy is very different from her schoolmates. She is almost totally deaf and blind. How this courageous little girl is able to attend a regular school and to live a nearly normal life is the subject of a feature story written by Dorothy Gardiner in which the Marin Magazine takes special pride.

There has been a reawakening of interest in the hand crafts. And fine stitchery has been one of the new enthusiasms. Not really new, of course. For earlier generations engaged in elaborate embroidery, crocheting, sewing, etc. Those attending next weekend's Stitchery Faire at the Antiquary in San Anselmo, May 8 and 9, will be reminded of the skill of our ancestors by a special display of a collection owned by Mrs. Neil Burton of Kentfield. It is the work of three generations of her family, all of them interesting as well as gifted personalities.

HOMEMAKER AND PHYSICIAN

Petaluman's 38 Years In Medicine

RAMBLING ROWS of roses, especially miniatures, are a favorite of Mrs. Stanley Seidell, who is known throughout Sonoma County as Dr. Kathleen G. Morris. Retired after 38 years of medical practice she has more time to enjoy the garden flowers and vegetables she has cultivated as a way to relax and unwind at her Petaluma home. Many of her patients fondly recall receiving a bouquet of her miniature rosebuds after the birth of a baby or surgery.

By DYANNE FORTNER

A general practitioner is faced daily with multiple challenges. To meet each demand confidently and maintain besides a rapport with the public is a special aptitude. For 38 years one Petaluma woman did both successfully in addition to fulfilling the role of homemaker. What could replace such a pace after her decision to retire from medicine?

"I'm enjoying my retirement as much as I did my medical career," says Mrs. Stanley Seidell of Petaluma.

Known in professional circles as Dr. Kathleen G. Morris and by her patients as Dr. Kay, she is constantly asked by her male colleagues just how she keeps from being bored. As was her habit when she vacationed from her active practice, she doesn't stay at home to rest but busies herself in something actively different.

SHE AND HER HUSBAND have been active Sierra Club members for more than 20 years and she was quick to interject that she prefers the Sierra for hiking than any European mountains. Trail Riders of the Wilderness was another interest of the pair, but Kay Seidell admits she rode only when she was not in shape to walk.

When they vacation it is usually spent travelling around the world, so that Seidell can pursue his favorite hobby, photography. Their three trips to Africa include a tour of Egypt, Morocco and a photographic safari of Kenya, East Africa. They will possibly make one more Africa trip so that they can visit the almost extinct Bushman tribe.

A typical week's activities now for the retired Dr. Morris include a Great Books Literature discussion each Monday morning and creative stitchery classes on Tuesdays. As often as possible she participates in rounds at the U.C. Hospital on Wednesdays, and Thursday mornings are reserved for a body conditioning class, which includes yoga. Friday mornings she visits Petaluma's Hillcrest Hospital for its rounds.

AN INVESTMENT class, trips to San Francisco to visit its museums and oriental treasures, which she feels is the finest in the West, and cultivation of an exquisite flower garden at her home is sandwiched in between her other interests. Many of her patients can fondly recall receiving a bouquet of miniature rose buds from the doctor's prize collection after the birth of a baby or surgery. The Seidells' vast vegetable garden is another hobby; hundreds of seedlings presently border her brick patio, ready for planting.

Born in Petaluma in 1904, Kathleen Morris' father owned and operated a shoe store on then Main Street. Her mother, a Gallagher from Marin County, was a Marin County native whose father quarried Black Hill mountain for basalt blocks to pave the streets of San Francisco.

Their family physician, interestingly enough, was a woman and Mrs. Seidell fondly recalled the late Dr. Ruth Hoffman's liberal prescriptions of sugar pills. "It was a common practice at the start of the century," said Kay Seidell, "especially as a cure-all for children."

"But it was really a close family friend, the late Dr. John Tierney, who reinforced by desire to go into medicine. He was a local veterinarian and his scientific knowledge and conversations fascinated me," she related. Her family also encouraged her education and after graduation from Petaluma High School she attended the University of California at Berkeley. To supplement her income during her undergraduate years she served as a house manager for a sorority. While in her fourth year of premedical studies she submitted her application to medical school along with 300 other students. Sixty were accepted and of those, 10 were women.

She noted it was obvious competition was keen and scholastic ability was the deciding factor. Recently her medical school class held its 40th reunion. Of the 50 students who finished in the class, six were women.

"My medical school partner and I keep in touch. She is also retired and living in San Francisco.

OF COURSE THERE was discrimination against women in medicine at the time I was in school, but it was the faculty, not the students," she remembered. The late Dr. Frank Lynch, who in Mrs. Seidell's opinion was an outstanding gynecologist, instilled in her the premise that she aspire to be not only as good as any male student but absolutely better. His assistants were all women, a very independent gesture on his part.

A VACATION is not meant to be used at home resting but to do something different, says Dr. Morris, and travel satisfies this urge for her and her husband. During their third trip to Africa they enjoyed a photographic safari in Kenya and came home with a variety of hand-carved animals and objects. Among them are woven grass and wooden animals and a wooden head rest.

"I enjoyed serving my residency with him. He was definitely a leader," she stated.

Her salary while a resident was $50 a month. While interning, however, it was a mere $10 monthly. To supplement this income she took a job as a night librarian. "We weren't awfully busy at night and I could get a lot of reading done," she said. Her studies continued throughout the 38 years she practiced medicine. Each year she traveled around California to participate in seminars to complete 75 hours of study.

Graduating from medical school in 1931, the middle of the depression, Dr. Mrris returned home to become the first Petaluma-born woman to set up practice in the community. With a loan of $1,500 from a sympathetic banker, she established her first office. An early schedule reflected house calls two and three times daily plus night office hours three times a week.

"Eight of 10 pneumonia cases were treated at home during this time because there were no wonder drugs; no penicillin or sulpha," she said. Hospital fees for maternity patients were $50 for a 10-day period. In the depression most families could ill afford this luxury so many babies were delivered at home. "I much preferred to deliver a baby in the surroundings of a hospital," she said.

She also said that she spent a lot of time during the early days of her practice counseling worried and distraught mothers regarding discipline problems of their children. Offering to serve a local nursery school in an advisory capacity, she encouraged these same mothers to participate in the nursery school program. They would have the advantage of observing other children in relation to their own. Another purpose was to introduce these mothers to other women with similar concerns.

"Parents have the problems, not the children," she emphasized.

SHE DID HAVE time for an active social life, and on a blind date she met her future husband, a young business executive from San Francisco.

Asked how she could maintain a growing practice and courtship, she grinned, "I lost a little sleep but when you're young you can go without." Married 35 years, she readily admitted that organization was the key to her success in combining a career and comfortable home.

"My most dependable assistants were three pressure cookers, usually used all at once, and an electric oven with automatic controls. Inevitably I would get home from the office, have everything spread out to fix dinner and the telephone would ring. It was always a 'tragedy'," she laughed.

"When my husband would arrive home, I'd be gone and the kitchen would be a mess. Leaving notes helped to keep the communication between us alive."

Mrs. Seidell also mentioned that nearly every ski trip they took to Cisco Grove during their early marriage was interrupted with a knock at the door and message, "Dr. Kay had a telephone message and is needed in Petaluma to deliver a baby."

"At that time it took five hours to drive back but I made it every time," she proudly recalled, "but Stan was left to hitch a ride back with friends!"

Involved in the Reach to Recovery Program sponsored by the Sonoma County Chapter of the American Cancer Society, Kay Seidell herself experienced two encounters with the disease. Ten years ago she underwent a successful surgery for cancer of the colon and just three years ago received surgical treatment for cancer of a breast. Following a brief rehabilitation period, her capacities to enjoy her favorite out-of-door activities, hiking, swimming and gardening, are not in the least diminished.

WILD HORSES

Cause Fighter Is Soft Spoken

By RUSSELL NIELSEN

RENO, Nev. (UPI)—The name "Wild Horse Annie" brings forth the image of a huskily-built woman in jeans and boots and a gravelly voice blasting any opponent in the manner of Marjorie Main as Tugboat Annie.

But the real "Wild Horse Annie" is a secretary, a middle-aged widow, soft spoken with a quiet, pleasant personality, sometimes almost shy.

Anyone seeing Mrs. Velma Johnston at her insurance office desk would hardly guess the sustained fighting qualities she shows in her efforts to preserve the last of the nation's wild horses . . . some 17,000 mustangs still roaming the West.

Mrs. Johnston's cause is now before Congress last week she testified at length before subcommittees on public lands. Sen. Henry Jackson, D-Wash., and Rep. Walter S. Baring, D-Nev., a former classmate of Mrs. Johnston's, have introduced identical bills putting the mustangs under control of the Department of Interior.

Legislation under consideration would direct the department to set up refuges on which wild horses and burros would be safe from hunters.

Mrs. Johnston got her moniker 22 years ago when she entered a committee room in the Nevada legislature to plead for passage of a bill to protect the dwindling herds.

"Here comes Wild Horse Annie," muttered an opponent. She has been so-called ever since. She was instrumental in getting enactment of a bill which prohibited use of airplanes or other mechanical devices in capturing wild horses or burros in Nevada. Enforcement was left to local agencies, however, and offtimes was lax.

Mrs. Johnston became a national figure when she went to Washington in 1959 to urge passage of similar legislation by Congress. It was approved, but it has not been effective in protecting the mustang, which to many is a symbol of unbridled freedom and part of the romance of the Old West. That's why Mrs. Johnston continues to press for stronger legislation.

She has the support of many senators and representatives who have bent an ear to the current concern about ecology. She has received thousands of letters, many from school children. One boy collected $10 in nickels and dimes and sent a check to support her efforts.

She is president of the International Society for Protection of Mustangs and Burros which has received many contributions and which underwrote her latest trip to the national capital.

Mrs. Johnston first became keenly sensitive to the fate of the animals when in 1950 she saw horses on a crowded van being taken to a slaughterhouse. She investigated and found hunters used planes and trucks to stampede the animals to the point of exhaustion. Then the horses were herded into trucks and shipped to packing plants to be made into dog food. She thought the fate terrible for animals descended from the horses which strayed from the early Spanish expeditions in the Southwest.

About half the estimated 17,000 remaining mustangs are in Nevada.

Ranchers complain that the horses pollute the water holes and run off domestic horses, many of which join the wild bands.

"These wild horses are not the romantic mustangs you read about roaming the hills," said Nevada Assemblyman Norman Glaser, a rancher. "They are ornery, inbred, roman-nosed maverick cayuses and they are detrimental to fish and game individually and our public resources of grass and feed."

The opposition united at the current legislative session to defeat a bill which would have made the wild horse Nevada's state animal.

Mrs. Johnston and other conservationists are riding tall in the saddle, however, and expect to win the final battle.

John Crow, chief administrator of the Bureau of Land Management, saw the trend some time ago and said the agency expects eventually to become custodian of the wild herds.

"We're getting thousands of letters," he said.

Much of the supporting mail Mrs. Johnston and her group receive comes from persons who never even hope to see the wild horses, she said. "They're just happy to know the horses are still out there somewhere in the West. They're a symbol of the freedom on which our country was founded."

Penngrove Woman Reelected To Post

Reelected president of the North Bay Dairy Women is Mrs. Leo Garzelli of Penngrove.

A six-year member of the organization, she says "We promote the dairy industry and will cooperate with all dairy, farm and community organizations working for the best interests of dairy ranchers."

Membership is open to all women now or formerly associated with the production or processing of milk.

One of the largest endeavors of the club is its participation in the Dairy Princess Ball set May 8 at the Petaluma Veterans Memorial Building. The Garzelli's daughter Pauline is one of the candidates this year.

North Bay Dairy Women also sponsor a booth each June at the Sonoma-Marin Fair plus organize an annual house tour of ranch homes each fall.

Born in San Francisco, Mrs. Garzelli is a graduate of Petaluma High School and has lived her entire life in Sonoma County. She and her husband, a salesman for Moor-Man Mineral, are the parents of Michael, Pauline, 18, and Tommy, 16. She is employed part time by a rest home in Rohnert Park.

Other officers are Mmes. Carl Haderman, first vice president; Fidele Ferraris, second vice president; Duke Christensen, secretary; Newton Petersen, treasurer; Frank LaFranconi, notification secretary; Joseph Schultz, corresponding secretary, and Donald DeBernardi, publicity.

Easy Dresses

Since the easy slip of a dress is back on the current fashion wave length, Adesso does a bevy of little Ban-Lon beauties. One shirtdress shape was mixed colorfully with a lilac skirt joined to a yellow bodice by a green waistband. Pink collar and sleeves were bandbound in blue and green.

The girls spent the winter in Spain and have just returned to Scarteen. For the next two months Mrs. Corliss and her daughters will travel in Europe seeing the places Dana has enjoyed most as well as some that will be new to her also.

HELEN HELP US!

By HELEN BOTTEL

Maternity Home Offers Aid And Comfort To Pregnant Woman

DEAR HELEN:

I have noticed that you receive letters from distraught girls and women who are pregnant and not married. At times, these girls feel there has to be a drastic, quick solution, and this decision is reached under pressure. Sometimes they feel that they must marry the man or boy when they would not have done so if not pregnant. Some think that abortion is the only answer.

This is unfortunate, because there are in this country some 200 maternity homes offering specialized professional services to the girl or woman who is pregnant. She may be single, divorced, separated or married. These services include medical care, social work counseling, accredited education, group therapy, adoptive placement if desired, recreational programs and, most important, a climate of acceptance. The girl lives with other girls in an atmosphere which is non-judgmental and supportive.

Maternity homes, nationally, have a lower incidence of health problems, and a lower infant mortality rate than is found elsewhere, even among married women.

For the girl who feels that abortion is the only answer, there are a great number of people waiting to adopt babies. Some adoption agencies can no longer take applications from prospective adoptive parents, since there are so few babies. These couples could provide healthy, happy homes for children who might not otherwise know life. — MATERNITY HOME DIRECTOR

DEAR READERS:

I might also add to this excellent letter that many maternity homes have fees based on the girls' ability to pay. — H.

DEAR HELEN:

My husband and I have been married eight years and have two children. We haven't been out alone together since they have been born, and hardly ever out at all, because 1) he doesn't believe in baby-sitters, and 2) he says it's too much hassle taking the kids anywhere.

I love my children. I love my husband, but not as much as I used to, for all this "togetherness" can pull you apart at the seams. He says if you start going out it becomes a habit.

Am I wrong to be terribly tired of these — FOUR WALLS

DEAR F.W.:

No! You've every right to feel stir-crazy.

Staying home constantly can become a habit too — and a bad one. If you can't nudge your husband off his stump, I'd suggest you let HIM baby-sit while you go out. This may change his attitude — H.

DEAR HELEN:

With Memorial Day coming up, my husband and I had our annual discussion. His first wife has been dead for many years. He still insists on sending money to the cemetery for grave decorations, even though she has several relatives nearby who always take out flowers.

I say this isn't necessary. Who's right? — B.L.

DEAR B.:

You'll be the winner if you lose this argument gracefully. — H.

This column is dedicated to family living, so if you're having kid trouble or just plain trouble, let Helen help you. Address Helen Bottel in care of the Independent-Journal.

Disposables Are New Way Of Life

A journal for pharmacists, "American Druggist", reports that "make it do, use it up, do without" has become an outmoded philosophy. The new view is "use it once and throw it away." Disposable products are often cheaper and healthier, and the list of available items is constantly growing.

Among the newer items: bedsheets, thermometers, ash trays, nightgowns, undershorts, wash cloths, and ice bags. a disposable hair brush is also under consideration, the publication reports.

ON BEING BLACK

Misrepresentation Seems Profitable

By SANDRA HAGGERTY

"It's for a school project," the petite teenager said as she smiled shyly. "We're working on our ability to communicate with people. Could I come in and talk with you for about three minutes and see if you don't get mad at me?"

How could one possibly become angry with this picture of youth, dressed neatly and wearing knee socks and tennis shoes? And who wouldn't be interested in helping an enthusiastic youngster with her school project?

Once inside, the girl warmly made friends with my children and my mother.

Now, about this project, I said.

BUT RATHER than talking about her school project, the girl initiated a discussion about the death of her parents. The story may have been true, but she seemed to stress the point about being an orphan.

Again, I asked about the details of this class project.

Casually, she handed over a list of magazine subscriptions she was selling.

I told her I was already subscribing to those magazines I wished to receive.

"Well," she said sweetly, "but a subscription (any subscription) for one of the local school libraries."

I answered that I was already sharing my magazines or written materials of interest with the local schools I come in contact with.

"Well," Miss Representation went on, "buy a subscription of Ebony for me. You can understand why I'd like to receive a black magazine."

No, but do come back again when you're selling something I really need — like food.

"Well," she signed, "would you rate me?" She handed me a slip of paper with spaces for the customer's signature and a rating.

I filled it out.

She looked at it, surprised. "How come you gave me such a good rating when you didn't buy anything?"

I had rated her as being personable, charming and intelligent. In fact, she was just the kind of young girl I would have been pleased to have as my secretary or a companion for my children.

Of course, such tactics are SOP for some of the magazine sbuscription units that tour the cities using young people as salesmen. Their stories are carefully rehearsed and tear-jerker statements — I'm an orphan or I'm struggling my way through school — are judiciously inserted in the sales pitch.

I liked this young girl immediately and would have subscribed to a magazine to help her out — if she had been honest from the get-go.

Unfortunately, far too many people are taken in by a phony sales pitch, and too many goods and services on the market today are not at all what they are asserted to be or do as stated on the label or in the TV commercial.

It is unfortunate that overall misrepresentation has become so profitable.

This is one potential home customer and I'm sure there are many others in which Miss Representation would have found honesty — a trait which is in danger of becoming tarnished, beyond restoration — to be even more profitable.

Cooking Broccoli

When preparing broccoli, cut a thin slice from the bottom of the stalk, then cut lengthwise slits up the stem almost to the flowerets. This allows the vegetable to cook more evenly. Unless it is done, the flowerets tend to get cooked tender ahead of the stem.

Secretarial Forum Slated May 14-15

"Secretaries Forum '71" will be held May 14 and 15 at the Sir Francis Drake Hotel in San Francisco, sponsored by the University of California Extension.

Cause Of Some Mental Retardation

Severe malnutrition of either the mother, or her baby while in early stages of development, has been found to be the cause of mental retardation, according to the National Society for Medical Research.

The society maintains that an adequate diet from the mother's own birth through growth and reproduction is of utmost importance for both mother and baby.

Dogs' Life

Provide your dog with well-balanced meals, a cozy spot to sleep, some play and praise and a firm hand when needed.

HOMEMAKER AND PHYSICIAN

Petaluman's 38 Years In Medicine

RAMBLING ROWS of roses, especially miniatures, are a favorite of Mrs. Stanley Seidell, who is known throughout Sonoma County as Dr. Kathleen G. Morris. Retired after 38 years of medical practice she has more time to enjoy the garden flowers and vegetables she has cultivated as a way to relax and unwind at her Petaluma home. Many of her patients fondly recall receiving a bouquet of her miniature rosebuds after the birth of a baby or surgery.

By DYANNE FORTNER

A general practitioner is faced daily with multiple challenges. To meet each demand confidently and maintain besides a rapport with the public is a special aptitude. For 38 years one Petaluma woman did both successfully in addition to fulfilling the role of homemaker. What could replace such a pace after her decision to retire from medicine?

"I'm enjoying my retirement as much as I did my medical career," says Mrs. Stanley Seidell of Petaluma.

Known in professional circles as Dr. Kathleen G. Morris and by her patients as Dr. Kay, she is constantly asked by her male colleagues just how she keeps from being bored. As was her habit when she vacationed from her active practice, she doesn't stay at home to rest but busies herself in something actively different.

SHE AND HER HUSBAND have been active Sierra Club members for more than 20 years and she was quick to interject that she prefers the Sierra for hiking than any European mountains. Trail Riders of the Wilderness was another interest of the pair, but Kay Seidell admits she rode only when she was not in shape to walk.

When they vacation it is usually spent travelling around the world, so that Seidell can pursue his favorite hobby, photography. Their three trips to Africa include a tour of Egypt, Morocco and a photographic safari of Kenya, East Africa. They will possibly make one more Africa trip so that they can visit the almost extinct Bushman tribe.

A typical week's activities now for the retired Dr. Morris include a Great Books Literature discussion each Monday morning and creative stitchery classes on Tuesdays. As often as possible she participates in rounds at the U.C. Hospital on Wednesdays, and Thursday mornings are reserved for a body conditioning class, which includes yoga. Friday mornings she visits Petaluma's Hillcrest Hospital for its rounds.

AN INVESTMENT class, trips to San Francisco to visit its museums and oriental treasures, which she feels is the finest in the West, and cultivation of an exquisite flower garden at her home is sandwiched in between her other interests. Many of her patients can fondly recall receiving a bouquet of miniature rose buds from the doctor's prize collection after the birth of a baby or surgery. The Seidells' vast vegetable garden is another hobby; hundreds of seedlings presently border her brick patio, ready for planting.

Born in Petaluma in 1904, Kathleen Morris' father owned and operated a shoe store on then Main Street. Her mother, a Gallagher from Marin County, was a Marin County native whose father quarried Black Hill mountain for basalt blocks to pave the streets of San Francisco.

Their family physician, interestingly enough, was a woman and Mrs. Seidell fondly recalled the late Dr. Ruth Hoffman's liberal prescriptions of sugar pills. "It was a common practice at the start of the century," said Kay Seidell, "especially as a cure-all for children."

"But it was really a close family friend, the late Dr. John Tierney, who reinforced by desire to go into medicine. He was a local veterinarian and his scientific knowledge and conversations fascinated me," she related. Her family also encouraged her education and after graduation from Petaluma High School she attended the University of California at Berkeley. To supplement her income during her undergraduate years she served as a house manager for a sorority. While in her fourth year of premedical studies she submitted her application to medical school along with 300 other students. Sixty were accepted and of those, 10 were women.

She noted it was obvious competition was keen and scholastic ability was the deciding factor. Recently her medical school class held its 40th reunion. Of the 50 students who finished in the class, six were women.

"My medical school partner and I keep in touch. She is also retired and living in San Francisco.

OF COURSE THERE was discrimination against women in medicine at the time I was in school, but it was the faculty, not the students," she remembered. The late Dr. Frank Lynch, who in Mrs. Seidell's opinion was an outstanding gynecologist, instilled in her the premise that she aspire to be not only as good as any male student but absolutely better. His assistants were all women, a very independent gesture on his part.

A VACATION is not meant to be used at home resting but to do something different, says Dr. Morris, and travel satisfies this urge for her and her husband. During their third trip to Africa they enjoyed a photographic safari in Kenya and came home with a variety of hand-carved animals and objects. Among them are woven grass and wooden animals and a wooden head rest.

"I enjoyed serving my residency with him. He was definitely a leader," she stated.

Her salary while a resident was $50 a month. While interning, however, it was a mere $10 monthly. To supplement this income she took a job as a night librarian. "We weren't awfully busy at night and I could get a lot of reading done," she said. Her studies continued throughout the 38 years she practiced medicine. Each year she traveled around California to participate in seminars to complete 75 hours of study.

Graduating from medical school in 1931, the middle of the depression, Dr. Mrris returned home to become the first Petaluma-born woman to set up practice in the community. With a loan of $1,500 from a sympathetic banker, she established her first office. An early schedule reflected house calls two and three times daily plus night office hours three times a week.

"Eight of 10 pneumonia cases were treated at home during this time because there were no wonder drugs; no penicillin or sulpha," she said. Hospital fees for maternity patients were $50 for a 10-day period. In the depression most families could ill afford this luxury so many babies were delivered at home. "I much preferred to deliver a baby in the surroundings of a hospital," she said.

She also said that she spent a lot of time during the early days of her practice counseling worried and distraught mothers regarding discipline problems of their children. Offering to serve a local nursery school in an advisory capacity, she encouraged these same mothers to participate in the nursery school program. They would have the advantage of observing other children in relation to their own. Another purpose was to introduce these mothers to other women with similar concerns.

"Parents have the problems, not the children," she emphasized.

SHE DID HAVE time for an active social life, and on a blind date she met her future husband, a young business executive from San Francisco.

Asked how she could maintain a growing practice and courtship, she grinned, "I lost a little sleep but when you're young you can go without." Married 35 years, she readily admitted that organization was the key to her success in combining a career and comfortable home.

"My most dependable assistants were three pressure cookers, usually used all at once, and an electric oven with automatic controls. Inevitably I would get home from the office, have everything spread out to fix dinner and the telephone would ring. It was always a 'tragedy'," she laughed.

"When my husband would arrive home, I'd be gone and the kitchen would be a mess. Leaving notes helped to keep the communication between us alive."

Mrs. Seidell also mentioned that nearly every ski trip they took to Cisco Grove during their early marriage was interrupted with a knock at the door and message, "Dr. Kay had a telephone message and is needed in Petaluma to deliver a baby."

"At that time it took five hours to drive back but I made it every time," she proudly recalled, "but Stan was left to hitch a ride back with friends!"

Involved in the Reach to Recovery Program sponsored by the Sonoma County Chapter of the American Cancer Society, Kay Seidell herself experienced two encounters with the disease. Ten years ago she underwent a successful surgery for cancer of the colon and just three years ago received surgical treatment for cancer of a breast. Following a brief rehabilitation period, her capacities to enjoy her favorite out-of-door activities, hiking, swimming and gardening, are not in the least diminished.

WILD HORSES

Cause Fighter Is Soft Spoken

By RUSSELL NIELSEN

RENO, Nev. (UPI)—The name "Wild Horse Annie" brings forth the image of a huskily-built woman in jeans and boots and a gravelly voice blasting any opponent in the manner of Marjorie Main as Tugboat Annie.

But the real "Wild Horse Annie" is a secretary, a middle-aged widow, soft spoken with a quiet, pleasant personality, sometimes almost shy.

Anyone seeing Mrs. Velma Johnston at her insurance office desk would hardly guess the sustained fighting qualities she shows in her efforts to preserve the last of the nation's wild horses . . . some 17,000 mustangs still roaming the West.

Mrs. Johnston's cause is now before Congress last week she testified at length before subcommittees on public lands. Sen. Henry Jackson, D-Wash., and Rep. Walter S. Baring, D-Nev., a former classmate of Mrs. Johnston's, have introduced identical bills putting the mustangs under control of the Department of Interior.

Legislation under consideration would direct the department to set up refuges on which wild horses and burros would be safe from hunters.

Mrs. Johnston got her moniker 22 years ago when she entered a committee room in the Nevada legislature to plead for passage of a bill to protect the dwindling herds.

"Here comes Wild Horse Annie," muttered an opponent. She has been so-called ever since. She was instrumental in getting enactment of a bill which prohibited use of airplanes or other mechanical devices in capturing wild horses or burros in Nevada. Enforcement was left to local agencies, however, and offtimes was lax.

Mrs. Johnston became a national figure when she went to Washington in 1959 to urge passage of similar legislation by Congress. It was approved, but it has not been effective in protecting the mustang, which to many is a symbol of unbridled freedom and part of the romance of the Old West. That's why Mrs. Johnston continues to press for stronger legislation.

She has the support of many senators and representatives who have bent an ear to the current concern about ecology. She has received thousands of letters, many from school children. One boy collected $10 in nickels and dimes and sent a check to support her efforts.

She is president of the International Society for Protection of Mustangs and Burros which has received many contributions and which underwrote her latest trip to the national capital.

Mrs. Johnston first became keenly sensitive to the fate of the animals when in 1950 she saw horses on a crowded van being taken to a slaughterhouse. She investigated and found hunters used planes and trucks to stampede the animals to the point of exhaustion. Then the horses were herded into trucks and shipped to packing plants to be made into dog food. She thought the fate terrible for animals descended from the horses which strayed from the early Spanish expeditions in the Southwest.

About half the estimated 17,000 remaining mustangs are in Nevada.

Ranchers complain that the horses pollute the water holes and run off domestic horses, many of which join the wild bands.

"These wild horses are not the romantic mustangs you read about roaming the hills," said Nevada Assemblyman Norman Glaser, a rancher. "They are ornery, inbred, roman-nosed maverick cayuses and they are detrimental to fish and game individually and our public resources of grass and feed."

The opposition united at the current legislative session to defeat a bill which would have made the wild horse Nevada's state animal.

Mrs. Johnston and other conservationists are riding tall in the saddle, however, and expect to win the final battle.

John Crow, chief administrator of the Bureau of Land Management, saw the trend some time ago and said the agency expects eventually to become custodian of the wild herds.

"We're getting thousands of letters," he said.

Much of the supporting mail Mrs. Johnston and her group receive comes from persons who never even hope to see the wild horses, she said. "They're just happy to know the horses are still out there somewhere in the West. They're a symbol of the freedom on which our country was founded."

Easy Dresses

Since the easy slip of a dress is back on the current fashion wave length, Adesso does a bevy of little Ban-Lon beauties. One shirtdress shape was mixed colorfully with a lilac skirt joined to a yellow bodice by a green waistband. Pink collar and sleeves were bandbound in blue and green.

Dr. Brown's topic will be "Everything You Have Always Wanted to Know About Your Child But Have Never Had Time To Ask."

Sometimes The Child Is Forgotten

Baby-sitting is important.

Parents want and need a night out, and teen-agers need a way to earn spending money and also to have a way of showing they are able to accept responsibility.

But the most important person in the arrangement is the child, and his happiness and safety must be taken into consideration.

It is imperative that the baby-sitter know either how to reach the parents or what to do in case of emergencies. Parents should provide the sitter with the telephone number where they can be reached, and it is a good idea for the sitter to know the name and number of the child's doctor.

IF THE parents do not do this the sitter should not hesitate to ask. It is also the sitter's responsibility to ask the parents for explicit instructions regarding any schedule to be followed if the child is not asleep when the parents leave or in the case of an infant who may require a feeding or change of diapers.

Good rules for sitter to follow are:

Learn your way around the house before the family leaves so you don't become confused if the child calls or cries out.

Teen-agers should let their own families know where they are and when to expect them home and arrange in advance to be escorted home if after dark.

Do not entertain friends unless you have received permission.

BEWARE OF small children near windows, stairs, light plugs, electrical cords, stoves or radiators, and never leave a child alone in the bathtub.

Be sure a child cannot reach matches or poisonous substances of any kind.

Keep small and sharp objects out of reach.

Cancel a baby sitting engagement if you are ill or feel that you are catching a cold.

Never answer the door unless you are certain that you know who is there.

Parents can make the job easier for the babysitter by telling the sitter approximately what time they plan to return.

SHOW THE sitter where and how to regulate the heat.

If the child has any unusual fears, habits, likes or dislikes discuss them with the sitter.

Be certain the sitter knows what privileges the child is allowed regarding television, phonograph, telephone, food and visitors.

Both parents and babysitters should remember that babysitting is a business arrangement. If the sitter is mature enough to accept the responsibility of taking care of a child he should be mature enough to dicuss money matters and not be embarrassed to discuss wages.

BEFORE HIRING a sitter parents should check references, and, no matter how good they are, meet the sitter and look for signs of maturity, responsibility and a genuine interest in children.

A teen-ager should never go into a home without meeting the family and knowing something about the people he will be working for.

Personal impressions are important, but the child's well-being should receive the greatest consideration.

HELEN HELP US!

Maternity Home Offers Aid And Comfort To Pregnant Woman

DEAR HELEN:

I have noticed that you receive letters from distraught girls and women who are pregnant and not married. At times, these girls feel there has to be a drastic, quick solution, and this decision is reached under pressure. Sometimes they feel that they must marry the man or boy when they would not have done so if not pregnant. Some think that abortion is the only answer.

This is unfortunate, because there are in this country some 200 maternity homes offering specialized professional services to the girl or woman who is pregnant. She may be single, divorced, separated or married. These services include medical care, social work counseling, accredited education, group therapy, adoptive placement if desired, recreational programs and, most important, a climate of acceptance. The girl lives with other girls in an atmosphere which is non-judgmental and supportive.

Maternity homes, nationally, have a lower incidence of health problems, and a lower infant mortality rate than is found elsewhere, even among married women.

For the girl who feels that abortion is the only answer, there are a great number of people waiting to adopt babies. Some adoption agencies can no longer take applications from prospective adoptive parents, since there are so few babies. These couples could provide healthy, happy homes for children who might not otherwise know life. — MATERNITY HOME DIRECTOR

DEAR READERS:

I might also add to this excellent letter that many maternity homes have fees based on the girls' ability to pay. — H.

DEAR HELEN:

My husband and I have been married eight years and have two children. We haven't been out alone together since they have been born, and hardly ever out at all, because 1) he doesn't believe in baby-sitters, and 2) he says it's too much hassle taking the kids anywhere.

I love my children. I love my husband, but not as much as I used to, for all this "togetherness" can pull you apart at the seams. He says if you start going out it becomes a habit.

Am I wrong to be terribly tired of these — FOUR WALLS

DEAR F.W.:

No! You've every right to feel stir-crazy.

Staying home constantly can become a habit too — and a bad one. If you can't nudge your husband off his stump, I'd suggest you let HIM baby-sit while you go out. This may change his attitude. — H.

DEAR HELEN:

With Memorial Day coming up, my husband and I had our annual discussion. His first wife has been dead for many years. He still insists on sending money to the cemetery for grave decorations, even though she has several relatives nearby who always take out flowers.

I say this isn't necessary. Who's right? — B.L.

DEAR B.:

You'll be the winner if you lose this argument gracefully. — H.

This column is dedicated to family living, so if you're having kid trouble or just plain trouble, let Helen help you. Address Helen Bottel in care of the Independent-Journal.

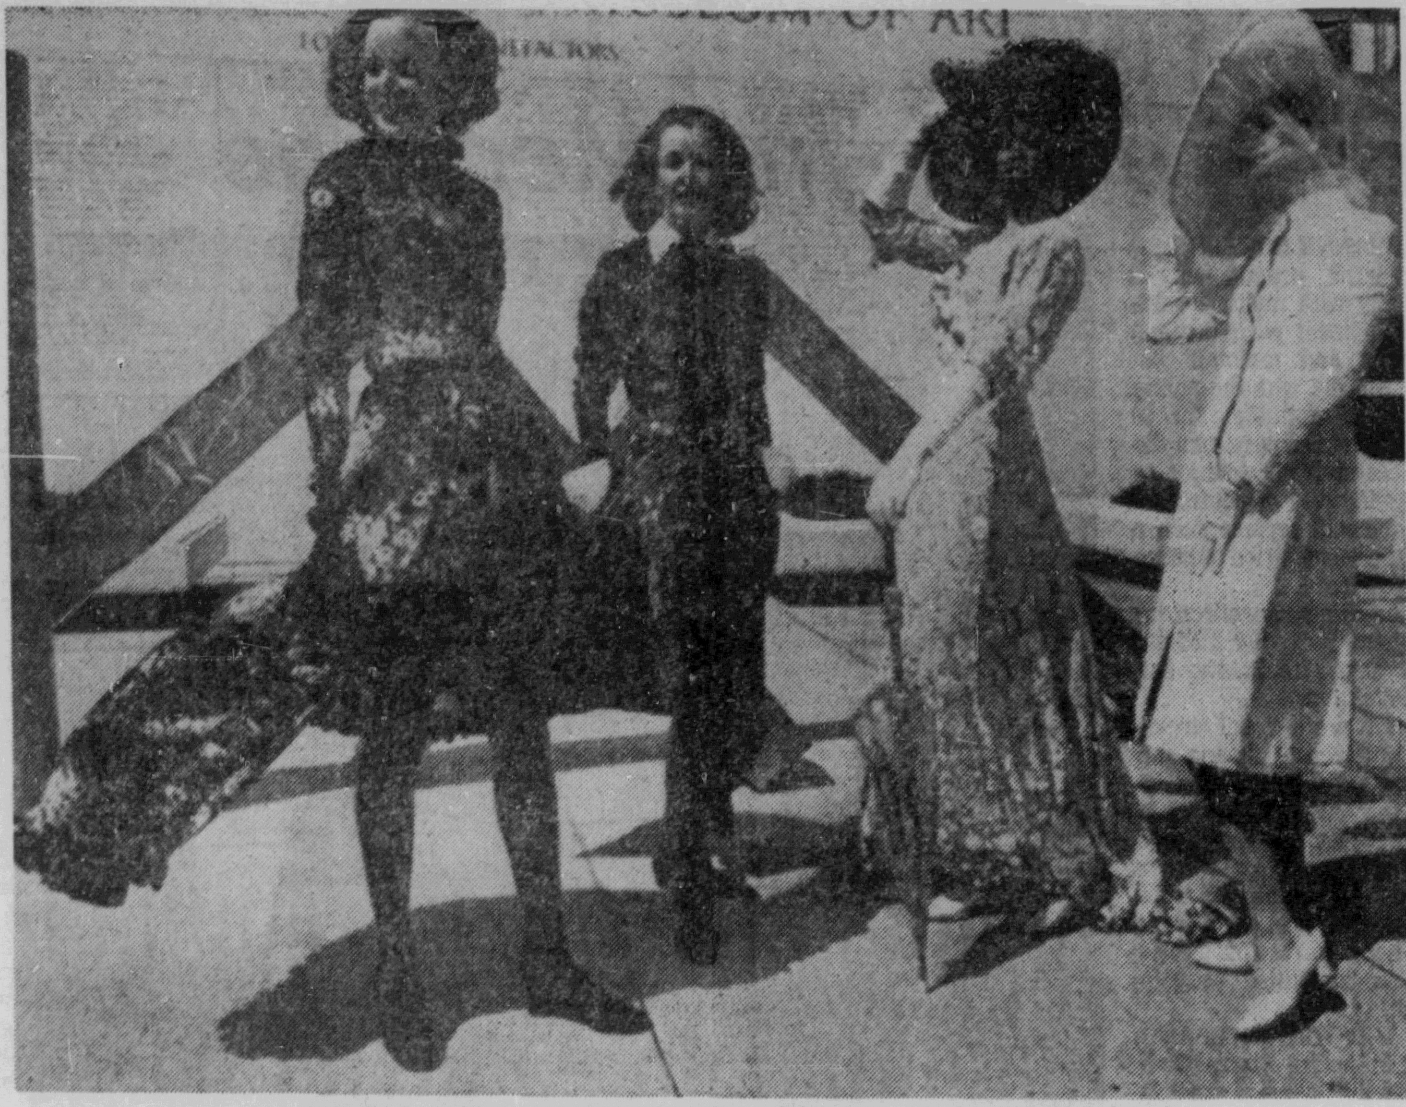
Disposables Are New Way Of Life

A journal for pharmacists, "American Druggist", reports that "make it do, use it up, do without" has become an outmoded philosophy. The new view is "use it once and throw it away." Disposable products are often cheaper and healthier, and the list of available items is constantly growing.

Among the newer items: bedsheets, thermometers, ash trays, nightgowns, undershorts, wash cloths, and ice bags. a disposable hair brush is also under consideration, the publication reports.



BILL BLASS VS. THE MUSEUM

The Los Angeles County Museum of Art provides a look into the past and the future by showing designer Bill Blass' 1971 collection along with some of the museum costumes. At left, Natalie Tirrell shows a modern evolution from her velvet print hot pants to Jane Lynn's velvet print with knickers which point the way to this year's longer warm pants, second from left. Sylvia Mackey wears an Irish crochet gown, circa 1905, from the museum collection, evolving to the 1971 white pique coat with gloves and hat worn by Julie McClay. (UPI Telephoto)

ON BEING BLACK

Misrepresentation Seems Profitable

By SANDRA HAGGERTY

"It's for a school project," the petite teenager said as she smiled shyly. "We're working on our ability to communicate with people. Could I come in and talk with you for about three minutes and see if you don't get mad at me?"

How could one possibly become angry with this picture of youth, dressed neatly and wearing knee socks and tennis shoes? And who wouldn't be interested in helping an enthusiastic youngster with her school project?

Once inside, the girl warmly made friends with my children and my mother.

Now, about this project, I said.

BUT RATHER than talking about her school project, the girl initiated a discussion about the death of her parents. The story may have been true, but she seemed to stress the point about being an orphan.

Again, I asked about the details of this class project.

Casually, she handed over a list of magazine subscriptions she was selling.

I told her I was already subscribing to those magazines I wished to receive.

"Well," she said sweetly, "but a subscription (any subscription) for one of the local school libraries."

I answered that I was already sharing my magazines or written materials of interest with the local schools I come in contact with.

"Well," Miss Representation went on, "buy a subscription of Ebony for me. You can understand why I'd like to receive a black magazine."

No, but do come back again when you're selling something I really need — like food.

"Well," she signed, "would you rate me?" She handed me a slip of paper with spaces for the customer's signature and a rating.

I filled it out.

She looked at it, surprised. "How come you gave me such a good rating when you didn't buy anything?"

I had rated her as being personable, charming and intelligent. In fact, she was just the kind of young girl I would have been pleased to have as my secretary or a companion for my children.

Of course, such tactics are SOP for some of the magazine sbuscription units that tour the cities using young people as salesmen. Their stories are carefully rehearsed and tearjerker statements — I'm an orphan or I'm struggling my way through school — are judiciously inserted in the sales pitch.

I liked this young girl immediately and would have subscribed to a magazine to help her out — if she had been honest from the get-go.

Unfortunately, far too many people are taken in by a phony sales pitch, and too many goods and services on the market today are not at all what they are asserted to be or do as stated on the label or in the TV commercial.

It is unfortunate that overall misrepresentation has become so profitable.

This is one potential home customer and I'm sure there are many others in which Miss Representation would have found honesty — a trait which is in danger of becoming tarnished, beyond restoration — to be even more profitable.

Cooking Broccoli

When preparing broccoli, cut a thin slice from the bottom of the stalk, then cut lengthwise slits up the stem almost to the flowerets. This allows the vegetable to cook more evenly. Unless it is done, the flowerets tend to get cooked tender ahead of the stem.

Secretarial Forum Slated May 14-15

"Secretaries Forum '71" will be held May 14 and 15 at the Sir Francis Drake Hotel in San Francisco, sponsored by the University of California Extension.

"Secretary — Job or Career?" will be the theme for this sixth annual conference for secretaries, executive secretaries, administrative assistants and secretaries-in-training.

Aside from workshops to help widen participants' skills, sessions will feature talks on subjects of major concern to women in business. Session speakers will be Marian Ash, editor of the Sacramento newsletter, "Skirting the Capitol," which covers news of legislation of special interest to women; Raymond E. Miles, associate professor of business administration at the University of California at Berkeley, and Mina Johnson, professor of office administration at San Francisco State College.

Their topics will be "Femininity vs. Reality," "The Woman's Role in Management," and "Stretching Your Talents."

Sessions will run from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. both days.

Information may be obtained from the Daytime Program, University of California Extension Center, 55 Laguna Street, San Francisco.

Cause Of Some Mental Retardation

Severe malnutrition of either the mother, or her baby while in early stages of development, has been found to be the cause of mental retardation, according to the National Society for Medical Research.

The society maintains that an adequate diet from the mother's own birth through growth and reproduction is of utmost importance for both mother and baby.

Dogs' Life

Provide your dog with well-balanced meals, a cozy spot to sleep, some play and praise and a firm hand when needed.

WHAT TWA DID FOR COACH...

Last Fall TWA introduced Ambassador Service, a whole new way to fly for the coach passenger.

There's the new Twin Seat. If the plane's not crowded, it can be three across, two across or even a couch.

You'll find a choice of three international meals. With wines, champagnes and liqueurs from around the world[1].

You'll find a choice of two movies on every movie flight[1]. One for general audiences, one for mature.

You'll find new carpets, new colors, new fabrics, new hostess uniforms, new everything.

The only problem was, first class started to look dull by comparison, so...

TWA NOW DOES FOR 1ST CLASS.

...we took out those old overstuffed first class seats. And put in all new overstuffed first class seats.

We put in a choice of five meals, the best you'll find on any airline, anywhere.

After dinner, settle back, and we present a choice of two movies on every movie flight. One for general audiences, one for mature.

And on top of this (and below it and all around it) you'll find new colors, new carpets, new fabrics, new everything.

Next time you're flying across the United States take a TWA Ambassador Flight from San Francisco or Oakland[2] Int'l. Airport.

Coach or first class, nobody else gives you anything like it.

[1] Movies and alcoholic beverages available at nominal cost in coach. Movies by Inflight Motion Pictures, Inc.

[2] Ambassador Service from Oakland to Chicago.

Ambassador Service is a service mark owned exclusively by TWA

TWA's NEW AMBASSADOR SERVICE.

A WHOLE NEW WAY TO FLY TO NEW YORK, NEWARK, BOSTON, PHILADELPHIA, BALTIMORE, WASHINGTON, COLUMBUS, OR CHICAGO.

Dr. Brown's topic will be "Everything You Have Always Wanted to Know About Your Child But Have Never Had Time To Ask."

Sometimes The Child Is Forgotten

Baby-sitting is important.

Parents want and need a night out, and teen-agers need a way to earn spending money and also to have a way of showing they are able to accept responsibility.

But the most important person in the arrangement is the child, and his happiness and safety must be taken into consideration.

It is imperative that the baby-sitter know either how to reach the parents or what to do in case of emergencies. Parents should provide the sitter with the telephone number where they can be reached, and it is a good idea for the sitter to know the name and number of the child's doctor.

IF THE parents do not do this the sitter should not hesitate to ask. It is also the sitter's responsibility to ask the parents for explicit instructions regarding any schedule to be followed if the child is not asleep when the parents leave or in the case of an infant who may require a feeding or change of diapers.

Good rules for sitter to follow are:

Learn your way around the house before the family leaves so you don't become confused if the child calls or cries out.

Teen-agers should let their own families know where they are and when to expect them home and arrange in advance to be escorted home if after dark.

Do not entertain friends unless you have received permission.

BEWARE OF small children near windows, stairs, light plugs, electrical cords, stoves or radiators, and never leave a child alone in the bathtub.

Be sure a child cannot reach matches or poisonous substances of any kind.

Keep small and sharp objects out of reach.

Cancel a baby sitting engagement if you are ill or feel that you are catching a cold.

Never answer the door unless you are certain that you know who is there.

Parents can make the job easier for the babysitter by telling the sitter approximately what time they plan to return.

SHOW THE sitter where and how to regulate the heat.

If the child has any unusual fears, habits, likes or dislikes discuss them with the sitter.

Be certain the sitter knows what privileges the child is allowed regarding television, phonograph, telephone, food and visitors.

Both parents and babysitters should remember that babysitting is a business arrangement. If the sitter is mature enough to accept the responsibility of taking care of a child he should be mature enough to dicuss money matters and not be embarrassed to discuss wages.

BEFORE HIRING a sitter parents should check references, and, no matter how good they are, meet the sitter and look for signs of maturity, responsibility and a genuine interest in children.

A teen-ager should never go into a home without meeting the family and knowing something about the people he will be working for.

Personal impressions are important, but the child's well-being should receive the greatest consideration.

MOTION PICTURE GUIDE

The Marin Motion Picture and Television Council provides these ratings of movies now being shown in Marin County. The council's findings are from the California and National Parent-Teacher Association magazines and the Parent's Magazine unless otherwide noted. More complete reviews may be obtained by calling the San Rafael Library.

FAMILY

"Italian Job" — A wacky exercise in grandiose crime, farcical and amusing. A computer is used to mastermind a huge robbery. Very fast paced, wild and imaginative nonsense.

"Tora, Tora, Tora" — Impressive dramatization of the attack on Pearl Harbor, seen from both the American and Japanese point of view. Excellent cast, amazing photography, well worth seeing.

"Wild Child" — Excellent semidocumentary based on case history about the problems of teaching an 11-year-old boy to live with people after living as an animal in the forest of France.

ADULTS AND TEENS

"Butch Cassidy and the Sun Dance Kid" — A deft sophisticated comedy about two bandits. Imaginative camera work, wonderful score, witty performances. Very violent ending.

"Incredible Twoheaded Transplant" — A medical student grafts the head of a homicidal maniac to the shoulders of a retarded brute. Fare will appeal to horror buffs.

"Lawrence of Arabia" — Reissue of magnificent production telling the story of T. E. Lawrence, an English soldier who led the revolt of Bedouins against the Turks during World War I.

"Little Big Man" — Excellent tragicomic history of Indian-white relations as recalled by a 121-year-old ex-gunfighter. It spoofs several frontier myths. Amazing performance by Dustin Hoffman.

"Love Story" — Film is pure romantic escapism and an old fashioned simple love story. Acting is exceptional and some tasteless language mars an otherwide beautiful portrayal.

"Patton" — Excellent characterization by George C. Scott who portrays an indomitable spirit that could achieve its destiny only in wartime. Strong film makes use of violence, profanity.

"Wuthering Heights" — Absorbing new version of Emily Bronte's classic tale of love, hate and revenge. Beautiful moody photography.

BORDERLINE
(Most sources say Adults Only)

"Alice's Restaurant" — Episodic treatment of true life happening in a commune. Tells of uninhibit sex life and indulgence in ''pot'' harming only themselves, yet searching for happiness.

"Derby" — A documentary about the roller derby, one of the roughest professional sports. Film deals with personal lives of the men and women who participate.

ADULTS ONLY

"Diary of a Mad Housewife" — Acidly funny look at the disintegration of a modern marriage in New York. Good comedy with sex and dialogue that is very frank.

"Gimme Shelter" — Documentary of the free concert in Altamont with "Rolling Stones" and the murder that occurred. The language used, violence, nudity and sex shown will make some people wince.

"I Love My Wife" — Stylish comedy about a doctor who satisfies his desires indiscriminately Frank sex scenes and cursing.

"M.A.S.H." — Nothing escapes the mockery of this ribald, blood soaked comedy of wartime Korea. Several scenes are as gruesome as they are funny. Sex, nudity and cursing make this a very adult satire.

Blood Bank To Celebrate With A Life Redeemed

A birthday cake, flowers and an active 14-year-old boy will be on hand at 1 p.m. Monday as the Marin Blood Center celebrates its 10th anniversary.

Carnations and cake will be given to the donors at the center at 506 Fourth Street, San Rafael.

The active boy is Lee Shinabarger of 110 Elm Avenue, San Anselmo. However, Lee was not always so active. For the first years of his life, he seemed doomed to a life of inactivity. All that was changed in 1962 when with the aid of blood donated by Marin County citizens, he became one of the first persons to undergo open heart surgery.

Lee, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gene Shinabarger, rides his bicycle on his Independent-Journal route. He plays ball with the Little League, plays tennis and basketball, and swims.

During the 10 years since the center opened on May 1, 1961, more than 53,000 pints of blood have been donated by Marin County residents.

The center is an auxiliary of Irwin Memorial Blood Bank of San Francisco, sponsored by the Marin Medical Society. Dr. James R. Dahl of the Marin Medical Society, will also be on hand for the opening.

Open House Set For Cooperative Nursery School

The San Anselmo Cooperative Nursery School will hold its annual open house and registration for the fall semester, from 9:30 a.m. to 11:30 a.m. May 8 at the school, 24 Myrtle Lane.

Interested parents may take their preschool youngsters to explore the facilities, according to open house-cho-chairmen Susan Stuart and Linda Gomez.

The school's directors, Katherine Buettner and Anne Falkenberg will anwer questions and demonstrate techniques used in the program, which is sponsored by the College of Marin.

A limited scholarship program is available for pupils.

WHAT TWA DID FOR COACH...

Last Fall TWA introduced Ambassador Service, a whole new way to fly for the coach passenger.

There's the new Twin Seat. If the plane's not crowded, it can be three across, two across or even a couch.

You'll find a choice of three international meals. With wines, champagnes and liqueurs from around the world[1]

You'll find a choice of two movies on every movie flight[1] One for general audiences, one for mature.

You'll find new carpets, new colors, new fabrics, new hostess uniforms, new everything.

The only problem was, first class started to look dull by comparison, so...

TWA NOW DOES FOR 1ST CLASS.

...we took out those old overstuffed first class seats. And put in all new overstuffed first class seats.

We put in a choice of five meals, the best you'll find on any airline, anywhere.

After dinner, settle back, and we present a choice of two movies on every movie flight. One for general audiences, one for mature.

And on top of this (and below it and all around it) you'll find new colors, new carpets, new fabrics, new everything.

Next time you're flying across the United States take a TWA Ambassador Flight from San Francisco or Oakland[2] Int'l. Airport.

Coach or first class, nobody else gives you anything like it.

Ambassador Service is a service mark owned exclusively by TWA

TWA's NEW AMBASSADOR SERVICE.

A WHOLE NEW WAY TO FLY TO NEW YORK, NEWARK, BOSTON, PHILADELPHIA, BALTIMORE, WASHINGTON, COLUMBUS, OR CHICAGO.

TODAY'S EDITORIAL

Government Oppression Peril Right To Know

"There was a time when excellence in reporting received awards. Now it is just as likely to draw a subpoena."

That bitter comment came recently from Julian Goodman, president of National Broadcasting Co.

"Never has the subpoena been used as viciously, as irresponsibly and as often against freedom of the press as it has this year."

That was contained in a report of the American Society of Newspaper Editors' freedom of information committee, presented at the society's annual convention.

BROADCASTING AND PUBLISHING both are faced with what amounts to government attempts at suppression. Broadcasting is by far the more vulnerable to such attacks, since every radio and television station must be licensed by the government. But both forms of mass communication are menaced; and a threat to either is a threat to both.

The extent to which government censorship has imposed itself on the broadcasters was made frighteningly obvious last week when NBC cancelled a speech by former Interior Secy. Walter J. Hickel, on commercially sponsored time, because it was "too controversial."

The network had agreed to carry the address, entitled, "Wanted: a New Breed of Leader," on 234 stations. But after Ben Raub, an NBC attorney, read an advance copy, it cancelled the agreement. Raub, like network president Goodman, was afraid of that subpoena.

CENSORSHIP IS IMPLICIT also in new "guidelines" issued by the Federal Communications Commission warning radio stations against playing records which promote the use of drugs. (One of several lawsuits challenging this raises the question of whether "Tea for Two" might be barred from the air.) And censorship is at least hinted in the FCC's new requirement that broadcasting stations renew their licenses annually, instead of every three years. But it is exposed most nakedly in the attempts by the Justice Department to subpoena notes and records of TV, radio and newspaper reporters and photographers.

Capital sources deny piously that there is any attempt at censorship. But when the vice president publicly berates the networks for alleged distortions in newscasts and documentaries, there is no suggestion from elsewhere in the administration that it is possible that Spiro Agnew himself might be guilty of distortions. And when the Justice Department attempts to violate the well-established right of reporters to protect their news sources, no one in the White House interposes a word in defense of freedom of the press.

TO NBC'S PRESIDENT Goodman, the attempted suppression has become Orwellian. FCC claims it is "expanding freedom" by its new rules and guidelines. Says Goodman, wryly: "Restriction is freedom. Stepping back is going forward. Supervision promotes independence."

"The end result," declares Vincent T. Wasilewski, president of the National Association of Broadcasters, "will be that the government will inform a station what program it must broadcast, how often and in what time period."

The indications are that the government would like to apply to newspapers the same kind of restrictions it can apply to radio and TV stations through its licensing powers. Unable to do that, it must depend on the attacks of Spiro Agnew and company.

It is time to call a halt to this sort of thing. Oppression has no place in a democratic government. The tactics of dictatorship cannot be brooked in a free country.

AFFAIRS OF STATE

In California, 'Nothing's Too Good For Our Legislators'

By HENRY C. MACARTHUR

SACRAMENTO (CNS) — A few years ago, the disclosure that a state legislator made a sum of money through a real estate deal, or even stood to make a profit on an investment connected remotely with legislative business, would have caused more than lifted eyebrows.

Such a disclosure would have provided the motif for legislative investigations to determine whether the legislator was acting outside the law, or even acting in an immoral manner.

But this isn't so today. The prevailing attitude is, "Who cares? And even if it's so, who's going to prove it?"

THIS HAPPENS to be the case in an attempt to connect Pauline Davis, D-Portola, with possible profit on a real estate purchase at Lake Davis, an artificial lake in Plumas County which was named by the state legislature for Mrs. Davis's late husband.

The deceased husband was prominent in fish and game and conservation activities, so when the time came to name the Plumas County lake, the legislators chose to call it after their late colleague, a happening which is not infrequent in legislative procedure.

The fact that his widow, who was elected to succeed him and has been elected regularly to the post ever since his death, chose to invest some money in a land holding around the lake would seem to be her private business, and also the business of her legislative friend who similarly invested in the lake property.

NO ACCUSATION of illegality in the deal was made, although there were inferences in the disclosures that "influence" may have played a part in the legislators' obtaining the property at a good price. But anyone wanting to show that Mrs. Davis sold a vote for a piece of land would have to go a long way to prove such an allegation.

So Mrs. Davis is guilty of nothing, apparently, except the desire to acquire some recreational land, and possibly turn some of it for a profit, a course followed by thousands of citizens all through the state.

THE PITIFUL PART of the picture is that legislators find it necessary to engage in extra-curricular activities to add to the already generous pay, allowances, expense accounts, fringe benefits in the form of ultra-generous pensions, virtually free automobiles, several offices, all manned with experienced help, occasional foreign trips available to some members, airplane tickets, and so on, ad infinitum.

Add to these goodies the fact that legislators have free meals available whenever they want to call in a lobbyist, and free hunting and fishing trips on occasion, paid for by the lobbyists.

MRS. DAVIS IS NOT the first legislator to profit or contemplate profiting by a real estate deal. In fact, her deal was picayune in comparison to some.

In fact, the attitude of the public these days is to give the legislators anything they want, and provide the greatest leeway for them to profit on the side.

The voters of Mrs. Davis's far-flung legislative district will decide next year whether her real estate deal is subject to question. Odds are that they will pay no attention to it.

Community Rapping The Only Solution

I think that the only way that we can overcome the generation gap is by rapping amongst ourselves. I know that we can have family conversations and such, but we need more. We need to have whole communities in which we can all discuss and overcome this one terrible gap. We can all get together and solve all of our problems with each other. Maybe we can have one special TV channel that discusses the problems of the generation gap. We can also send letters to this community (if we have one) of recommendation on solutions of the gap.

Forget Yourself: Listen To Your Kids

I just heard the story of the San Francisco police sergeant and his son who argued with the result that the father was shot by the son. The father had previously turned the son in for possession of marijuana. He evidently felt the law was worth enforcing; the son obviously disagreed. This story is an example of the complete lack of understanding between the young and their parents that exists in too many homes today. If members of a single family cannot relate to each other, what chance is there for love and peace to prevail among all of us in our relationships with other people?

I feel the problems between the youth and the over-30s have got to be solved in the home. If parents would stay home and listen to their kids, the first step toward true communication and understanding will begin. Forget the X-rated film at the Lark; forget the alcoholic and nicotine haze you get at the neighbors'; forget your volunteer work that feeds your ego and gains you recognition; forget working so many extra hours to earn money to buy your third radiation-producing super-duper color TV; forget your damn self, and listen to your kids. You will find them so intelligent, so full of compassion for the oppressed, so full of enthusiasm, and so filled with the same idealism that you had when you were young and lost in an effort to conform. Don't make them lose their idealism! Praise them and love them for it. It has given you the freedom to wear your bushy side burns and your bell bottom pants. It may bring you a pollutant-free planet, equality of races and sexes, world peace, and your own dignity.

Mrs. PAT GRABRIAN

To Over-30s, Youth: Seek Understanding

To the over-30s: Do you sincerely want the exchange of better understanding with the youth?

For those that do: First, I suggest you present a genuine warmth for the youth. A warmth of genuine concern, interest, action, and respect for whatever their developed or undeveloped values may be.

You must mass out that "particular favoritism" for only some of the youths. Dismiss that "jealousy" carried toward the youth. Cease referring to the youth as "incompetent." Do away with the "false protection" for the youths and allow the youth to not only stumble but fall, once.

A genuine acceptance will introduce "adulterations." Harmony then makes her entrance and Hostility will take its exit!

It's not the youth that is responsible for the over-30s, but it is the over-30s that is responsible for the youth. Learn to value the young, also, instead of demanding them to value you.

Over-30s, broaden your wisdom. Get out your dictionary. Find the word "welcome." Now apply the definition to someone besides yourselves!

I say to the youth: It's not too late, understanding those other than ourselves. It is only the youth that understands later, and growth understands better.

Question yourself. Could a better understanding with over-30s be healthy for me?

Learn to value your health also, and always express how profoundly equal is your energy; and in the strainage, allow the division of directions, where those energies must reach, include a better understanding with everyone.

"It's never too late for the better or the best."

D. ANN WHITT

Youth, Adults Must Both Get Involved

We are extremely fortunate to live in a comparatively open society where there are few bans on self-expression and differing viewpoints. Because of this, many of our problems are a lot more visible to everyone. So, also solutions can be provided more readily. This is both a hazard and an asset.

To accomplish change in our society, youth and adults should use the tools which our open society has available.

1. Publicity — Television, newspapers, magazines, radio, demonstrations, pickets, assembly, conversation-dialogue.

2. Action — Vote, political contributions (time, ideas, money), social contributions (volunteer programs, church programs, government programs).

Get involved. Get interested. Do something more than just living, working, and existing.

Adults resent youth because they feel that youth has the time to get involved whereas the adults never had that time when they were young and feel they don't have it now.

Parents must take the time to get involved with their kids and the community. Involvement is the name of the game. So, don't be a bystander. Pick something you like and jump in. Express yourself. Do something. Don't just stand there. Our country has room for everyone's opinions and ideas. Only by becoming involved will we keep it that way.

DO IT NOW!

Generation gap here to stay?
That's what many people say —
But is it true I ask of you?
Now think a bit, analyze it.
Age is not an unchanging spot.
People dissent, problems are met.
People involved, problems are solved.
So jump in — begin — begin!
Begin something. Change something.
Retain something. Gain something.
That is how, the time is Now.
So don't procrastinate — regenerate!

Has Youth Seen Honest Fortitude?

I am a 64½-year-old grandmother! I think the youth of today is truly wonderful, "super-dooper" I used to tell my tiny tots in nursery school.

They are super-smart, and super-hurt, and we or our children are the ones who have done the hurting (of these beautiful people). My grandson, Steve, huge, blond and handsome is smart, honest and confused. And my child and her husband have sincerely tried to be "good parents." But — and I write this with a bleeding heart — like so many other "over 30," I truly believe they were too busy "searching for their own identity" and gouging for that damned "almighty dollar." Poor babies!

"God's in His heaven, all's right with the world." OK. So preach it from the pulpit — and those young people are in church and Sunday school — and then take another pill, a "pepper-upper" or a "downer" or a vitamin or a reducing pill or whatever. Tell me, has their generation ever seen a honest case of "good old American intestinal fortitude" — guts, to quote my dear, wonderful, dead 87-year-old mother?

I've a beautiful 17-year-old granddaughter, and she's a beautiful person, she has character and guts, but she didn't learn it from her parents' generation! Maybe from mine.

ROSCOE DRUMMOND

Russ Step Up Space Program While United States Cuts Back

WASHINGTON — Space exploration is entering the era of the commonplace.

The United States and the Soviet Union are showing that they now have the capabilities of doing almost anything in outer space and going almost anywhere — even to distant planets — if they try hard enough.

The Russians have excelled in unmanned flights.

The Americans have excelled in manned flights, thrice to the moon with more trips in prospect.

But at the very moment the United States is cutting back its NASA budget the Soviets are stepping theirs up.

They are devoting four times as much of their gross national product to space as we are.

They are launching more spacecraft per year than the United States.

THE RUSSIANS are currently spending as much on space as NASA was at its peak two years ago — and are keeping it up while we are considerably curtailing.

It is estimated that Russia is putting at least 2 per cent of its GNP into its space program while the United States is spending only .5 of one per cent of its larger GNP.

Momentum is still with the United States but there is no assurance it will remain that way. During the first 13 years of the Space Age the experts credit the United States with 42 "firsts" and the U.S.S.R. with 31. They break down as follows:

	U.S.	U.S.S.R.
Spaceflight and propulsion	7	12
Manned flights	8	8
New scientific knowledge	16	8
Technological applications	7	2
Auxiliary systems	4	1
Total	42	31

What next?

THE RUSSIANS are projecting a very comprehensive program for exploiting space technology, including exploration and settlement (if possible) of the planets. Moscow plans its own manned landings on the moon and, as illustrated by its latest experimental dockings of Salyut and Soyuz 10, is getting nearer to creating earth orbital stations for a variety of new ventures.

The Soviet Academy of Sciences pictures a future space station as a hub to which up to four Soyuz craft can dock like spokes in a wheel. From this beginning the Russians foresee large and permanent orbital stations on which many astronauts, scientists and technicians can carry on research. They will also be used for orbital assembly and launch devices for sending manned expeditions to the moon and the planets.

The United States is also projecting an ambitious sky-laboratory with a life support system capable of serving a large number of people for substantial periods of time.

But the main new element in the American program for the '70s will be the development of a reusable, low-cost shuttle space craft to act as a ferry from earth to orbit and return. Each shuttle could be flown 100 or more times.

THE USE OF SHUTTLE craft would soon reduce the cost of manned space flight considerably and in the end, experts say, would drop them to a mere one per cent of what they are today. Thus the cost of an Apollo manned flight would be cut from $400 million to $4 million.

At such prices future space exploration becomes a very profitable national investment.

In the next five years U.S. space craft will orbit Mars twice, another Mariner will fly around Venus and on to Mercury. They plan to explore the Asteroid belt and approach Venus. The Russians are talking about flying to the giant planets, even to comets and planetoids.

Apparently anything man can think of he can do — if he applies himself.

BY NO MEANS NEUTRAL

Marchers Don't Influence Nixon — But the Polls Do

By ERNEST B. FURGURSON

WASHINGTON — When the organizers of the spring series of be-ins here in the capital were soliciting their first press clipping, I belittled them. Not because they were not going to draw a crowd; you could draw a crowd with Lawrence Welk these sunny, breezy days along the Mall. But because Richard Nixon so clearly was going to anticipate them by stepping up troop withdrawals and otherwise proving that the war is indeed winding down.

Wherewith a lady in California, whose signature I cannot decipher, wrote me a thought-provoking post card, as follows:

"If Nixon reads of the peace movement plans to step up activities, and he causes casualty figures to dip and numbers of troops home to rise, then the peace movement is making itself felt, you ninny!"

THE LADY EXPRESSES herself as pithily as I would like to. But she assumes, as both the well-behaved and the exhibitionist marchers do, that the President makes his war decisions on the basis of how many bodies can crowd downtown Washington on an April Saturday afternoon and how many Viet Cong flags can be flown from how many generals' statues, and how many benches around the Washington Monument can be broken up for firewood during an all-night rock concert.

The assumption is shared by some of us sideliners, too. The Washington Post, for example, laid on five stories and two pictures about the march on page 1, plus all the news holes from page 14 through 23 inside, a total of about 30 columns of space on a Sunday morning. Of course, you have to allow for the fact that for them it was a home-town event.

But from any less besieged viewpoint, the movement is beginning now to qualify for a paraphrase of Spiro Agnew on slums or Ronald Reagan on redwoods: When you've seen one demonstration, you've seen them all.

TRUE, THE BACKDROP was different. This time the masses converged at the foot of Capitol Hill, so the telephoto lenses brought the 19-foot bronze figure of Thomas Crawford's Freedom on the Capitol dome up tight against the longhairs waving the enemy flag from atop the Peace Monument.

True, too, there were a few more legislators who came out to say a kind word for the demonstrators. This time they didn't have so far to walk. But still they were a minority handful.

Yet when all this was taking place last week end, the one man with the authority to make a peremptory change in the nation's Indochina policy was enjoying the redbuds and early dogwood up at Camp David. And today, when the more radical complainants gather to execute their thing, he plans to be at Camp Pendleton, in San Diego County, Calif., welcoming some marines home from the war.

If last week's march had brought 100,000 more protesters to the capital than it did, or 100,000 fewer, it would not have altered the fact that those marines were coming home. Altogether, 265,000 troops have been brought back from Vietnam now. That is more people than came to town for what was intended to be the biggest antiwar rally of all.

MR. NIXON DOES NOT have to hang around the White House of a week end and watch the festivities to find out how the nation feels about the war.

If he is not the most scrupulous student of public opinion polls since Lyndon Johnson went home to the ranch, surely that person is somewhere on his White House payroll, reporting to him. And the polls have shown a steady rise in the percentage of Americans who want out of Vietnam and a steady slump in those who think Mr. Nixon is handling the war well.

A Gallup Poll in October, 1969, showed 57 per cent in favor of withdrawing by the end of last year. Still, two months later, another check recorded 65 per cent endorsing the President's handling of the issue. Last November, 61 per cent wanted out of Vietnam by the end of this year. But this March only 37 per cent approved Mr. Nixon's conduct of the war.

A Christian Science Monitor survey in February found 62 per cent supporting a unilateral U.S. pullout — but, significantly for the President, the marchers and my lady correspondent from California, the same poll showed 57 per cent of Americans were unsympathetic to demonstrations lumped as "student unrest."

The point is that we have in the White House, or at Camp David or Camp Pendleton, a man who is such an analyst of public opinion that he is predictable more for his followship than his leadership. Such a man sees writ large and unavoidably what he must do. So if we weren't having such nice weather, the marchers in their thousands would do just as well to stay indoors and watch the troops coming home on television.

REMEMBER WHEN?

10 YEARS AGO

APRIL 30, 1961

The United States increased its military aid to the embattled government of Laos.

Willie Mays hit four home runs in one game as the San Francisco Giants trounced the Milwaukee Braves, 14 to 4.

20 YEARS AGO

APRIL 30, 1951

Marin County supervisors decided to investigate the number and kind of people appointed by Sheriff Walter Sellmer as special civil defense deputies.

Lt. Gen. James A. Van Fleet, United Nations commander in Korea, said his forces would defend Seoul, the capital, against onrushing masses of Chinese and North Korean troops.

SKATING INTO IMAGINARY ORBIT

Blood Bank To Celebrate With A Life Redeemed

A birthday cake, flowers and an active 14-year-old boy will be on hand at 1 p.m. Monday as the Marin Blood Center celebrates its 10th anniversary.

Carnations and cake will be given to the donors at the center at 506 Fourth Street, San Rafael.

The active boy is Lee Shinabarger of 110 Elm Avenue, San Anselmo. However, Lee was not always so active. For the first years of his life, he seemed doomed to a life of inactivity. All that was changed in 1962 when with the aid of blood donated by Marin County citizens, he became one of the first persons to undergo open heart surgery.

Lee, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gene Shinabarger, rides his bicycle on his Independent-Journal route. He plays ball with the Little League, plays tennis and basketball, and swims.

During the 10 years since the center opened on May 1, 1961, more than 53,000 pints of blood have been donated by Marin County residents.

The center is an auxiliary of Irwin Memorial Blood Bank of San Francisco, sponsored by the Marin Medical Society. Dr. James R. Dahl of the Marin Medical Society, will also be on hand for the opening.

Open House Set For Cooperative Nursery School

The San Anselmo Cooperative Nursery School will hold its annual open house and registration for the fall semester, from 9:30 a.m. to 11:30 a.m. May 8 at the school, 24 Myrtle Lane.

Interested parents may take their preschool youngsters to explore the facilities, according to open house-cho-chairmen Susan Stuart and Linda Gomez.

The school's directors, Katherine Buettner and Anne Falkenberg will anwer questions and demonstrate techniques used in the program, which is sponsored by the College of Marin.

A limited scholarship program is available for pupils.

FAMILY

"Italian Job" — A wacky exercise in grandiose crime, farcical and amusing. A computer is used to mastermind a huge robbery. Very fast paced, wild and imaginative nonsense.

"Tora, Tora, Tora" — Impressive dramatization of the attack on Pearl Harbor, seen from both the American and Japanese point of view. Excellent cast, amazing photography, well worth seeing.

"Wild Child" — Excellent semidocumentary based on case history about the problems of teaching an 11-year-old boy to live with people after living as an animal in the forest of France.

ADULTS AND TEENS

"Butch Cassidy and the Sun Dance Kid" — A deft sophisticated comedy about two bandits. Imaginative camera work, wonderful score, witty performances. Very violent ending.

"Incredible Twoheaded Transplant" — A medical student grafts the head of a homicidal maniac to the shoulders of a retarded brute. Fare will appeal to horror buffs.

"Lawrence of Arabia" — Reissue of magnificent production telling the story of T. E. Lawrence, an English soldier who led the revolt of Bedouins against the Turks during World War I.

"Little Big Man" — Excellent tragicomic history of Indian-white relations as recalled by a 121-year-old ex-gunfighter. It spoofs several frontier myths. Amazing performance by Dustin Hoffman.

"Love Story" — Film is pure romantic escapism and an old fashioned simple love story. Acting is exceptional and some tasteless language mars an otherwide beautiful portrayal.

"Patton" — Excellent characterization by George C. Scott who portrays an indomitable spirit that could achieve its destiny only in wartime. Strong film makes use of violence, profanity.

"Wuthering Heights" — Absorbing new version of Emily Bronte's classic tale of love, hate and revenge. Beautiful moody photography.

BORDERLINE
(Most sources say Adults Only)

"Alice's Restaurant" — Episodic treatment of true life happening in a commune. Tells of uninhibit sex life and indulgence in "pot" harming only themselves, yet searching for happiness.

"Derby" — A documentary about the roller derby, one of the roughest professional sports. Film deals with personal lives of the men and women who participate.

ADULTS ONLY

"Diary of a Mad Housewife" — Acidly funny look at the disintegration of a modern marriage in New York. Good comedy with sex and dialogue that is very frank.

"Gimme Shelter" — Documentary of the free concert in Altamont with "Rolling Stones" and the murder that occurred. The language used, violence, nudity and sex shown will make some people wince.

"I Love My Wife" — Stylish comedy about a doctor who satisfies his desires indiscriminately Frank sex scenes and cursing.

"M.A.S.H." — Nothing escapes the mockery of this ribald, blood soaked comedy of wartime Korea. Several scenes are as gruesome as they are funny. Sex, nudity and cursing make this a very adult satire.

I-J REPORTER'S NOTEBOOK

By GEORGE NEVIN

Who Is Bill Hall? It Turns Out He's Been Free Some Time

Driving through Mill Valley, one still can see tattered remnants of green bumper stickers plastered to telephone poles, fences and walls. In sign-concious Mill Valley, the bright strips stand out like fluorescent signs.

A few stickers have weathered the winter's rain and wind and their legend still can be read: "Free Bill Hall, keep Mill Valley free."

With many leaders of alternative political organizations in jails and prisons, slogans imploring their freedom are common. They urge the release of, among others, Angela Davis, Bobby Seale and Huey Newton.

But Bill Hall? And why should his release help keep Mill Valley free?

WILLIAM REED HALL, it turns out, is free — for the moment. He goes to trial next month in Marin Superior Court on a charge of possession of one ounce of marijuana.

He was arrested July 10, 1970, by an agent of the Marin County Drug Abuse Bureau who said he saw Hall sharing a marijuana Cigarette with two young girls. The agent said he found a lid of grass in Hall's pocket.

The speed of justice being what it is, Hall still awaits trial on the charge. Meanwhile's he's out on bail.

After months of seeing Hall's name on bumper stickers, I wasn't sure he really existed. But he does — I spoke with him this week at his Mill Valley home, where he was trimming the hedges in his back yard.

And the bumber stickers? "I was surprised when I got out of jail and saw them," he said, brushing clippings out of his hair.

"A friend of mine who runs a bumper strip operation thought it would be fun to print some for me. Maybe they'll be valuable some day."

DIRECTORS OF the Tiburon Sanitary District, rebuffed in their attempts to remain independent of a special district set up to study waste disposal in Southern Marin, have installed a pilot treatment plant designed to turn sewage outfall into clear water.

The board ordered the equipment at its Paradise Drive treatment plant even though the San Francisco Bay Regional Water Quality Control Board has refused to approve an application for federal funds for the project unless the Tiburon district joins the special Southern Marin district.

The board has made its position clear — it wants to convert its entire plant to the new activated carbon process rather than take part in "just another study" to determine how to dispose of waste.

But the regional board, which must approve loan applications before they can be submitted to the federal government, also made its positioc clear — if Tiburon doesn't join the district, its application will be ignored.

Now the district has gone ahead and set up the pilot plant, a complicated maze of tubes, chambers, dials and wires.

Here's hoping the members of the regional board will see that tiburon really wants to clean up San Francisco Bay!

COUNTY COMMENT

By WILLIAM D. (BILL) FUSSELMAN

Supervisors Now Must Face Genuine 'Political Necessity'

Last week, when I heard over KTIM on Tuesday that Alan Bruce had resigned, I determined to say very little if anything regarding him. However, there have been several items in the press which I must refer to while commenting on the county government situation. Following are several quotes from those items.

At a dinner meeting of the Marin Council for Civic Affairs, Bruce was the invited guest. Mrs. Margaret B. Azevedo, the chairman, paid him high tribute for courage and competance. Bruce thanked them for celebrating his liberation. Supervisors Michael Wornum, Peter Arrigoni and Arnold Baptiste were also in attendance.

Wornum expressed regret that "political necessity" had forced the supervisors to press for Bruce's resignation. (This "political necessity" will be referred to from time to time in the following weekly columns.) He also said "The job you did for the county can never be fully repaid."

FROM ANOTHER ITEM: Bruce: "I have no regrets for what I have done. I have had to cope with a relative lack of leadership and initiative in the board which I have not enjoyed at all. There has been an abdication on their part of responsibility without an abdication of authority."

Again — Bruce: "The department head . . . makes proposals that look good to him, but his proposals should be tempered by an administrative generalist who sees them in the overall context . . . The final tempering of judgment must come from the board of supervisors."

Yet another quote — McInnis: ". . . your refusal to accept graciously the policy determination of the elective forum."

IT MIGHT BE a good idea to clip this column and save it, as it will make it easier to follow references I will be making. The county government for the past decade had not been what one would be inclined to write home about. I hope to make observations and comments that will cause some serious thinking — thinking that will result in a more normal, down-to-earth operation with a realistic cost.

"Political necessity" that Wornum was concerned about is still around and is not going to vanish by Bruce's resignation. The public is in no mood to accept halfway changes that will simply be more convenient for the board members.

Three seats on the board of supervisors will be up for grabs in just a year and a year rolls around mighty fast. At the moment the rating of the board is not so good. Bruce's parting shots have not helped their image even a little bit.

Unlike Washington, D.C., and Sacramento, Brasilia is not the capitol of Marin. It is the administration building and the hall of justice. The amount of legislation produced there is minimal and only effective in the unincorporated areas. The grand manner of administration, which is effective only in a third of the county, is somewhat out of balance.

WHEN I READ that Supervisor Arrigoni had put in the agenda for Tuesday's board meeting the immediate hiring of a new administrator and then later heard that it had been continued for one week, it seemed that it would be better to discuss some things that I had intended for later.

Bruce resigned as of July 1. People feel that the better part of the next two months should be used for a review of the past 14 years of operation.

This board of supervisors has an opportunity to show the extent of its comprehension of what the situation really is.

Let's consider this for a moment. The City and County of San Francisco has a population of 715,674. The supervisors are paid $800 per month. They use the committee system, which keeps them close to the problems. These committees report to the board as a whole. Their board does not have to depend on one man for recommendations.

Marin County has a population of 206,038 but the supervisors here only have authority to function for one-third of that figure or 68,679. They receive $1,000 a month. It is well known that they have abdicated their responsibilities. They refer everything to staff. You have a great chance to be applauded. If you act like this is a hot potato you want to drop so that you can go on your way, you will not be.

Walk For Development Again To Combat Hunger

By ANNE DUGGAN
Junior, Terra Linda
High School

No one likes the idea of starving people. Pictures of Biafran children with stomachs distended from malnutrition brought outraged cries and donations of food and money when first published. Public sympathy was aroused and those with more gave to those with less. However, it seems to be a different story when there is hunger in this country. No one is starving in the good old U.S.A. — right? In case anyone hasn't noticed, there are people starving in marvelous Marin County; there may not be many pictures, like the tear-jerkers taken in other countries, but hunger exists.

Very often, plain old citizens, like you and me, take measures into their own hands. The Marin Walk for Development (formerly the Marin Walk Against Hunger) is one of these efforts. It is a drive run mainly by high school students who take no compensation for the time they spend on this project.

THE NEXT WALK in Marin is May 9, and covers 20 miles, beginning at Redwood High School at 7 a.m. The route will go through Corte Madera, San Rafael, San Anselmo, Fairfax, and Ross, and end at Redwood later that evening.

The money will go to almost the same three charities as last year.

Meals for Millions, which is building a multi-purpose food factory in Ecuador, will get 42.5 per cent of all the money received.

Money to the Economic Opportunity Council, 42.5 per cent will help pay for a school lunch program here in Marin County.

The American Freedom From Hunger Foundation is the parent organization of all Walks for Development and will receive 15 per cent of all donations. They furnish publicity, films, literature, and information for such walks.

THE SAME SPONSORSHIP system will be used this year. Each walker, after receiving his walk card, will go to parents, friends, relatives, neighbors, or businesses in an attempt to raise money. Those sponsors pick an arbitrary amount of money, such as 10 cents per mile, and sign the card.

Those wishing information should contact Bob Morgen or Steve Jensen at Drake High School, Anne or Vicki Duggan at Terra Linda High School, or Parker Lee at San Rafael High School.

Wine Fete Sept. 23

The Novato Civic Foundation's wine tasting party to benefit the Novato Creek Demonstration Project will be held Sept. 23, not Sept. 13 as erroneously reported in yesterday's Independent-Journal.

Eyebrow Lifting Suit By Zsa Zsa Seeks $3 Million

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Zsa Zsa Gabor filed a $3 million lawsuit Thursday against Thrifty Drug Stores for allegedly selling her brand of false eyelashes at $2.75 a pair instead of $15.

Miss Gabor sued the Los Angeles based drug chain in conjunction with McBride's Industries Inc., a cosmetics firm which markets a line of cosmetics under the name "Zsa Zsa."

At a news conference the actress accused Thrify of unfair business practices and infringement of trademark in a dispute over sales of the eyelashes.

She said she didn't know whether Thrifty's eyelashes were genuine Zsa Zsa, but "it was our box."

"We don't sell to everyone," she added. "We never appointed Thrifty to join that select group."

Thrifty's April 8 sales ad inferred "we were out of business," Miss Gabor said. Actually, the company markets a line of 125 cosmetics.

The suit asked $1.5 million real damages and $1.5 million punitive damages. It asked the court to stop Thrify from advertising or selling Zsa Zsa products and to make Thrifty account for all previous sales.

Government Oppression Peril Right To Know

"There was a time when excellence in reporting received awards. Now it is just as likely to draw a subpoena."

That bitter comment came recently from Julian Goodman, president of National Broadcasting Co.

"Never has the subpoena been used as viciously, as irresponsibly and as often against freedom of the press as it has this year."

That was contained in a report of the American Society of Newspaper Editors' freedom of information committee, presented at the society's annual convention.

BROADCASTING AND PUBLISHING both are faced with what amounts to government attempts at suppression. Broadcasting is by far the more vulnerable to such attacks, since every radio and television station must be licensed by the government. But both forms of mass communication are menaced; and a threat to either is a threat to both.

The extent to which government censorship has imposed itself on the broadcasters was made frighteningly obvious last week when NBC cancelled a speech by former Interior Secy. Walter J. Hickel, on commercially sponsored time, because it was "too controversial."

The network had agreed to carry the address, entitled, "Wanted: a New Breed of Leader," on 234 stations. But after Ben Raub, an NBC attorney, read an advance copy, it cancelled the agreement. Raub, like network president Goodman, was afraid of that subpoena.

CENSORSHIP IS IMPLICIT also in new "guidelines" issued by the Federal Communications Commission warning radio stations against playing records which promote the use of drugs. (One of several lawsuits challenging this raises the question of whether "Tea for Two" might be barred from the air.) And censorship is at least hinted in the FCC's new requirement that broadcasting stations renew their licenses annually, instead of every three years. But it is exposed most nakedly in the attempts by the Justice Department to subpoena notes and records of TV, radio and newspaper reporters and photographers.

Capital sources deny piously that there is any attempt at censorship. But when the vice president publicly berates the networks for alleged distortions in newscasts and documentaries, there is no suggestion from elsewhere in the administration that it is possible that Spiro Agnew himself might be guilty of distortions. And when the Justice Department attempts to violate the well-established right of reporters to protect their news sources, no one in the White House interposes a word in defense of freedom of the press.

TO NBC'S PRESIDENT Goodman, the attempted suppression has become Orwellian. FCC claims it is "expanding freedom" by its new rules and guidelines. Says Goodman, wryly: "Restriction is freedom. Stepping back is going forward. Supervision promotes independence."

"The end result," declares Vincent T. Wasilewski, president of the National Association of Broadcasters, "will be that the government will inform a station what program it must broadcast, how often and in what time period."

The indications are that the government would like to apply to newspapers the same kind of restrictions it can apply to radio and TV stations through its licensing powers. Unable to do that, it must depend on the attacks of Spiro Agnew and company.

It is time to call a halt to this sort of thing. Oppression has no place in a democratic government. The tactics of dictatorship cannot be brooked in a free country.

AFFAIRS OF STATE

In California, 'Nothing's Too Good For Our Legislators'

By HENRY C. MACARTHUR

SACRAMENTO (CNS) — A few years ago, the disclosure that a state legislator made a sum of money through a real estate deal, or even stood to make a profit on an investment connected remotely with legislative business, would have caused more than lifted eyebrows.

Such a disclosure would have provided the motif for legislative investigations to determine whether the legislator was acting outside the law, or even acting in an immoral manner.

But this isn't so today. The prevailing attitude is, "Who cares? And even if it's so, who's going to prove it?"

THIS HAPPENS to be the case in an attempt to connect Pauline Davis, D-Portola, with possible profit on a real estate purchase at Lake Davis, an artificial lake in Plumas County which was named by the state legislature for Mrs. Davis's late husband.

The deceased husband was prominent in fish and game and conservation activities, so when the time came to name the Plumas County lake, the legislators chose to call it after their late colleague, a happening which is not infrequent in legislative procedure.

The fact that his widow, who was elected to succeed him and has been elected regularly to the post ever since his death, chose to invest some money in a land holding around the lake would seem to be her private business, and also the business of her legislative friend who similarly invested in the lake property.

NO ACCUSATION of illegality in the deal was made, although there were inferences in the disclosures that "influence" may have played a part in the legislators' obtaining the property at a good price. But anyone wanting to show that Mrs. Davis sold a vote for a piece of land would have to go a long way to prove such an allegation.

So Mrs. Davis is guilty of nothing, apparently, except the desire to acquire some recreational land, and possibly turn some of it for a profit, a course followed by thousands of citizens all through the state.

THE PITIFUL PART of the picture is that legislators find it necessary to engage in extra-curricular activities to add to the already generous pay, allowances, expense accounts, fringe benefits in the form of ultra-generous pensions, virtually free automobiles, several offices, all manned with experienced help, occasional foreign trips available to some members, airplane tickets, and so on, ad infinitum.

Add to these goodies the fact that legislators have free meals available whenever they want to call in a lobbyist, and free hunting and fishing trips on occasion, paid for by the lobbyists.

MRS. DAVIS IS NOT the first legislator to profit or contemplate profiting by a real estate deal. In fact, her deal was picayune in comparison to some.

In fact, the attitude of the public these days is to give the legislators anything they want, and provide the greatest leeway for them to profit on the side.

The voters of Mrs. Davis's far-flung legislative district will decide next year whether her real estate deal is subject to question. Odds are that they will pay no attention to it.

Rap Session Contest Letters

The Independent-Journal today presents the first "Rap Session" contest letters, discussing Youth and the Establishment. The contest will continue until May 24, with a prize of $75 offered for the best letter from each of four age groups: 14-17, 18-21, 22-30, and over 30 years old. Your letters are invited.

Community Rapping The Only Solution

I think that the only way that we can overcome the generation gap is by rapping amongst ourselves. I know that we can have family conversations and such, but we need more. We need to have whole communities in which we can all discuss and overcome this one terrible gap. We can all get together and solve all of our problems with each other. Maybe we can have one special TV channel that discusses the problems of the generation gap. We can also send letters to this community (if we have one) of recommendation on solutions of the gap.

Forget Yourself: Listen To Your Kids

I just heard the story of the San Francisco police sergeant and his son who argued with the result that the father was shot by the son. The father had previously turned the son in for possession of marijuana. He evidently felt the law was worth enforcing; the son obviously disagreed. This story is an example of the complete lack of understanding between the young and their parents that exists in too many homes today. If members of a single family cannot relate to each other, what chance is there for love and peace to prevail among all of us in our relationships with other people?

I feel the problems between the youth and the over-30s have got to be solved in the home. If parents would stay home and listen to their kids, the first step toward true communication and understanding will begin. Forget the X-rated film at the Lark; forget the alcoholic and nicotine haze you get at the neighbors'; forget your volunteer work that feeds your ego and gains you recognition; forget working so many extra hours to earn money to buy your third radiation-producing super-duper color TV; forget your damn self, and listen to your kids. You will find them so intelligent, so full of compassion for the oppressed, so full of enthusiasm, and so filled with the same idealism that you had when you were young and lost in an effort to conform. Don't make them lose their idealism! Praise them and love them for it. It has given you the freedom to wear your bushy side burns and your bell bottom pants. It may bring you a pollutant-free planet, equality of races and sexes, world peace, and your own dignity.

Mrs. PAT GRABRIAN
San Rafael.

To Over-30s, Youth: Seek Understanding

To the over-30s: Do you sincerely want the exchange of better understanding with the youth?

For those that do: First, I suggest you present a genuine warmth for the youth. A warmth of genuine concern, interest, action, and respect for whatever their developed or undeveloped values may be.

You must mass out that "particular favoritism" for only some of the youths. Dismiss that "jealousy" carried toward the youth. Cease referring to the youth as "incompetent." Do away with the "false protection" for the youths and allow the youth to not only stumble but fall, once.

A genuine acceptance will introduce "adulterations." Harmony then makes her entrance and Hostility will take its exit!

It's not the youth that is responsible for the over-30s, but it is the over-30s that is responsible for the youth. Learn to value the young, also, instead of demanding them to value you.

Over-30s, broaden your wisdom. Get out your dictionary. Find the word "welcome." Now apply the definition to someone besides yourselves!

I say to the youth: It's not too late, understanding those other than ourselves. It is only the youth that understands later, and growth understands better.

Question yourself. Could a better understanding with over-30s be healthy for me?

Learn to value your health also, and always express how profoundly equal is your energy; and in the strainage, allow the division of directions, where those energies must reach, include a better understanding with everyone.

"It's never too late for the better or the best."

D. ANN WHITT
San Rafael.

Youth, Adults Must Both Get Involved

We are extremely fortunate to live in a comparatively open society where there are few bans on self-expression and differing viewpoints. Because of this, many of our problems are a lot more visible to everyone. So, also solutions can be provided more readily. This is both a hazard and an asset.

To accomplish change in our society, youth and adults should use the tools which our open society has available.

1. Publicity — Television, newspapers, magazines, radio, demonstrations, pickets, assembly, conversation-dialogue.
2. Action — Vote, political contributions (time, ideas, money), social contributions (volunteer programs, church programs, government programs).

Get involved. Get interested. Do something more than just living, working, and existing.

Adults resent youth because they feel that youth has the time to get involved whereas the adults never had that time when they were young and feel they don't have it now.

Parents must take the time to get involved with their kids and the community. Involvement is the name of the game. So, don't be a bystander. Pick something you like and jump in. Express yourself. Do something. Don't just stand there. Our country has room for everyone's opinions and ideas. Only by becoming involved will we keep it that way.

DO IT NOW!

Generation gap here to stay?
That's what many people say —
But is it true I ask of you?
Now think a bit, analyze it.
Age is not an unchanging spot.
People dissent, problems are met.
People involved, problems are solved.
So jump in — begin — begin!
Begin something. Change something.
Retain something. Gain something.
That is how, the time is Now.
So don't procrastinate — regenerate!

ALVIN W. HEINE
Novato.

Has Youth Seen Honest Fortitude?

I am a 64½-year-old grandmother! I think the youth of today is truly wonderful, "super-dooper" I used to tell my tiny tots in nursery school.

They are super-smart, and super-hurt, and we or our children are the ones who have done the hurting (of these beautiful people). My grandson, Steve, huge, blond and handsome is smart, honest and confused. And my child and her husband have sincerely tried to be "good parents." But — and I write this with a bleeding heart — like so many other "over 30," I truly believe they were too busy "searching for their own identity" and gouging for that damned "almighty dollar." Poor babies!

"God's in His heaven, all's right with the world." OK. So preach it from the pulpit — and those young people are in church and Sunday school — and then take another pill, a "pepper-upper" or a "downer" or a vitamin or a reducing pill or whatever. Tell me, has their generation ever seen a honest case of "good old American intestinal fortitude" — guts, to quote my dear, wonderful, dead 87-year-old mother?

I've a beautiful 17-year-old granddaughter, and she's a beautiful person, she has character and guts, but she didn't learn it from her parents' generation! Maybe from mine.

Russ Step Up Space Program While United States Cuts Back

WASHINGTON — Space exploration is entering the era of the commonplace.

The United States and the Soviet Union are showing that they now have the capabilities of doing almost anything in outer space and going almost anywhere — even to distant planets — if they try hard enough.

The Russians have excelled in unmanned flights.

The Americans have excelled in manned flights, thrice to the moon with more trips in prospect.

But at the very moment the United States is cutting back its NASA budget the Soviets are stepping theirs up.

They are devoting four times as much of their gross national product to space as we are.

They are launching more spacecraft per year than the United States.

THE RUSSIANS are currently spending as much on space as NASA was at its peak two years ago — and are keeping it up while we are considerably curtailing.

It is estimated that Russia is putting at least 2 per cent of its GNP into its space program while the United States is spending only .5 of one per cent of its larger GNP.

Momentum is still with the United States but there is no assurance it will remain that way. During the first 13 years of the Space Age the experts credit the United States with 42 "firsts" and the U.S.S.R. with 31. They break down as follows:

	U.S.	U.S.S.R.
Spaceflight and propulsion	7	12
Manned flights	8	8
New scientific knowledge	16	8
Technological applications	7	2
Auxiliary systems	4	1
Total	42	31

What next?

THE RUSSIANS are projecting a very comprehensive program for exploiting space technology, including exploration and settlement (if possible) of the planets. Moscow plans its own manned landings on the moon and, as illustrated by its latest experimental dockings of Salyut and Soyuz 10, is getting nearer to creating earth orbital stations for a variety of new ventures.

The Soviet Academy of Sciences pictures a future space station as a hub to which up to four Soyuz craft can dock like spokes in a wheel. From this beginning the Russians foresee large and permanent orbital stations on which many astronauts, scientists and technicians can carry on research. They will also be used for orbital assembly and launch devices for sending manned expeditions to the moon and the planets.

The United States is also projecting an ambitious sky-laboratory with a life support system capable of serving a large number of people for substantial periods of time.

But the main new element in the American program for the '70s will be the development of a reusable, low-cost shuttle space craft to act as a ferry from earth to orbit and return. Each shuttle could be flown 100 or more times.

THE USE OF SHUTTLE craft would soon reduce the cost of manned space flight considerably and in the end, experts say, would drop them to a mere one per cent of what they are today. Thus the cost of an Apollo manned flight would be cut from $400 million to $4 million.

At such prices future space exploration becomes a very profitable national investment.

In the next five years U.S. space craft will orbit Mars twice, another Mariner will fly around Venus and on to Mercury. They plan to explore the Asteroid belt and approach Venus. The Russians are talking about flying to the giant planets, even to comets and planetoids.

Apparently anything man can think of he can do —if he applies himself.

BY NO MEANS NEUTRAL

Marchers Don't Influence Nixon — But the Polls Do

By ERNEST B. FURGURSON

WASHINGTON — When the organizers of the spring series of be-ins here in the capital were soliciting their first press clipping, I belittled them. Not because they were not going to draw a crowd; you could draw a crowd with Lawrence Welk these sunny, breezy days along the Mall. But because Richard Nixon so clearly was going to anticipate them by stepping up troop withdrawals and otherwise proving that the war is indeed winding down.

Wherewith a lady in California, whose signature I cannot decipher, wrote me a thought-provoking post card, as follows:

"If Nixon reads of the peace movement plans to step up activities, and he causes casualty figures to dip and numbers of troops home to rise, then the peace movement is making itself felt, you ninny!"

THE LADY EXPRESSES herself as pithily as I would like to. But she assumes, as both the well-behaved and the exhibitionist marchers do, that the President makes his war decisions on the basis of how many bodies can crowd downtown Washington on an April Saturday afternoon and how many Viet Cong flags can be flown from how many generals' statues, and how many benches around the Washington Monument can be broken up for firewood during an all-night rock concert.

The assumption is shared by some of us sideliners, too. The Washington Post, for example, laid on five stories and two pictures about the march on page 1, plus all the news holes from page 14 through 23 inside, a total of about 30 columns of space on a Sunday morning. Of course, you have to allow for the fact that for them it was a home-town event.

But from any less besieged viewpoint, the movement is beginning now to qualify for a paraphrase of Spiro Agnew on slums or Ronald Reagan on redwoods: When you've seen one demonstration, you've seen them all.

TRUE, THE BACKDROP was different. This time the masses converged at the foot of Capitol Hill, so the telephoto lenses brought the 19-foot bronze figure of Thomas Crawford's Freedom on the Capitol dome up tight against the longhairs waving the enemy flag from atop the Peace Monument.

True, too, there were a few more legislators who came out to say a kind word for the demonstrators. This time they didn't have so far to walk. But still they were a minority handful.

Yet when all this was taking place last week end, the one man with the authority to make a peremptory change in the nation's Indochina policy was enjoying the redbuds and early dogwood up at Camp David. And today, when the more radical complainants gather to execute their thing, he plans to be at Camp Pendleton, in San Diego County, Calif., welcoming some marines home from the war.

If last week's march had brought 100,000 more protesters to the capital than it did, or 100,000 fewer, it would not have altered the fact that those marines were coming home. Altogether, 265,000 troops have been brought back from Vietnam now. That is more people than came to town for what was intended to be the biggest antiwar rally of all.

MR. NIXON DOES NOT have to hang around the White House of a week end and watch the festivities to find out how the nation feels about the war.

If he is not the most scrupulous student of public opinion polls since Lyndon Johnson went home to the ranch, surely that person is somewhere on his White House payroll, reporting to him. And the polls have shown a steady rise in the percentage of Americans who want out of Vietnam and a steady slump in those who think Mr. Nixon is handling the war well.

A Gallup Poll in October, 1969, showed 57 per cent in favor of withdrawing by the end of last year. Still, two months later, another check recorded 65 per cent endorsing the President's handling of the issue. Last November, 61 per cent wanted out of Vietnam by the end of this year. But this March only 37 per cent approved Mr. Nixon's conduct of the war.

A Christian Science Monitor survey in February found 62 per cent supporting a unilateral U.S. pullout — but, significantly for the President, the marchers and my lady correspondent from California, the same poll showed 57 per cent of Americans were unsympathetic to demonstrations lumped as "student unrest."

The point is that we have in the White House, or at Camp David or Camp Pendleton, a man who is such an analyst of public opinion that he is predictable more for his followship than his leadership. Such a man sees writ large and unavoidably what he must do. So if we weren't having such nice weather, the marchers in their thousands would do just as well to stay indoors and watch the troops coming home on television.

The United States increased its military aid to the embattled government of Laos.

Willie Mays hit four home runs in one game as the San Francisco Giants trounced the Milwaukee Braves, 14 to 4.

Marin County supervisors decided to investigate the number and kind of people appointed by Sheriff Walter Sellmer as special civil defense deputies.

Swedish Trick De Cuisine Or Not, Old Viking's Fare Is Scrumptious

For sheer flavor suggestive of all the benefits of home cooking it's hard to beat the Old Viking in Lagunitas.

Whether this is a Swedish trick de cuisine or Phyllis Mattsson's own personal skill I am not sure, but it makes itself particularly evident in meat dishes like short ribs of beef, the Swedish beefsteak and the pot roast. And it also extends into the salads and desserts. The Viking red cake would make Betty Crocker sit up and take notice.

Now well into its seventh year, this little restaurant has done amazingly well. It passed the "survival test" three or four years ago and since then Matts and Phyllis Mattsson have been moving along comfortably in the stretch.

Driving from the east, you come on it suddenly at a curve in the road and you may pass right by it if you are not paying attention. Its brightness and old fashioned architecture identifies it as a place you must visit sometime and if you experience this feeling, respond to it before it cools off and you are submerged again in the complexities of living.

Too often the "little spot at the side of the road" gets passed over when it may be the very thing you need to quiet disturbing problems. It's hard to keep your tensions at the Old Viking.

If the parking area is filled at both sides with cars, you can be sure the tables are well filled. In this case, stop a minute or two, look inside and inquire if reservations may be necessary for any other time you have in mind.

A BUILDING PERMIT has been issued and construction is scheduled to begin immediately on a new 4,100-square foot Sambo's restaurant at 1700 Novato Boulevard, Novato. This is on a one-half acre site in the Hoytt Enterprises complex and should allow plenty of room for off street parking.

BIGGEST DAY OF THE YEAR for most restaurants is Mother's Day. For many it is more crowded than Easter. And some of the restaurants that closed on Easter will remain open this day.

The reason is, I presume, that Easter is regarded by some as a family day calling for dinner at home. But Mother's Day is a time for Mom to get away from the kitchen and cooking and have someone wait on her.

It is only a little more than a week away (May 9) and if ever there was a time for advance reservations, this is it. There is no point in keeping Momwaiting for a table on her day off, whereas a little forethought should move things along much more smoothly and quickly.

FRANCHINI'S CHATEAU expects a big turnout on Mother's Day, I know, and reservations are definitely in order here.

This year there will be no Mother's Day brunch at Franchini's and dinners will be served from 1 p.m.

Next week this restaurant will revert to its former seven-days-a-week operation. For some time now it has been closing on Mondays.

BILL AND ADOLPH'S WEST END VILLA in San Rafael, which started holiday brunches last Easter, will follow this up with another one on Mother's Day. Service will begin at 11 a.m. and continue to 2:30 or 3 p.m.

Leading off as an appetizer will be strawberries Bavarian — a variation from the Pineapple Bavarian dish that was popular on Easter. Eggs benedict, mixed grill and other combinations will be featured. With any decent weather, service will be given in the outdoor garden patio.

Mother's Day dinners will be served from 2:30 p.m. Menu will include prime rib, lobster thermidor, roast leg of lamb, Virginia baked ham, scallopini, parmigiana, cannelloni and several steaks.

A dish that is finding increasing favor at West End is the crepes Bombay — crepes filled with lobster, shrimp and crab, curried and topped with a mornay sauce and cheese. You can also get this as an appetizer to whet your appetite.

NOW I KNOW at least one reason why the Pepperwood in San Anselmo's Red Hill Shopping Center has been so busy recently. (Scotty) Jim Davidson has been cheffing here, and there is no doubt that his food is well liked. He served at the Pepperwood once before, a couple of years ago.

At times you will also find him at the Rafters in Corte Madera. (This is also a Compton Corp. restaurant).

ENTERTAINER MARK WILLIAMS completed his fourth year last weekend at the Windjammer in Tiburon and is now starting his fifth. He has been a popular performer at the piano bar on Friday and Saturday nights and we hope to see him celebrate quite a few more anniversaries here.

MARK WILLIAMS
Four years at Windjammer

MICHAEL BERGES at International Gourmet, 430 Las Gallinas Avenue in Northgate has now acquired an on sale wine and beer license.

Lunches are served here, although the place is primarily a delicatessen. Anyway — now you can have a beer with your pastrami sandwich.

NEXT WEEK, if you notice that Gary's at 928 Grant Avenue, Novato has closed — it won't be for good.

It will mean that Gary and Vivian Bowker have completed a transaction now pending for its sale. New owners plan on a complete remodeling job lasting about three weeks. This means there won't be a reopening until the latter part of May.

Projected here is a different type of operation — an English and American pub to be known as the Two Flags Pub, serving dinners and with a dart board set-up. Since the sale is not yet closed, more about it when it is.

THE HEXAGON HOUSE at the edge of Armstrong Woods in Guerneville opened last week for dinners on weekends. Service is from 5 p.m.

Cattle Judging Set May 22

Dairy cattle judging will be held May 22 at the Petaluma Fairgrounds as part of the California Black and White Show.

The event is sponsored by the Redwood Empire Holstein Friesian Association, and judging of junior and senior divisions will begin at 9 a.m. The judge will be professor Robert J. Selkirk, head of the dairy department at Fresno State College.

Entry cards and information may be obtained by calling the chairman of the event, Hank Corda of 539 Upham Street, Petaluma, after 6 p.m.

New Shakespeare Group To Perform

The new Shakespeare company of San Francisco will present "As You Like It" at 8 p.m. May 6 at the Sonoma State College Commons.

The performance of the 25-member company, headed by the director-producer team of Margrit Roma and Clarence Ricklefs, is sponsored by the college English department.

Drunkenness Fine Imposed

A member of the Hell's Angels motorcycle club has been fined $45 for being drunk in public, a charge which stemmed from his arrest April 21 in Sausalito.

Judge Peter Allen Smith of Marin Municipal Court also placed the cyclist, Peter Richard Knell, 34, of San Francisco, on probation for one year.

Knell was arrested outside the Red Pants Bar on Bridgeway after a visit to Sausalito by about 75 members of the motorcycle club on their way to a luau at Kirby Cove on the Marin Headlands.

Summer Session Registration

Petaluma High School and Rohnert Park Junior High School are accepting student registrations for the June 21-Aug. 6 summer session.

Students in grades seven through 12 are eligible for the various classes to be offered.

Course descriptions and registration materials may be obtained from Gerald Dadey, summer school principal at Petaluma high, and Frank Hutchison, summer school head at Rohnert Park Junior high.

I-J REPORTER'S NOTEBOOK

Who Is Bill Hall? It Turns Out He's Been Free Some Time

Driving through Mill Valley, one still can see tattered remnants of green bumper stickers plastered to telephone poles, fences and walls. In sign-concious Mill Valley, the bright strips stand out like fluorescent signs.

A few stickers have weathered the winter's rain and wind and their legend still can be read: "Free Bill Hall, keep Mill Valley free."

With many leaders of alternative political organizations in jails and prisons, slogans imploring their freedom are common. They urge the release of, among others, Angela Davis, Bobby Seale and Huey Newton.

But Bill Hall? And why should his release help keep Mill Valley free?

WILLIAM REED HALL, it turns out, is free — for the moment. He goes to trial next month in Marin Superior Court on a charge of possession of one ounce of marijuana.

He was arrested July 10, 1970, by an agent of the Marin County Drug Abuse Bureau who said he saw Hall sharing a marijuana Cigarette with two young girls. The agent said he found a lid of grass in Hall's pocket.

The speed of justice being what it is, Hall still awaits trial on the charge. Meanwhile's he's out on bail.

After months of seeing Hall's name on bumper stickers, I wasn't sure he really existed. But he does — I spoke with him this week at his Mill Valley home, where he was trimming the hedges in his back yard.

And the bumber stickers? "I was surprised when I got out of jail and saw them," he said, brushing clippings out of his hair.

"A friend of mine who runs a bumper strip operation thought it would be fun to print some for me. Maybe they'll be valuable some day."

DIRECTORS OF the Tiburon Sanitary District, rebuffed in their attempts to remain independent of a special district set up to study waste disposal in Southern Marin, have installed a pilot treatment plant designed to turn sewage outfall into clear water.

The board ordered the equipment at its Paradise Drive treatment plant even though the San Francisco Bay Regional Water Quality Control Board has refused to approve an application for federal funds for the project unless the Tiburon district joins the special Southern Marin district.

The board has made its position clear — it wants to convert its entire plant to the new activated carbon process rather than take part in "just another study" to determine how to dispose of waste.

But the regional board, which must approve loan applications before they can be submitted to the federal government, also made its positioc clear — if Tiburon doesn't join the district, its application will be ignored.

Now the district has gone ahead and set up the pilot plant, a complicated maze of tubes, chambers, dials and wires.

Here's hoping the members of the regional board will see that tiburon really wants to clean up San Francisco Bay!

VOICE OF YOUTH

Walk For Development Again To Combat Hunger

By ANNE DUGGAN
Junior, Terra Linda
High School

No one likes the idea of starving people. Pictures of Biafran children with stomachs distended from malnutrition brought outraged cries and donations of food and money when first published. Public sympathy was aroused and those with more gave to those with less. However, it seems to be a different story when there is hunger in this country. No one is starving in the good old U.S.A. — right? In case anyone hasn't noticed, there are people starving in marvelous Marin County; there may not be many pictures, like the tear-jerkers taken in other countries, but hunger exists.

Very often, plain old citizens, like you and me, take measures into their own hands. The Marin Walk for Development (formerly the Marin Walk Against Hunger) is one of these efforts. It is a drive run mainly by high school students who take no compensation for the time they spend on this project.

THE NEXT WALK in Marin is May 9, and covers 20 miles, beginning at Redwood High School at 7 a.m. The route will go through Corte Madera, San Rafael, San Anselmo, Fairfax, and Ross, and end at Redwood later that evening.

The money will go to almost the same three charities as last year.

Meals for Millions, which is building a multi-purpose food factory in Ecuador, will get 42.5 per cent of all the money received.

Money to the Economic Opportunity Council, 42.5 per cent will help pay for a school lunch program here in Marin County.

The American Freedom From Hunger Foundation is the parent organization of all Walks for Development and will receive 15 per cent of all donations. They furnish publicity, films, literature, and information for such walks.

THE SAME SPONSORSHIP system will be used this year. Each walker, after receiving his walk card, will go to parents, friends, relatives, neighbors, or businesses in an attempt to raise money. Those sponsors pick an arbitrary amount of money, such as 10 cents per mile, and sign the card.

Those wishing information should contact Bob Morgen or Steve Jensen at Drake High School, Anne or Vicki Duggan at Terra Linda High School, or Parker Lee at San Rafael High School.

Wine Fete Sept. 23

The Novato Civic Foundation's wine tasting party to benefit the Novato Creek Demonstration Project will be held Sept. 23, not Sept. 13 as erroneously reported in yesterday's Independent-Journal.

Vote-For-Youth Amendment Set For Action

(Marin Youth Commission notice.)

Attention: Youth of Marin County

The Committee on Constitutional Amendments is studying an amendment that will allow 18-year-olds to vote. If the amendment gets out of committee, the present voters will decide whether or not we will vote before age 21.

One member of the committee is Assemblyman William T. Bagley, R-San Rafael. As residents of his district, we have the option to let him know how we feel on the voting issue. If you're ready to vote, let Bagley know.

Write him at: Room 4016, State Capitol, Sacramento, Calif. 95814.

Eyebrow Lifting Suit By Zsa Zsa Seeks $3 Million

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Zsa Zsa Gabor filed a $3 million lawsuit Thursday against Thrifty Drug Stores for allegedly selling her brand of false eyelashes at $2.75 a pair instead of $15.

Miss Gabor sued the Los Angeles based drug chain in conjunction with McBride's Industries Inc., a cosmetics firm which markets a line of cosmetics under the name "Zsa Zsa."

At a news conference the actress accused Thrify of unfair business practices and infringement of trademark in a dispute over sales of the eyelashes.

She said she didn't know whether Thrifty's eyelashes were genuine Zsa Zsa, but "it was our box."

"We don't sell to everyone," she added. "We never appointed Thrifty to join that select group."

Thrifty's April 8 sales ad inferred "we were out of business," Miss Gabor said. Actually, the company markets a line of 125 cosmetics.

The suit asked $1.5 million real damages and $1.5 million punitive damages. It asked the court to stop Thrify from advertising or selling Zsa Zsa products and to make Thrifty account for all previous sales.

COUNTY COMMENT

By WILLIAM D. (BILL) FUSSELMAN

Supervisors Now Must Face Genuine 'Political Necessity'

Last week, when I heard over KTIM on Tuesday that Alan Bruce had resigned, I determined to say very little if anything regarding him. However, there have been several items in the press which I must refer to while commenting on the county government situation. Following are several quotes from those items.

At a dinner meeting of the Marin Council for Civic Affairs, Bruce was the invited guest. Mrs. Margaret B. Azevedo, the chairman, paid him high tribute for courage and competance. Bruce thanked them for celebrating his liberation. Supervisors Michael Wornum, Peter Arrigoni and Arnold Baptiste were also in attendance.

Wornum expressed regret that "political necessity" had forced the supervisors to press for Bruce's resignation. (This "political necessity" will be referred to from time to time in the following weekly columns.) He also said "The job you did for the county can never be fully repaid."

FROM ANOTHER ITEM: Bruce: "I have no regrets for what I have done. I have had to cope with a relative lack of leadership and initiative in the board which I have not enjoyed at all. There has been an abdication on their part of responsibility without an abdication of authority."

Again — Bruce: "The department head . . . makes proposals that look good to him, but his proposals should be tempered by an administrative generalist who sees them in the overall context . . . The final tempering of judgment must come from the board of supervisors."

Yet another quote — McInnis: ". . . your refusal to accept graciously the policy determination of the elective forum."

IT MIGHT BE a good idea to clip this column and save it, as it will make it easier to follow references I will be making. The county government for the past decade had not been what one would be inclined to write home about. I hope to make observations and comments that will cause some serious thinking — thinking that will result in a more normal, down-to-earth operation with a realistic cost.

"Political necessity" that Wornum was concerned about is still around and is not going to vanish by Bruce's resignation. The public is in no mood to accept halfway changes that will simply be more convenient for the board members.

Three seats on the board of supervisors will be up for grabs in just a year and a year rolls around mighty fast. At the moment the rating of the board is not so good. Bruce's parting shots have not helped their image even a little bit.

Unlike Washington, D.C., and Sacramento, Brasilia is not the capitol of Marin. It is the administration building and the hall of justice. The amount of legislation produced there is minimal and only effective in the unincorporated areas. The grand manner of administration, which is effective only in a third of the county, is somewhat out of balance.

WHEN I READ that Supervisor Arrigoni had put in the agenda for Tuesday's board meeting the immediate hiring of a new administrator and then later heard that it had been continued for one week, it seemed that it would be better to discuss some things that I had intended for later.

Bruce resigned as of July 1. People feel that the better part of the next two months should be used for a review of the past 14 years of operation.

This board of supervisors has an opportunity to show the extent of its comprehension of what the situation really is.

Let's consider this for a moment. The City and County of San Francisco has a population of 715,674. The supervisors are paid $800 per month. They use the committee system, which keeps them close to the problems. These committees report to the board as a whole. Their board does not have to depend on one man for recommendations.

Marin County has a population of 206,038 but the supervisors here only have authority to function for one-third of that figure or 68,679. They receive $1,000 a month. It is well known that they have abdicated their responsibilities. They refer everything to staff. You have a great chance to be applauded. If you act like this is a hot potato you want to drop so that you can go on your way, you will not be.

'Weekend In Paris' Theme For Annual Ross Festival

The Marin Art and Garden Center in Ross will become a bit of France for its traditional Independence Day weekend festival, July 3 and 4.

This year the celebration will not be the longtime Marin County fair, but rather will be staged as a benefit for the 14 organizations that operate the nonprofit art and garden center. The county fair will be held in October at the Marin County Civic Center.

The festival in Ross will center on the theme "Weekend in Paris," with French tricolor-decorated stalls, Parisian entertainment and French food offered from 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. each day.

Entertainment will include can-can dancers, puppetry, folk dance and vaudeville acts and fashion shows. Art in action demonstrations will have a "Left Bank" flourish, the planners said, and will compete with a "daring Montmarte picture collection, bijou and bouquet exhibits." A flea market, bookstalls and an antique shop, sidewalk cafe with French menus and formal Gallic gardens also will be featured.

Admission and sales revenues will be used to keep the art and garden center grounds and exhibits in operation the year around, sponsors said. The committee in charge includes Carl Q. Riznik, William A. Millen, Hugh Peterson, Eugene A. Ostaggi and Tom Perry.

Breakdown Of Contaminants To Be Reported

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — The annual breakdown of all major sources of contamination will be presented to Bay Area Air Pollution Control District directors at 10 a.m. Wednesday in district offices, 939 Ellis Street.

The 1970 "source inventory report" will identify each major source, and list the tonnage of contaminants they emit.

The staff also will report on possible legal grounds for appealing a decision by the state Air Resources Board permitting Sonoma and Solano counties to exclude portions of their territory from the district.

The executive committee will meet first at 9:30 a.m.

Bank Robbers Do It Just Like The Movies

BOREHAM WOOD, England (UPI)—To passers-by it looked like just another scene being shot by one of the big studios down the road.

So hundreds of shoppers went calmly about their business Thursday as a gang of masked men with shotguns held up the local Barclays Bank, making off with $69,600 in payroll money.

"I'm not surprised," a police spokesman said. "We have television and film studios up the road at Elstree. People around here are used to seeing dramatic situations being reconstructed."

Equal Rights Bill Advances In House

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The proposed constitutional amendment guaranteeing equal rights to women has won approval from a subcommittee of the House Judiciary Committee.

The full committee now must pass on the proposal. Last year the House passed the same proposed amendment but it died in the Senate.

Oakview School Planning Playground Fund-Raiser

A walk to raise money for playground equipment will be held from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. May 8 by the students at the Oakview School.

The walk will not be monotonous as there will be live entertainment and refreshments to go with it, according to Publicity Chairman Judy Kaye.

This is the second such walk for the school. The one last year raised $4,000 to purchase playground equipment for the four-year old school at 730 Oakview Terrace.

The march will start at the school, led by a San Rafael Fire Department truck. It will go two miles to the Terra Linda High School track. There the students will continue marching around the track, each lap counting one quarter of a mile.

Here they will be entertained by the Prince Charles Marching Bagpipe Band from Corte Madera, several rock bands, and Alice in Wonderland and the White Rabbit played by actors from the American Conservatory Theater, Mrs. Kaye said. Local dignitaries have been invited, she said.

Participating children are given a card on which they can have up to 25 neighbors and friends pledge to pay them so much per mile. Last year the students averaged eight miles, although many of them walked as far as 22 miles, according to Mrs. Kaye. Mothers of the school children will keep track of the miles walked, she said.

Hamburgers, ice cream and soft drinks will be for sale at the site, she said.

A Rockefeller Divorce Settled

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (UPI)—The wife of former Arkansas Gov. Winthrop Rockefeller was granted a divorce Thursday on grounds of "general indignities."

Attorneys for both sides declined to disclose terms of the settlement to which Mrs. Jeannette Edris Rockefeller agreed.

Rockefeller was reported to have paid a $6 million settlement to his first wife, Mrs. Barbara Sears "Bobo" Rockefeller when they were divorced in 1954.

DINING OUT AND INNS

By HARRY CRAFT

Swedish Trick De Cuisine Or Not, Old Viking's Fare Is Scrumptious

For sheer flavor suggestive of all the benefits of home cooking it's hard to beat the Old Viking in Lagunitas.

Whether this is a Swedish trick de cuisine or Phyllis Mattsson's own personal skill I am not sure, but it makes itself particularly evident in meat dishes like short ribs of beef, the Swedish beefsteak and the pot roast. And it also extends into the salads and desserts. The Viking red cake would make Betty Crocker sit up and take notice.

Now well into its seventh year, this little restaurant has done amazingly well. It passed the "survival test" three or four years ago and since then Matts and Phyllis Mattsson have been moving along comfortably in the stretch.

Driving from the east, you come on it suddenly at a curve in the road and you may pass right by it if you are not paying attention. Its brightness and old fashioned architecture identifies it as a place you must visit sometime and if you experience this feeling, respond to it before it cools off and you are submerged again in the complexities of living.

Too often the "little spot at the side of the road" gets passed over when it may be the very thing you need to quiet disturbing problems. It's hard to keep your tensions at the Old Viking.

If the parking area is filled at both sides with cars, you can be sure the tables are well filled. In this case, stop a minute or two, look inside and inquire if reservations may be necessary for any other time you have in mind.

A BUILDING PERMIT has been issued and construction is scheduled to begin immediately on a new 4,100-square foot Sambo's restaurant at 1700 Novato Boulevard, Novato. This is on a one-half acre site in the Hoytt Enterprises complex and should allow plenty of room for off street parking.

BIGGEST DAY OF THE YEAR for most restaurants is Mother's Day. For many it is more crowded than Easter. And some of the restaurants that closed on Easter will remain open this day.

The reason is, I presume, that Easter is regarded by some as a family day calling for dinner at home. But Mother's Day is a time for Mom to get away from the kitchen and cooking and have someone wait on her.

It is only a little more than a week away (May 9) and if ever there was a time for advance reservations, this is it. There is no point in keeping Momwaiting for a table on her day off, whereas a little forethought should move things along much more smoothly and quickly.

FRANCHINI'S CHATEAU expects a big turnout on Mother's Day, I know, and reservations are definitely in order here.

This year there will be no Mother's Day brunch at Franchini's and dinners will be served from 1 p.m.

Next week this restaurant will revert to its former seven-days-a-week operation. For some time now it has been closing on Mondays.

BILL AND ADOLPH'S WEST END VILLA in San Rafael, which started holiday brunches last Easter, will follow this up with another one on Mother's Day. Service will begin at 11 a.m. and continue to 2:30 or 3 p.m.

Leading off as an appetizer will be strawberries Bavarian — a variation from the Pineapple Bavarian dish that was popular on Easter. Eggs benedict, mixed grill and other combinations will be featured. With any decent weather, service will be given in the outdoor garden patio.

Mother's Day dinners will be served from 2:30 p.m. Menu will include prime rib, lobster thermidor, roast leg of lamb, Virginia baked ham, scallopini, parmigiana, cannelloni and several steaks.

A dish that is finding increasing favor at West End is the crepes Bombay — crepes filled with lobster, shrimp and crab, curried and topped with a mornay sauce and cheese. You can also get this as an appetizer to whet your appetite.

NOW I KNOW at least one reason why the Pepperwood in San Anselmo's Red Hill Shopping Center has been so busy recently. (Scotty) Jim Davidson has been cheffing here, and there is no doubt that his food is well liked. He served at the Pepperwood once before, a couple of years ago.

At times you will also find him at the Rafters in Corte Madera. (This is also a Compton Corp. restaurant).

ENTERTAINER MARK WILLIAMS completed his fourth year last weekend at the Windjammer in Tiburon and is now starting his fifth. He has been a popular performer at the piano bar on Friday and Saturday nights and we hope to see him celebrate quite a few more anniversaries here.

MARK WILLIAMS
Four years at Windjammer

MICHAEL BERGES at International Gourmet, 430 Las Gallinas Avenue in Northgate has now acquired an on sale wine and beer license.

Lunches are served here, although the place is primarily a delicatessen. Anyway — now you can have a beer with your pastrami sandwich.

NEXT WEEK, if you notice that Gary's at 928 Grant Avenue, Novato has closed — it won't be for good.

It will mean that Gary and Vivian Bowker have completed a transaction now pending for its sale. New owners plan on a complete remodeling job lasting about three weeks. This means there won't be a reopening until the latter part of May.

Projected here is a different type of operation — an English and American pub to be known as the Two Flags Pub, serving dinners and with a dart board set-up. Since the sale is not yet closed, more about it when it is.

THE HEXAGON HOUSE at the edge of Armstrong Woods in Guerneville opened last week for dinners on weekends. Service is from 5 p.m.

The performance of the 25-member company, headed by the director-producer team of Margrit Roma and Clarence Ricklefs, is sponsored by the college English department.

Drunkenness Fine Imposed

A member of the Hell's Angels motorcycle club has been fined $45 for being drunk in public, a charge which stemmed from his arrest April 21 in Sausalito.

Judge Peter Allen Smith of Marin Municipal Court also placed the cyclist, Peter Richard Knell, 34, of San Francisco, on probation for one year.

Knell was arrested outside the Red Pants Bar on Bridgeway after a visit to Sausalito by about 75 members of the motorcycle club on their way to a luau at Kirby Cove on the Marin Headlands.

Summer Session Registration

Petaluma High School and Rohnert Park Junior High School are accepting student registrations for the June 21-Aug. 6 summer session.

Students in grades seven through 12 are eligible for the various classes to be offered.

Course descriptions and registration materials may be obtained from Gerald Dadey, summer school principal at Petaluma high, and Frank Hutchison, summer school head at Rohnert Park Junior high.

A's Pitching Sensation Vida Blue On Mound Tonight

OAKLAND (UPI) —Dick Williams, the Oakland A's manager, admits he got a "little hungry," but overall he is satisfied with his team's play.

Williams wanted three victories in the four-game series with the world champion Baltimore Orioles, especially after the A's won two of the first three games. But the Orioles, who always seem able to make the big play when one is needed, beat the A's 3-2 Thursday in the windup game of their series in Oakland.

"Before the series started I gladly would have settled for a split," said Williams, "but after we won two of the first three I'll admit I got hungry and wanted that third victory."

The A's, who have been making some pretty big plays themselves of late, almost pulled off another last-minute victory and for a split second in the ninth it looked like they might, but Dave Johnson speared Tommy Davis' pinchhit bid for a single and turned it into a doubleplay to end the game.

So tonight the A's start another four-game series, this time with the struggling Cleveland Indians and Vida Blue, the young man with the golden arm and a 5-1 won-lost record, has the starting assignment.

Diego Segui will pitch Saturday and Jim Hunter and Chuck Dobson will work Sunday's doubleheader. It will mark Dobson's first start of the year. He went on the shelf with a sore pitching elbow just before the start of the season. Williams says he is hoping Dobson can go five innings "and we'll go from there."

John (Blue Moon) Odom, another sore-armed pitcher, is at least a month away from taking a turn but the way the A's are playing now they hardly miss the one-time All-Star hurler.

Rollie Fingers has done a good job of taking up some of the slack. In Thursday's game against Baltimore he outpitched Jim Palmer but an error by shortstop Bert Campaneris and two gopher pitches did him in.

"I'm a little concerned about him serving up home run pitches," said Williams of Fingers' work, but added quickly, "He pitched good enough to win."

Boog Powell and Don Buford hit the homers for the Orioles and Fingers now has given up seven homers this year in 38 innings.

Campaneris booted a roller to short by Paul Blair in the first inning and Powell followed with his fifth homer. A single by Sal Bando and a homer by Dave Duncan tied the score at 2-2 in the second and it stayed that way until the eighth when Buford opened the inning with a homer.

Fingers gave up only five hits, struck out 10 and walked two as his record slipped to 1-3.

Palmer, a 20-game winner for the Orioles last year, wasn't as sharp as Fingers but he had more luck as he improved his record to 4-0.

Palmer was in trouble all the way and needed a game-ending doubleplay on a hard hit ball to survive.

Rick Monday opened the bottom of the ninth with a single, went to second on a sacrifice and held on as Palmer walked the pinch-hitting Steve Hovley.

Davis, who won Wednesday night's game with a hit in the ninth, lined the ball toward center but Johnson speared it and flipped to second for the doubleplay.

"You have to be lucky as well as good to win sometimes," admitted Palmer. "Another foot either way on Davis' hit and the game is tied, and maybe I'm out of there."

"That game now is history," said Williams, "so I'm going to forget it. Now all I want to think about is the Indians."

Williams said that Larry Brown, the shortstop-second baseman the A's purchased from Cleveland last weekend, will play in one of Sunday's games. He will go in for either Campaneris or Green.

Neither is hitting much and Campaneris is having his problems in the field. The error he made in Thursday's game was his 10th of the year and it came in his 24th game.

"Maybe he needs a rest," said Williams. "One thing's for sure, he is not playing as well as he can."

Campaneris had one hit in four at-bats Thursday and slipped under .200. Green isn't much better at .202.

For Sam Chapman A Return To Philly

Samuel Blake Chapman of Greenbrae, the former major league outfield star, will return to the scene of his prime this summer.

Now an inspector for the Bay Area Pollution Control District, Sam has accepted an invitation from the Philadelphia Phillies to play in a Philadelphia Old Timers game in August.

Actually, Slammin' Sammy played for the Philadelphia Athletics for about a decade, but the A's since have roved to Kansas City, thence to Oakland. And who wants to go to Oakland for an Old Timers game?

I saw Sam the other day and at 55 he still looks fit enough to send a few pitches out of the new Philadelphia stadium. An All-American halfback on U. of Cal's 1938 Rose Bowl team that beat Alabama 13-0, Chapman later that year moved from the Berkeley campus to Philadelphia where Manager Connie Mack greeted him the first day with the announcement: "Get out there, Sam. From now on you're my centerfielder."

Chapman, a Tiburon kid who went on to stardom at Tamalpais High before his football-baseball heroics at Cal, never played in the minor leagues until the 1950s when he would up his pro baseball career with the Oakland Oaks of the Pacific Coast League.

It was during his days in Oakland that Tam High had to tear down "Sam Chapman Stadium" as unsafe. Sam had outlasted the ballpark named in honor of Tam's most distinguished alumnus.

AND WHILE we're on the subject of major leaguers, I hope you noticed that John Dominic Boccabella of San Anselmo had a double and single in five trips to the plate yesterday as the Montreal Expos downed Boc's former teammates, the Chicago Cubs, 7-6. Boc The Sock played first base.

AND SPEAKING of Montreal, Allan Barrett Murray of Marin is busily organizing a tour to follow those red hot San Francisco Giants to Montreal-New York-Philadelphia June 7-16. Murray is president of the Giants Boosters Club and this is just one of several trips he has arranged. Contact Murray at GTS Travel, San Rafael, for further information.

WILLIAM KING DILLON of Novato, who guided Novato to the Babe Ruth World Series in Anchorage, Alaska in 1967 and has been active in junior baseball for several years, has resigned as director of the Ruth program's District 7. A sales representative for lithographic supplies company, Dillon said his job covering 11 western states has grown more demanding.

John Hover, president of the Redwood Empire League, has replaced Dillon. Assisting him are Ed Salmina, president of the Novato League, and John Bugbee, a director of the Santa Rosa League.

STRICKEN IN LINE OF DUTY

Chicago Cubs third baseman Ron Santo was stunned after feeling his jaw where a line drive hit him yesterday in the third inning against Montreal. The hit, by Bob Bailey, went for a single. Santo was taken to a hospital, where his injury was diagnosed as a laceration inside his lip. Montreal won the game, 7-6. (UPI Telephoto)

NEW YORK, CHICAGO TIED

Montreal Earns Berth In Stanley Cup Finals

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

The story of the National Hockey League Stanley Cup playoffs Thursday night was one of two late goals—one that counted and one that didn't.

The one that counted was by New York's Pete Stemkowski at 1:29 of the third overtime period and it enabled the Rangers to defeat the Chicago Black Hawks 3-2 and tie their best-of-seven series at three games each. The deciding game will be played Sunday afternoon in Chicago.

The goal that was disallowed was one by Minnesota's Ted Hampson and the call enabled Montreal to hold on to a 3-2 decision and advance to the Cup finals. The Canadiens won the series 4-2.

"It's the finest game I've ever seen the New York Rangers play," said Emile Francis, the club's coach and general manager. "It was our finest hour, a case of them refusing to lose. You'll live a long time before you see another game like that."

Chicago took a 2-0 lead on goals by Dennis Hull and Chico Maki but the Rangers tied it on a second period score by Rod Gilbert and Jean Ratelle's third period goal. New York outshot the Black Hawks 8-3 in the first overtime and Chicago missed eliminating the Rangers twice in the second overtime as Stan Mikita missed point blank goals.

The winning goal came when defenseman Tim Horton fed Ted Irvine, who skated in and shot at Chicago goaltender Tony Esposito. Esposito blocked Irvine's shot but Stemkowski, whose only other goal in the playoffs decided the first game in overtime, slammed in the rebound from about 15 feet.

Rejean Houle was the hero for Montreal as the Canadiens eliminated the surprising North Stars. Houle's goal at 13:29 of the second period snapped a 2-2 tie and provided the margin of victory. But it was Hampson who provided the last bit of excitement.

Minnesota pulled goalie Cesare Maniago in the closing seconds and Hampson broke loose. "Somehow I got ahead of the puck," said Hampson. "I saw Jude Drouin in front of me and tried to slide it to him, but it slid back into (goalie Ken) Dryden's pads and came back out. I got the rebound and shot it back in. It was a clean shot. I had no idea whether the light was on or not. I was concentrating on the puck."

The light Hampson referred to was the dual system in Minnesota. When a period ends, the blue light goes on and automatically negates the red light which signifies goal. Referee Bill Friday said that the blue light preceded Hampson's goal. "I have to respect his decision," said Hampson. "He's a good referee."

Crowded Field For 'Derby'

LOUISVILLE, Ky., (UPI)—There were strategy meetings all over the backstretch at Churchill Downs today as trainers and jockeys studied the post positions assigned 21 horses for Saturday's $188,000 Kentucky Derby.

Twenty-one horses were originally entered Thursday morning but the field was reduced by one late in the day when Mrs. Taylor Hardin's Sole Mio was scratched. Sole Mio apparently hurt a leg in his stall and trainer Woody Stephens said the colt would be unable to run in the derby.

"I'm afraid of 21 horses in the race," said trainer Johnny Campo whose Jim French drew No. 11 in the richest renewal of America's premier turf classic.

"There are too many horses in the race. That means a change of strategy for me. No, I am not going to tell you what it will be. But I'm not going to make any excuses for Jim French in this race. In his other races he had excuses," Campo said of Jim French who has raced this year in Florida, New York and California where the colt won the Santa Anita Derby.

"Jim French loves to fly but it makes me as sick as hell," said the man who was the leading trainer in New York last year.

It will be up to jockey Angel Cordero to carry out Campo's battle plans but that may be difficult in the second largest field ever to start in a Kentucky Derby. Twenty-one horses also started when Zev won in 1923 and when Clyde Van Dusen scored in 1929 while a record 22 went to the post in 1928, Reigh Count's year.

Jim French was a 4-1 third choice behind the Calumet Farm entry of Bold and Able and Eastern Fleet, favored at 5 to 2, and the Twist the Axe-Impetuosity entry, second choice at 7 to 2.

The Calumet Farm Entry, out for the famed stable's eighth victory in the Kentucky Derby, took over as favorite after the draw for post positions.

Bold and Able, with Jorge Velasquez riding, breaks from the coveted No. 1 post position and the colt has all the speed necessary to take full advantage of his lucky draw. Eastern Fleet, with Eddie Maple in the saddle, will start from No. 18 and trainer Reggie Cornell hinted at his strategy when he said, "He'll have to come out of there flying."

FOX GIVES CREDIT

Pitching, Kids And An Old Man

ATLANTA (UPI) — The Giants, winners of 17 of their first 22 games, are off to their fastest start in their 14 seasons in San Francisco and manager Charlie Fox says the credit goes "to our pitching, our kids and that fabulous old man."

The statistics bear Fox out:

The mound staff has a 2.25 earned run average; rookies Chris Speier and George Foster are hitting .336 and .308 respectively; and the "old man," soon-to-be-40 Willie Mays is hitting at a .348 clip.

Mays, who drove in the winning run in Tuesday's 10-inning contest, scored the winning run Thursday night in the Giants' 5-2 victory over the Atlanta Braves. And he did it in typical Mays' style—racing home from second on a bloop single by Ken Henderson.

The Giants best previous April record since moving to San Francisco in 1958 was their 15-5 mark in 1962. Also, their current 4 1-2 game lead in the National League West is their biggest margin in nearly five years.

"That kid at shortstop (Speier) has been sensational, our pitching has been really great and that Mays, what can you say about him that hasn't been said before, he's simply fabulous for his age.

"And that's not all," Fox continued. "Bobby Bonds (who is hitting .347) has been playing with an ailing ankle.

"It just seems that everybody we've put in there has done a good job for us." The Braves, who lost three straight to the streaking Giants to fall seven games off the lead, had a chance to win in the 12th inning Thursday night when they had the bases loaded and only one out. But third baseman Hal Lanier flagged down Hank Aaron's line shot and turned it into a threat-ending double play.

In the 13th, the Giants had to face Cecil Upshaw, the Braves' ace reliefer.

Speier led off with a single and Mays followed with a smash to right that struck Speier for the first out. Mays was credited with a single and promptly stole second, his third steal this month without being caught.

Willie McCovey flied to center and Dick Dietz walked and that brought up Henderson, hitless in five previous trips, with two on and two out.

"I really threw him a good pitch," Upshaw said sadly. "I jammed him right on the hands and he blooped the ball. I knew as soon as it started to float that we were in trouble."

The Giants tried to keep it going at Cincinnati tonight where they open a three-game series. It will either be Rich Robertson or Juan Marichal on the mound for San Francisco.

Marin Tars Top Solano

College of Marin exploded for 12 runs and 14 hits yesterday against Solano Junior College to whip the Falcons, 12-3, as the Tars raised their Camino Norte Conference baseball record to 11-5 in a game at Kentfield.

Going all the way on the mound for Marin was Jerry Goodrick, who gave up only one earned run and nine hits.

Taking the batting honors for the Tars was Rafael Gallardo, who was three for four. Also making a major contribution to the effort was Ken Robie with two hits, including a triple.

Three other Marin batters got two hits.

NBA Title Game On Television

BALTIMORE (UPI) — The Milwaukee Bucks shoot for a sweep of the final round of the NBA championship tonight when they meet the Baltimore Bullets in a game that will be televised in the Bay Area at 5:30 p.m., channels 7-11-13.

The Bucks, in their third year in the league, are confident of blitzing the staggering Bullets for the fourth straight time to record the first title sweep since Boston beat the old Minneapolis Lakers in 1959.

Stars, Colonels Game Is Sellout

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI)—Utah Stars' fans have responded to their team's American Basketball Association Western Division crown by insuring the one-year-old club of a sellout in their first game of the ABA championship Monday.

The Stars get the homecourt edge as they open the championship playoffs against the Eastern Division Kentucky Colonels in the best-of-seven final round.

Officials at Salt Lake's Salt Palace Coliseum report a greater ticket demand for the first two games than they've ever witnessed before.

Young Texas Golfer Is Most Confident

NEW ORLEANS (UPI)—The state of Texas has produced another quality golfer, and like most of the tour regulars from his state, Roy Pace does not lack confidence.

"I'm as confident of my game as I've ever been," said Pace Thursday after firing a six-under-par 66 in the first round of the $125,000 New Orleans Open. "I'm hitting the ball as straight as I've ever hit it, as accurately, and my putting is about as good as it's been."

Pace's 66 put him one stroke behind first-round leaders Lou Graham and Jacky Cupit, another Texan, and tied with Larry Ziegler, J.C. Snead and Chi Chi Rodriguez.

Pace came into prominence April 11 when he captured first place in the Magnolia State Golf Classic. It was his first tour victory.

Pace says a golfing self-improvement project he began 18 months ago flowered at the Magnolia and continues to bloom in New Orleans.

"I used to hook the ball a lot," he said. "But I've worked my swing into a pattern when I can hit the ball a lot straighter now, and even fade the ball where before I couldn't fade it at all.

"And my pattern enables me to hit a lot more shots and it seems like I can hit better shots under pressure."

Pace, of Longview, Tex., said, "I've been working on the same thing for the last year and a half, and it's just now starting to materialize and kind of get normal."

Pace had plenty of competition, though, because 76 golfers broke par over the 7,080-yard, par-72 Lakewood Country Club Course in the first round. Most of them praised the wide, flat greens and dry conditions.

One stroke back at 67 were Rod Funseth, Dave Hill, Gordon Jones, Johnny Pott, Alex Sutton, Lee Elder, Jack Lewis, Gene Littler and Kermit Zarley.

Pre-tournament favorite Lee Trevino, who won at Tallahassee last week and who fired a hot 66 in the pro-am, faltered at 74, nine strokes off the pace in the first round.

Billy Casper, who has won $64,820 this year to go with his previous $1 million winnings, complained of bursitis in his hip point and withdrew after firing a par 36 on the back nine.

'Weekend In Paris' Theme For Annual Ross Festival

The Marin Art and Garden Center in Ross will become a bit of France for its traditional Independence Day weekend festival, July 3 and 4.

This year the celebration will not be the longtime Marin County fair, but rather will be staged as a benefit for the 14 organizations that operate the nonprofit art and garden center. The county fair will be held in October at the Marin County Civic Center.

The festival in Ross will center on the theme "Weekend in Paris," with French tricolor-decorated stalls, Parisian entertainment and French food offered from 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. each day.

Entertainment will include can-can dancers, puppetry, folk dance and vaudeville acts and fashion shows. Art in action demonstrations will have a "Left Bank" flourish, the planners said, and will compete with a "daring Montmarte picture collection, bijou and bouquet exhibits." A flea market, bookstalls and an antique shop, sidewalk cafe with French menus and formal Gallic gardens also will be featured.

Admission and sales revenues will be used to keep the art and garden center grounds and exhibits in operation the year around, sponsors said. The committee in charge includes Carl Q. Riznik, William A. Millen, Hugh Peterson, Eugene A. Ostaggi and Tom Perry.

Bank Robbers Do It Just Like The Movies

BOREHAM WOOD, England (UPI)—To passers-by it looked like just another scene being shot by one of the big studios down the road.

So hundreds of shoppers went calmly about their business Thursday as a gang of masked men with shotguns held up the local Barclays Bank, making off with $69,600 in payroll money.

"I'm not surprised," a police spokesman said. "We have television and film studios up the road at Elstree. People around here are used to seeing dramatic situations being reconstructed."

Equal Rights Bill Advances In House

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The proposed constitutional amendment guaranteeing equal rights to women has won approval from a subcommittee of the House Judiciary Committee.

The full committee now must pass on the proposal. Last year the House passed the same proposed amendment but it died in the Senate.

Oakview School Planning Playground Fund-Raiser

A walk to raise money for playground equipment will be held from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. May 8 by the students at the Oakview School.

The walk will not be monotonous as there will be live entertainment and refreshments to go with it, according to Publicity Chairman Judy Kaye.

This is the second such walk for the school. The one last year raised $4,000 to purchase playground equipment for the four-year old school at 730 Oakview Terrace.

The march will start at the school, led by a San Rafael Fire Department truck. It will go two miles to the Terra Linda High School track. There the students will continue marching around the track, each lap counting one quarter of a mile.

Here they will be entertained by the Prince Charles Marching Bagpipe Band from Corte Madera, several rock bands, and Alice in Wonderland and the White Rabbit played by actors from the American Conservatory Theater, Mrs. Kaye said. Local dignitaries have been invited, she said.

Participating children are given a card on which they can have up to 25 neighbors and friends pledge to pay them so much per mile. Last year the students averaged eight miles, although many of them walked as far as 22 miles, according to Mrs. Kaye. Mothers of the school children will keep track of the miles walked, she said.

Hamburgers, ice cream and soft drinks will be for sale at the site, she said.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (UPI)—The wife of former Arkansas Gov. Winthrop Rockefeller was granted a divorce Thursday on grounds of "general indignities."

Attorneys for both sides declined to disclose terms of the settlement to which Mrs. Jeannette Edris Rockefeller agreed.

Rockefeller was reported to have paid a $6 million settlement to his first wife, Mrs. Barbara Sears "Bobo" Rockefeller when they were divorced in 1954.

FISH AND GAME

Up To Date Report On Oil Spillage

By AL GIDDINGS

It has been just a little over three months since the two Standard Oil tankers collided, spilling approximately 800,000 gallons of oil into the Bay Area waters.

Last week, a representative of Standard Oil, Mr. Keating, gave an informative talk with slides at the Marin Rod and Gun Club's ecology meeting on the oil spill, its cleanup and other problems caused by the spill. It was most interesting, showed clearly that Standard Oil did an excellent cleanup job, and that it was a massive task. It also showed that great numbers of dedicated people (possibly 40,000 volunteers) put forth an effort that in scope seems almost unbelievable. The volunteers worked on all phases of the cleanup.

One of their biggest projects was the task of trying to save the sea birds which were caught in the path of the moving oil slick. Fish and Game Department estimates placed the numbers of birds affected at about 7,000. Of these, approximately 3,700 were Western Grebes, 1,500 were scoters, 800 murres, 210 ducks, and about 700 others covering about 50 species. Murres are the most abundant of the pelagic (sea) birds. Western grebes and scoters are also very abundant. A count of 5,800 scoters had just been taken in the San Francisco Bay Area in the annual waterfowl census. Grebes and murres are protected birds, and except for the occasional shooting of a scoter (they are in the family of diving ducks) by an uneducated hunter (who will find their flesh very fishy tasting,) the birds have a fairly safe life!

The Dept. of Fish and Game took the position that 97 per cent of all the oil covered birds would die. (This was generally the case with the oil covered birds in the Santa Barbara spill.)

With a goal of more than just the predicted 3 per cent birds that would live, the volunteer bird saving army went to work! They had a job, and they had a purpose, and to hell with anyone who stood in their way!

They gathered stricken birds in anything suitable that would hold them. Under guidance from veterinarians, the Audubon Society and any one with any knowledge at all, they started their program. Bird care stations were started, with the Richmond Bird Care Center finally becoming one of the busiest stations for the stricken birds from the oily areas of Marin County. They cared for approximately 1,400 birds all told. All the work was done by volunteers. The building was partitioned off with areas marked for cleaning, resting, swimming, feeding or whatever the birds needed! The area was posted with rules for bird handling, personnel health, visitors and other problems. Standard Oil gave the center $100 per day for food, oils, etc. for bird care. Live minnows for the birds was a must, so minnow holding ponds were built and stocked. Some people moved in with the birds to stay even to this day.

What has been the result of this undertaking? I took a trip to Richmond this week just as a curious visitor. They didn't know me from Adam! It was most interesting!

I arrived at the area about 10 a.m., reading all the signs posted for the visitors and for the personnel there. Most of the signs gave information as to the best way to be when around the birds. Upon entry, I was left alone to look around, but finally a very young girl (her name was "Egg" and she was 17 years old) came along. She gave me a tour of the place explaining much of the setup. She fed some of the grebes in the pools with live minnows, simulating the outdoor natural feeding habit of the birds. She explained that about 60 of the grebes had already been released back into the wild. There were probably one hundred or so birds still being cared for; all seemed to be in good condition. One mallard, a canvasback and two bluebills looked like they might be healthy enough to be leaving soon, too.

About this time, along came Norm McIntosh of the National Audubon Society. He is the manager of Richardson's Bay Bird Sanctuary and was over there to make a donation of $400 from the NAS to the Richmond center group! They looked at him like he was straight from Heaven! Standard Oil stopped the $100 per day payments on March 28, but recently restarted them. So the volunteer group has been on its own since that time.

Egg, the young girl, said they had been down to a doughnut diet this past week, so this $400 would really help. While I was there another donation of a quart of cooking oil arrived! It too was the cause of much rejoicing! These people can use any help you can give them!

Our guide continued her informative talk with a suggestion that both Norm and I should go up to Tubb's Island in Sonoma County, a 330 acre refuge area owned by the Nature Conservancy group, where approximately 100 scoters had been sent to be released in a fenced area of the island. The area was identical to some of the natural habitat of the birds. Of course we went and we saw the birds, all looking in good shape, now living along the shoreline of one of the sloughs there. They are keeping them fenced for further observation and feeding.

All in all, it was a very illuminating day! Perhaps this group will be able to actually save close to 250 birds or about one/sixth of the 1,400 they started with! Their efforts, if documented, may be the means of saving many more birds if another oil spill ever occurs. The birds could have been 7,000 or more canvasback ducks which would then have been considered a calamity by everyone! I think they did a great job!

Terra Linda Golfers Get Some Help

The Tamalpais High School golf team gave Terra Linda some breathing room in a hotly contested Marin County Athletic League race yesterday, with a 180-200 victory over San Rafael High School in Mill Valley.

In other MCAL matches, Terra Linda defeated Drake 216-240, and San Marin shelled Redwood, 219-234.

The Tam Indians nearly unbeatable on their home course, raised their MCAL mark to 5-3 with the win over the Bulldogs, which, coupled with the Terra Linda win, puts the Trojans in first place with a 7-1 mark.

Medalists for Tam were Rick Golfien, Jeff Bricker, and Mark Churchfield, all with 35's.

UP AND OVER — Former Redwood High School and College of Marin athlete Steve Carroll clears hurdle while becoming the second fastest 3,000-meter steeplechaser in University of California history. A senior at Berkeley, Carroll has developed into a top long distance runner.

Ex-Marin Ace Developing As Cal Distance Runner

Steve Carroll had never seen a steeplechase race before he ran in one.

That was two years ago, in his first meet as a California runner. Now, the former Redwood High School and College of Marin student is looking forward to his first Pacific-8 victory tomorrow when the Bears host UCLA.

Since that first bloody race, when he fell over a hurdle, and stumbled through the water jumps, Carroll has run the 3000-meter race in 9:20.6. That time makes him the second fastest Cal steeplechaser in history.

Last Saturday the 22-year-old senior raced to his fastest ever two mile, 9:00.8, in finishing second in the Cal-WSU dual meet.

This represented a 10-second improvement over his previous best time, and a world of improvement since his junior college days.

"Steve is relatively young as a runner," Cal coach Dave Maggard says. "He's come along very well, and should continue to improve."

Carroll ran a 4:20 mile for the College of Marin. He didn't start competing in track until his final year at Redwood High School, so his performances should be all the more appreciated.

UCLA has runners who have run 9:08 and 9:19 in the steeplechase, but Carroll thinks he can win the race.

If he does, it could be a big boost as the Bears hold an outside chance of defeating the undefeated Bruins, a team many people think is the best dual meet squad in the nation.

Carroll has a pair of victories to his credit this year. He won steeplechases in the season opening triangular meet against the Athens Track Club and Sacramento State, and against San Jose State.

He has scored 19 dual meet points thus far this year, and he is assured of his varsity letter.

In his first year at Cal, in his first race, he ran the steeplechase, and he had his troubles. He finally finished in 10:06.2, well out of the money.

He came back the next Saturday, improving 32 seconds for a second place against San Jose State, and then won a steeplechase race in San Diego against San Diego State.

Carroll ultimately got second places against UCLA and Washington State, and third places against Stanford and Southern Cal and earned his letter.

Carroll, 6-0, 140-pounds, is a Psychology major with a 3.6 grade point average.

Seals Headed For S.F.?

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Charles O. Finley may move his California Seals hockey team from Oakland to San Francisco —if he gets an arena where his club can play.

The Yerba Buena Center, a proposed 17-000 seat facility, is scheduled to be built in San Francisco by 1973 and developers of the project Thursday said Seals' owner Finley has told them he would move his team if the construction of the arena is not delayed.

The reason the completion date is so important is that Finley's lease with the Oakland Coliseum, where the Seals now play, expires in two years.

Lyman Jee, president of Schlesinger-Arcon Pacific, the builder of the Yerba Buena center, said Finley discussed the move with him. Jee also said he had been assured that the National Hockey League would not object to a transfer of the Seals.

According to Jee, Finley's team is not the only one interested in playing in the proposed arena. He said San Francisco Warriors president Franklin Mieuli also told him he was ready to move to the arena when it was completed. The Warriors now play at San Francisco's Cow Palace and Civic Auditorium and the Oakland Coliseum.

Jee said the Yerba Buena project could be completed by the fall of 1973 if San Francisco expedites issuance of revenue bonds.

Redwood Net Team Rolls Along

Like old man river, the Redwood High School tennis team just keeps on rolling, yesterday with a crushing 5-0 win over San Marin, to push the Giants' Marin County Athletic League winning streak to 45.

Redwood didn't even use any of its top six netmen in the easy triumph over the Mustangs. Sophomore Matt Khourie, playing No. 1 singles, romped over his opponent, 6-1, 6-0.

Downing Trade A Real Winner

By U.P.INTERNATIONAL

The Los Angeles Dodgers felt all along that an off-season trade was going to make them a pennant winner in 1971.

But it may turn out to be the trade for Al Downing—and not the one for Richie Allen—will make the difference for the Dodgers in their bid for their first pennant since Sandy Koufax retired in 1966.

The swap of Andy Kosco to Milwaukee for Downing this spring received little notice but Downing has developed into the fourth starter the Dodgers will need if they're to overhaul the San Francisco Giants.

While Allen has been ailing and is floundering at .234, Downing pitched 7 1-3 innings of six-hit ball and Pete Mikkelsen came on to get the victory as the Dodgers downed Pittsburgh 2-1 Thursday night on Duke Sims' run-scoring single in the ninth.

Downing, 2-1 this season, earned a starting assignment when he pitched 5 2-3 innings of two-hit relief ball against San Diego in his first appearance on April 9. He beat St. Louis 2-1 on a nine-hitter in his first start and has joined Bill Singer, Don Sutton and Claude Osteen in the regular Dodger rotation.

The Dodgers are still 4 1-2 games behind the Giants but the race has just started. And the Dodgers figure that Allen is eventually going to start hitting despite his 0-for-3 appearance Thursday night.

Meanwhile, Downing's pitching is a real plus. "I feel I've gotten into a pretty good groove," Downing said. "I've gotten a chance to pitch regularly and it's done a lot for my confidence. I wasn't especially sharp tonight but I went mostly with my control."

Downing blanked the Pirates until the eighth when Richie Hebner's third hit followed Jose Pagan's single and a sacrifice. Mikkelsen came on and retired Roberto Clemente and Willie Stargell—both 9-for-4—to end the inning and then blanked the Pirates in the ninth.

In the other National League games, Cincinnati edged San Diego 4-2, New York blanked St. Louis 7-0, Montreal edged Chicago 7-6 and San Francisco topped Atlanta 5-2 in 13 innings.

In American League games, Baltimore edged Oakland 3-2, Chicago nipped Washington 5-4 and California beat Cleveland 84. The Minnesota at Boston game was rained out.

The New York Mets suddenly are starting to show their 1969 form again. They blanked the Cardinals to complete a four-game sweep. Manager Gil Hodges' two-platooning system, which was criticized last year when the Mets came in third, worked perfectly as Donn Clendenon hit a three-run homer. Clendenon was replacing Ed Kranepool, who had three hits and three RBIs on Wednesday, but the move worked as Clendenon got two hits.

Ron Swoboda, who was traded by the Mets because he was one of the guys knocking Hodges, sparked a three-run rally in the ninth inning that carried Montreal past Chicago. Swoboda tripled in the tying run and then scored the winning run on Johnny Bateman's single.

A Four-Hitter

Stan Gilstrap threw a four-hitter to lift Fairfax Shell past Foust Chevron, 9-0, and the Doves beat the Bar, 8-2 in San Rafael Recreation Department adult softball league games last night at Albert Park.

A's Pitching Sensation Vida Blue On Mound Tonight

OAKLAND (UPI) —Dick Williams, the Oakland A's manager, admits he got a "little hungry," but overall he is satisfied with his team's play.

Williams wanted three victories in the four-game series with the world champion Baltimore Orioles, especially after the A's won two of the first three games. But the Orioles, who always seem able to make the big play when one is needed, beat the A's 3-2 Thursday in the windup game of their series in Oakland.

"Before the series started I gladly would have settled for a split," said Williams, "but after we won two of the first three I'll admit I got hungry and wanted that third victory."

The A's, who have been making some pretty big plays themselves of late, almost pulled off another last-minute victory and for a split second in the ninth it looked like they might, but Dave Johnson speared Tommy Davis' pinchhit bid for a single and turned it into a doubleplay to end the game.

So tonight the A's start another four-game series, this time with the struggling Cleveland Indians and Vida Blue, the young man with the golden arm and a 5-1 won-lost record, has the starting assignment.

Diego Segui will pitch Saturday and Jim Hunter and Chuck Dobson will work Sunday's doubleheader. It will mark Dobson's first start of the year. He went on the shelf with a sore pitching elbow just before the start of the season. Williams says he is hoping Dobson can go five innings "and we'll go from there."

John (Blue Moon) Odom, another sore-armed pitcher, is at least a month away from taking a turn but the way the A's are playing now they hardly miss the one-time All-Star hurler.

Rollie Fingers has done a good job of taking up some of the slack. In Thursday's game against Baltimore he outpitched Jim Palmer but an error by shortstop Bert Campaneris and two gopher pitches did him in.

"I'm a little concerned about him serving up home run pitches," said Williams of Fingers' work, but added quickly, "He pitched good enough to win."

Boog Powell and Don Buford hit the homers for the Orioles and Fingers now has given up seven homers this year in 38 innings.

Campaneris booted a roller to short by Paul Blair in the first inning and Powell followed with his fifth homer. A single by Sal Bando and a homer by Dave Duncan tied the score at 2-2 in the second and it stayed that way until the eighth when Buford opened the inning with a homer.

Fingers gave up only five hits, struck out 10 and walked two as his record slipped to 1-3. Palmer, a 20-game winner for the Orioles last year, wasn't as sharp as Fingers but he had more luck as he improved his record to 4-0.

Palmer was in trouble all the way and needed a game-ending doubleplay on a hard hit ball to survive.

Rick Monday opened the bottom of the ninth with a single, went to second on a sacrifice and held on as Palmer walked the pinch-hitting Steve Hovley.

Davis, who won Wednesday night's game with a hit in the ninth, lined the ball toward center but Johnson speared it and flipped to second for the doubleplay.

"You have to be lucky as well as good to win sometimes," admitted Palmer. "Another foot either way on Davis' hit and the game is tied, and maybe I'm out of there."

"That game now is history," said Williams, "so I'm going to forget it. Now all I want to think about is the Indians."

Williams said that Larry Brown, the shortstop-second baseman the A's purchased from Cleveland last weekend, will play in one of Sunday's games. He will go in for either Campaneris or Green.

Neither is hitting much and Campaneris is having his problems in the field. The error he made in Thursday's game was his 10th of the year and it came in his 24th game.

"Maybe he needs a rest," said Williams. "One thing's for sure, he is not playing as well as he can."

Campaneris had one hit in four at-bats Thursday and slipped under .200. Green isn't much better at .202.

For Sam Chapman A Return To Philly

Samuel Blake Chapman of Greenbrae, the former major league outfield star, will return to the scene of his prime this summer.

Now an inspector for the Bay Area Pollution Control District, Sam has accepted an invitation from the Philadelphia Phillies to play in a Philadelphia Old Timers game in August.

Actually, Slammin' Sammy played for the Philadelphia Athletics for about a decade, but the A's since have roved to Kansas City, thence to Oakland. And who wants to go to Oakland for an Old Timers game?

I saw Sam the other day and at 55 he still looks fit enough to send a few pitches out of the new Philadelphia stadium. An All-American halfback on U. of Cal's 1938 Rose Bowl team that beat Alabama 13-0, Chapman later that year moved from the Berkeley campus to Philadelphia where Manager Connie Mack greeted him the first day with the announcement: "Get out there, Sam. From now on you're my centerfielder."

Chapman, a Tiburon kid who went on to stardom at Tamalpais High before his football-baseball heroics at Cal, never played in the minor leagues until the 1950s when he would up his pro baseball career with the Oakland Oaks of the Pacific Coast League.

It was during his days in Oakland that Tam High had to tear down "Sam Chapman Stadium" as unsafe. Sam had outlasted the ballpark named in honor of Tam's most distinguished alumnus.

AND WHILE we're on the subject of major leaguers, I hope you noticed that John Dominic Boccabella of San Anselmo had a double and single in five trips to the plate yesterday as the Montreal Expos downed Boc's former teammates, the Chicago Cubs, 7-6. Boc The Sock played first base.

AND SPEAKING of Montreal, Allan Barrett Murray of Marin is busily organizing a tour to follow those red hot San Francisco Giants to Montreal-New York-Philadelphia June 7-16. Murray is president of the Giants Boosters Club and this is just one of several trips he has arranged. Contact Murray at GTS Travel, San Rafael, for further information.

WILLIAM KING DILLON of Novato, who guided Novato to the Babe Ruth World Series in Anchorage, Alaska in 1967 and has been active in junior baseball for several years, has resigned as director of the Ruth program's District 7. A sales representative for lithographic supplies company, Dillon said his job covering 11 western states has grown more demanding.

John Hover, president of the Redwood Empire League, has replaced Dillon. Assisting him are Ed Salmina, president of the Novato League, and John Bugbee, a director of the Santa Rosa League.

Marin Tars Top Solano

College of Marin exploded for 12 runs and 14 hits yesterday against Solano Junior College to whip the Falcons, 12-3, as the Tars raised their Camino Norte Conference baseball record to 11-5 in a game at Kentfield.

Going all the way on the mound for Marin was Jerry Goodrick, who gave up only one earned run and nine hits.

Taking the batting honors for the Tars was Rafael Gallardo, who was three for four. Also making a major contribution to the effort was Ken Robie with two hits, including a triple.

Three other Marin batters got two hits.

Montreal Earns Berth In Stanley Cup Finals

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

The story of the National Hockey League Stanley Cup playoffs Thursday night was one of two late goals—one that counted and one that didn't.

The one that counted was by New York's Pete Stemkowski at 1:29 of the third overtime period and it enabled the Rangers to defeat the Chicago Black Hawks 3-2 and tie their best-of-seven series at three games each. The deciding game will be played Sunday afternoon in Chicago.

The goal that was disallowed was one by Minnesota's Ted Hampson and the call enabled Montreal to hold on to a 3-2 decision and advance to the Cup finals. The Canadiens won the series 4-2.

"It's the finest game I've ever seen the New York Rangers play," said Emile Francis, the club's coach and general manager. "It was our finest hour, a case of them refusing to lose. You'll live a long time before you see another game like that."

Chicago took a 2-0 lead on goals by Dennis Hull and Chico Maki but the Rangers tied it on a second period score by Rod Gilbert and Jean Ratelle's third period goal. New York outshot the Black Hawks 8-3 in the first overtime and Chicago missed eliminating the Rangers twice in the second overtime as Stan Mikita missed point blank goals.

The winning goal came when defenseman Tim Horton fed Ted Irvine, who skated in and shot at Chicago goaltender Tony Esposito. Esposito blocked Irvine's shot but Stemkowski, whose only other goal in the playoffs decided the first game in overtime, slammed in the rebound from about 15 feet.

Rejean Houle was the hero for Montreal as the Canadiens eliminated the surprising North Stars. Houle's goal at 13:29 of the second period snapped a 2-2 tie and provided the margin of victory. But it was Hampson who provided the last bit of excitement.

Minnesota pulled goalie Cesare Maniago in the closing seconds and Hampson broke loose. "Somehow I got ahead of the puck," said Hampson. "I saw Jude Drouin in front of me and tried to slide it to him, but it slid back into (goalie Ken) Dryden's pads and came back out. I got the rebound and shot it back in. It was a clean shot. I had no idea whether the light was on or not. I was concentrating on the puck."

The light Hampson referred to was the dual system in Minnesota. When a period ends, the blue light goes on and automatically negates the red light which signifies goal. Referee Bill Friday said that the blue light preceded Hampson's goal. "I have to respect his decision," said Hampson. "He's a good referee."

NBA Title Game On Television

BALTIMORE (UPI) — The Milwaukee Bucks shoot for a sweep of the final round of the NBA championship tonight when they meet the Baltimore Bullets in a game that will be televised in the Bay Area at 5:30 p.m., channels 7-11-13.

The Bucks, in their third year in the league, are confident of blitzing the staggering Bullets for the fourth straight time to record the first title sweep since Boston beat the old Minneapolis Lakers in 1959.

Stars, Colonels Game Is Sellout

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI)— Utah Stars' fans have responded to their team's American Basketball Association Western Division crown by insuring the one-year-old club of a sellout in their first game of the ABA championship Monday.

The Stars get the homecourt edge as they open the championship playoffs against the Eastern Division Kentucky Colonels in the best-of-seven final round.

Officials at Salt Lake's Salt Palace Coliseum report a greater ticket demand for the first two games than they've ever witnessed before.

Young Texas Golfer Is Most Confident

NEW ORLEANS (UPI)—The state of Texas has produced another quality golfer, and like most of the tour regulars from his state, Roy Pace does not lack confidence.

"I'm as confident of my game as I've ever been," said Pace Thursday after firing a six-under-par 66 in the first round of the $125,000 New Orleans Open. "I'm hitting the ball as straight as I've ever hit it, as accurately, and my putting is about as good as it's been."

Pace's 66 put him one stroke behind first-round leaders Lou Graham and Jacky Cupit, another Texan, and tied with Larry Ziegler, J.C. Snead and Chi Chi Rodriguez.

Pace came into prominence April 11 when he captured first place in the Magnolia State Golf Classic. It was his first tour victory.

Pace says a golfing self-improvement project he began 18 months ago flowered at the Magnolia and continues to bloom in New Orleans.

"I used to hook the ball a lot," he said. "But I've worked my swing into a pattern when I can hit the ball a lot straighter now, and even fade the ball where before I couldn't fade it at all.

"And my pattern enables me to hit a lot more shots and it seems like I can hit better shots under pressure."

Pace, of Longview, Tex., said, "I've been working on the same thing for the last year and a half, and it's just now starting to materialize and kind of get normal."

Pace had plenty of competition, though, because 76 golfers broke par over the 7,080-yard, par-72 Lakewood Country Club Course in the first round. Most of them praised the wide, flat greens and dry conditions.

One stroke back at 67 were Rod Funseth, Dave Hill, Gordon Jones, Johnny Pott, Alex Sutton, Lee Elder, Jack Lewis, Gene Littler and Kermit Zarley.

Pre-tournament favorite Lee Trevino, who won at Tallahassee last week and who fired a hot 66 in the pro-am, faltered at 74, nine strokes off the pace in the first round.

Billy Casper, who has won $64,820 this year to go with his previous $1 million winnings, complained of bursitis in his hip point and withdrew after firing a par 36 on the back nine.

Crowded Field For 'Derby'

LOUISVILLE, Ky., (UPI)— There were strategy meetings all over the backstretch at Churchill Downs today as trainers and jockeys studied the post positions assigned 21 horses for Saturday's $188,000 Kentucky Derby.

Twenty-one horses were originally entered Thursday morning but the field was reduced by one late in the day when Mrs. Taylor Hardin's Sole Mio was scratched. Sole Mio apparently hurt a leg in his stall and trainer Woody Stephens said the colt would be unable to run in the derby.

"I'm afraid of 21 horses in the race," said trainer Johnny Campo whose Jim French drew No. 11 in the richest renewal of America's premier turf classic.

"There are too many horses in the race. That means a change of strategy for me. No, I am not going to tell you what it will be. But I'm not going to make any excuses for Jim French in this race. In his other races he had excuses," Campo said of Jim French who has raced this year in Florida, New York and California where the colt won the Santa Anita Derby.

"Jim French loves to fly but it makes me as sick as hell," said the man who was the leading trainer in New York last year.

It will be up to jockey Angel Cordero to carry out Campo's battle plans but that may be difficult in the second largest field ever to start in a Kentucky Derby. Twenty-one horses also started when Zev won in 1923 and when Clyde Van Dusen scored in 1929 while a record 22 went to the post in 1928, Reigh Count's year.

Jim French was a 4-1 third choice behind the Calumet Farm entry of Bold and Able and Eastern Fleet, favored at 5 to 2, and the Twist the Axe-Impetuosity entry, second choice at 7 to 2.

The Calumet Farm Entry, out for the famed stable's eighth victory in the Kentucky Derby, took over as favorite after the draw for post positions.

Bold and Able, with Jorge Velasquez riding, breaks from the coveted No. 1 post position and the colt has all the speed necessary to take full advantage of his lucky draw. Eastern Fleet, with Eddie Maple in the saddle, will start from No. 18 and trainer Reggie Cornell hinted at his strategy when he said, "He'll have to come out of there flying."

Other men's quarterfinalists are Tom Leonard of USC, Rosco Tanner and Sandy Mayer of Stanford and Jeff Borowiak, UCLA.

In the women's division, Eliza Pande of Palo Alto, who won the singles title last year, moved easily through the second round, beating Judy Louis, Sunnyvale, 6-1, 6-2.

FOX GIVES CREDIT

Pitching, Kids And An Old Man

ATLANTA (UPI) — The Giants, winners of 17 of their first 22 games, are off to their fastest start in their 14 seasons in San Francisco and manager Charlie Fox says the credit goes "to our pitching, our kids and that fabulous old man."

The statistics bear Fox out:

The mound staff has a 2.25 earned run average; rookies Chris Speier and George Foster are hitting .336 and .308 respectively; and the "old man," soon-to-be-40 Willie Mays is hitting at a .348 clip.

Mays, who drove in the winning run in Tuesday's 10-inning contest, scored the winning run Thursday night in the Giants' 5-2 victory over the Atlanta Braves. And he did it in typical Mays' style—racing home from second on a bloop single by Ken Henderson.

The Giants best previous April record since moving to San Francisco in 1958 was their 15-5 mark in 1962. Also, their current 4 1-2 game lead in the National League West is their biggest margin in nearly five years.

"That kid at shortstop (Speier) has been sensational, our pitching has been really great and that Mays, what can you say about him that hasn't been said before, he's simply fabulous for his age.

"And that's not all," Fox continued. "Bobby Bonds (who is hitting .347) has been playing with an ailing ankle.

"It just seems that everybody we've put in there has done a good job for us." The Braves, who lost three straight to the streaking Giants to fall seven games off the lead, had a chance to win in the 12th inning Thursday night when they had the bases loaded and only one out. But third baseman Hal Lanier flagged down Hank Aaron's line shot and turned it into a threat-ending double play.

In the 13th, the Giants had to face Cecil Upshaw, the Braves' ace reliefer.

Speier led off with a single and Mays followed with a smash to right that struck Speier for the first out. Mays was credited with a single and promptly stole second, his third steal this month without being caught.

Willie McCovey flied to center and Dick Dietz walked and that brought up Henderson, hitless in five previous trips, with two on and two out.

"I really threw him a good pitch," Upshaw said sadly. "I jammed him right on the hands and he blooped the ball. I knew as soon as it started to float that we were in trouble."

The Giants tried to keep it going at Cincinnati tonight where they open a three-game series. It will either be Rich Robertson or Juan Marichal on the mound for San Francisco.

Interest Lost On 'Flat' Bond Sale

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. I purchased 32 bonds and paid interest on them. Five months later I sold them "flat" under the impression that I would receive interest due. When the interest was paid into my account my broker said I was not entitled to it, that it belonged to the buyer. I and 90 per cent of investors don't know what "flat" means and I think I was morally entitled to that interest. — C. S.

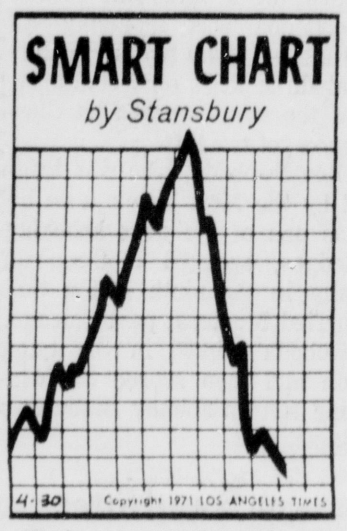
A. This term should have been very carefully explained to you by your broker prior to the transaction. When a bond is sold "flat," the seller revokes any claim to accrued interest and, under terms of the Uniform Practice Act, a due-bill for the full amount of said interest should accompany delivery. In this type of sale there is generally an upward adjustment negotiated in the selling price for the bond.

Q. My wife and I are close to 75 and need income to supplement Social Security. About two years ago we bought 600 shares of Sav-on-Drugs at 29½. Later it dropped to 11 but has since recovered to 25. Should we hold for full recovery or take a substantial loss? — M. S.

A. This 63-unit drug supermarket concentrates its operations in the Southern California area. Outlets are open 13 hours a day, 364 days a year, are self-service and dispense more than 25,000 items, primarily at discount.

In spite of the intense competition in this field, Sav-On has boosted sales an average of 10 per cent and earnings 14 per cent annually in the last five years. Cash for store expansion has been internally generated. The five new units planned for opening this year will also be financed without recourse to long or short-term debt.

There are only 3.5 million shares outstanding, with a large percentage of these closely held, leaving a float of under one million shares. Price action, therefore, can be volatile, as witness the 125 per cent rebound since last July. Hold for further recovery.



"Sales have slipped on our Tibet Mountain Properties."

SOME FUNNY BUSINESS

Some reports indicate the barbering business has fallen off, but here are two examples of some funny business in the barbershop. Above, Minneapolis barber Craig Morris talked Carol Sikkema, 17, into dropping by for a leg-shave. "It was a smooth job, all right," said Carol. Below, barber Duke Mercurio helps five Mount Tacoma High School students meet their campaign promise to cut their long hair if a special Tacoma, Wash., school levy passed.

Stocks Fall Second Day In A Row

NEW YORK (UPI) —The stock market backed off for the second consecutive session Friday in what some analysts believed may be the signal a downward correction was getting underway after a sharp, sustained advance. Turnover was heavy.

After almost two hours, declines were leading advances by a two-to-one ratio.

While the Dow Jones Industrial Average fell, Standard & Poor's 500 stock index was off 0.43 at 104.20.

Prices declined in brisk trading on the American Stock Exchange. Of the 950 issues on the tape, 442 pointed lower, while 252 advanced.

Among the most active Amex issues were Automated Building Components down more than 2 on 65,000 shares, Ling-Temco warrants fractionally lower on a volume of more than 26,000, and United Brands also slightly lower on over 25,000.

On the Big Board, IBM was off 3 1-4, while Louisville & Nashville Railroad, Burroughs, and Wrigley Co. dropped 2 or more.

Steels and motors generally surrendered fractions, as did aircrafts.

State Business Falls Sharply In Last Quarter

SACRAMENTO (CNS) — Business during the Christmas quarter of 1970 was more than a quarter of a billion dollars down from the record high set in the fourth quarter of 1969, the State Board of Equalization has reported.

The board's report shows that taxable transactions for the quarter totalled $11.5 billion, $260 million (2.2 per cent) less than the 1969 total.

The report says the slowdown was due to high unemployment levels, continuing inflation and the ten-week General Motors strike.

It also shows that taxable transactions for all of 1970 reached $43.2 billion, 2 per cent higher than 1969, but the pace of business became progressively slower during each quarter and accelerated downward during the fourth quarter.

Sales in Los Angeles County, which has 37 per cent of the taxable business in the state, dropped by more than $340 million, or 7.7 per cent.

Computer Unit That Sketches Wins Contract

LAKE SUCCESS, N.Y. (BW) — Astrosystems Inc. has announced the award to its subsidiary, Dimensional Systems Inc., in Waltham, Mass., of a major computer graphics contract by the Westinghouse Electric Corp.

The system is a complete stand-alone computerized drawing processor which automatically converts and produces finished schematics and manufacturing drawings from rough engineering sketches.

The system includes a central processing unit, provision for digitizing stations, editing stations with cathode ray terminals and up to four plotters. In addition to preparing the finished drawings, the system automatically captures data for wire list information, bills of materials and other direct and indirect manufacturing uses, all of which can be stored on magnetic tape in industry compatible format.

Ford's Income For Quarter Up Over Year Ago

DEARBORN (BW) — Ford Motor Co. consolidated net income in the first quarter of 1971 was $169 million, compared with $124 million in the first quarter of 1970, it was announced Monday.

FISH AND GAME

Up To Date Report On Oil Spillage

By AL GIDDINGS

It has been just a little over three months since the two Standard Oil tankers collided, spilling approximately 800,000 gallons of oil into the Bay Area waters.

Last week, a representative of Standard Oil, Mr. Keating, gave an informative talk with slides at the Marin Rod and Gun Club's ecology meeting on the oil spill, its cleanup and other problems caused by the spill. It was most interesting, showed clearly that Standard Oil did an excellent cleanup job, and that it was a massive task. It also showed that great numbers of dedicated people (possibly 40,000 volunteers) put forth an effort that in scope seems almost unbelievable. The volunteers worked on all phases of the cleanup.

One of their biggest projects was the task of trying to save the sea birds which were caught in the path of the moving oil slick. Fish and Game Department estimates placed the numbers of birds affected at about 7,000. Of these, approximately 3,700 were Western Grebes, 1,500 were scoters, 800 murres, 210 ducks, and about 700 others covering about 50 species. Murres are the most abundant of the pelagic (sea) birds. Western grebes and scoters are also very abundant. A count of 5,800 scoters had just been taken in the San Francisco Bay Area in the annual waterfowl census. Grebes and murres are protected birds, and except for the occasional shooting of a scoter (they are in the family of diving ducks) by an uneducated hunter (who will find their flesh very fishy tasting,) the birds have a fairly safe life!

The Dept. of Fish and Game took the position that 97 per cent of all the oil covered birds would die. (This was generally the case with the oil covered birds in the Santa Barbara spill.)

With a goal of more than just the predicted 3 per cent birds that would live, the volunteer bird saving army went to work! They had a job, and they had a purpose, and to hell with anyone who stood in their way!

They gathered stricken birds in anything suitable that would hold them. Under guidance from veterinarians, the Audubon Society and any one with any knowledge at all, they started their program. Bird care stations were started, with the Richmond Bird Care Center finally becoming one of the busiest stations for the stricken birds from the oily areas of Marin County. They cared for approximately 1,400 birds all told. All the work was done by volunteers. The building was partitioned off with areas marked for cleaning, resting, swimming, feeding or whatever the birds needed! The area was posted with rules for bird handling, personnel health, visitors and other problems. Standard Oil gave the center $100 per day for food, oils, etc. for bird care. Live minnows for the birds was a must, so minnow holding ponds were built and stocked. Some people moved in with the birds to stay even to this day.

What has been the result of this undertaking? I took a trip to Richmond this week just as a curious visitor. They didn't know me from Adam! It was most interesting!

I arrived at the area about 10 a.m., reading all the signs posted for the visitors and for the personnel there. Most of the signs gave information as to the best way to be when around the birds. Upon entry, I was left alone to look around, but finally a very young girl (her name was "Egg" and she was 17 years old) came along. She gave me a tour of the place explaining much of the setup. She fed some of the grebes in the pools with live minnows, simulating the outdoor natural feeding habit of the birds. She explained that about 60 of the grebes had already been released back into the wild. There were probably one hundred or so birds still being cared for; all seemed to be in good condition. One mallard, a canvasback and two bluebills looked like they might be healthy enough to be leaving soon, too.

About this time, along came Norm McIntosh of the National Audubon Society. He is the manager of Richardson's Bay Bird Sanctuary and was over there to make a donation of $400 from the NAS to the Richmond center group! They looked at him like he was straight from Heaven! Standard Oil stopped the $100 per day payments on March 28, but recently restarted them. So the volunteer group has been on its own since that time.

Egg, the young girl, said they had been down to a doughnut diet this past week, so this $400 would really help. While I was there another donation of a quart of cooking oil arrived! It too was the cause of much rejoicing! These people can use any help you can give them!

Our guide continued her informative talk with a suggestion that both Norm and I should go up to Tubb's Island in Sonoma County, a 330 acre refuge area owned by the Nature Conservancy group, where approximately 100 scoters had been sent to be released in a fenced area of the island. The area was identical to some of the natural habitat of the birds. Of course we went and we saw the birds, all looking in good shape, now living along the shoreline of one of the sloughs there. They are keeping them fenced for further observation and feeding.

All in all, it was a very illuminating day! Perhaps this group will be able to actually save close to 250 birds or about one/sixth of the 1,400 they started with! Their efforts, if documented, may be the means of saving many more birds if another oil spill ever occurs. The birds could have been 7,000 or more canvasback ducks which would then have been considered a calamity by everyone! I think they did a great job!

Terra Linda Golfers Get Some Help

The Tamalpais High School golf team gave Terra Linda some breathing room in a hotly contested Marin County Athletic League race yesterday, with a 180-200 victory over San Rafael High School in Mill Valley.

In other MCAL matches, Terra Linda defeated Drake 216-240, and San Marin shelled Redwood, 219-234.

The Tam Indians nearly unbeatable on their home course, raised their MCAL mark to 5-3 with the win over the Bulldogs, which, coupled with the Terra Linda win, puts the Trojans in first place with a 7-1 mark.

Medalists for Tam were Rick Golfien, Jeff Bricker, and Mark Churchfield, all with 35's.

UP AND OVER — Former Redwood High School and College of Marin athlete Steve Carroll clears hurdle while becoming the second fastest 3,000-meter steeplechaser in University of California history. A senior at Berkeley, Carroll has developed into a top long distance runner.

Ex-Marin Ace Developing As Cal Distance Runner

Steve Carroll had never seen a steeplechase race before he ran in one.

That was two years ago, in his first meet as a California runner. Now, the former Redwood High School and College of Marin student is looking forward to his first Pacific-8 victory tomorrow when the Bears host UCLA.

Since that first bloody race, when he fell over a hurdle, and stumbled through the water jumps, Carroll has run the 3000-meter race in 9:20.6. That time makes him the second fastest Cal steeplechaser in history.

Last Saturday the 22-year-old senior raced to his fastest ever two mile, 9:00.8, in finishing second in the Cal-WSU dual meet.

This represented a 10-second improvement over his previous best time, and a world of improvement since his junior college days.

"Steve is relatively young as a runner," Cal coach Dave Maggard says. "He's come along very well, and should continue to improve."

Carroll ran a 4:20 mile for the College of Marin. He didn't start competing in track until his final year at Redwood High School, so his performances should be all the more appreciated.

UCLA has runners who have run 9:08 and 9:19 in the steeplechase, but Carroll thinks he can win the race.

If he does, it could be a big boost as the Bears hold an outside chance of defeating the undefeated Bruins, a team many people think is the best dual meet squad in the nation.

Carroll has a pair of victories to his credit this year. He won steeplechases in the season opening triangular meet against the Athens Track Club and Sacramento State, and against San Jose State.

He has scored 19 dual meet points thus far this year, and he is assured of his varsity letter.

In his first year at Cal, in his first race, he ran the steeplechase, and he had his troubles. He finally finished in 10:06.2, well out of the money.

He came back the next Saturday, improving 32 seconds for a second place against San Jose State, and then won a steeplechase race in San Diego against San Diego State.

Carroll ultimately got second places against UCLA and Washington State, and third places against Stanford and Southern Cal and earned his letter.

Carroll, 6-0, 140-pounds, is a Psychology major with a 3.6 grade point average.

OAKLAND (UPI) —The Baltimore Orioles will be without outfielder Frank Robinson until next Tuesday.

Robinson was hit in the left hand during Tuesday night's game with Oakland and his unable to grip a bat. X-rays of the hand showed no break, but it is badly bruised.

Merve Rettenmund has moved into rightfield during Robinson's absence.

Seals Headed For S.F.?

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Charles O. Finley may move his California Seals hockey team from Oakland to San Francisco —if he gets an arena where his club can play.

The Yerba Buena Center, a proposed 17-000 seat facility, is scheduled to be built in San Francisco by 1973 and developers of the project Thursday said Seals' owner Finley has told them he would move his team if the construction of the arena is not delayed.

The reason the completion date is so important is that Finley's lease with the Oakland Coliseum, where the Seals now play, expires in two years.

Lyman Jee, president of Schlesinger-Arcon Pacific, the builder of the Yerba Buena center, said Finley discussed the move with him. Jee also said he had been assured that the National Hockey League would not object to a transfer of the Seals.

According to Jee, Finley's team is not the only one interested in playing in the proposed arena. He said San Francisco Warriors president Franklin Mieuli also told him he was ready to move to the arena when it was completed. The Warriors now play at San Francisco's Cow Palace and Civic Auditorium and the Oakland Coliseum.

Jee said the Yerba Buena project could be completed by the fall of 1973 if San Francisco expedites issuance of revenue bonds.

Downing Trade A Real Winner

By U.P.INTERNATIONAL

The Los Angeles Dodgers felt all along that an off-season trade was going to make them a pennant winner in 1971.

But it may turn out to be the trade for Al Downing—and not the one for Richie Allen—will make the difference for the Dodgers in their bid for their first pennant since Sandy Koufax retired in 1966.

The swap of Andy Kosco to Milwaukee for Downing this spring received little notice but Downing has developed into the fourth starter the Dodgers will need if they're to overhaul the San Francisco Giants.

While Allen has been ailing and is floundering at .234, Downing pitched 7 1-3 innings of six-hit ball and Pete Mikkelsen came on to get the victory as the Dodgers downed Pittsburgh 2-1 Thursday night on Duke Sims' run-scoring single in the ninth.

Downing, 2-1 this season, earned a starting assignment when he pitched 5 2-3 innings of two-hit relief ball against San Diego in his first appearance on April 9. He beat St. Louis 2-1 on a nine-hitter in his first start and has joined Bill Singer, Don Sutton and Claude Osteen in the regular Dodger rotation.

The Dodgers are still 4 1-2 games behind the Giants but the race has just started. And the Dodgers figure that Allen is eventually going to start hitting despite his 0-for-3 appearance Thursday night.

Meanwhile, Downing's pitching is a real plus. "I feel I've gotten into a pretty good groove," Downing said. "I've gotten a chance to pitch regularly and it's done a lot for my confidence. I wasn't especially sharp tonight but I went mostly with my control."

Downing blanked the Pirates until the eighth when Richie Hebner's third hit followed Jose Pagan's single and a sacrifice. Mikkelsen came on and retired Roberto Clemente and Willie Stargell—both 9-for-4—to end the inning and then blanked the Pirates in the ninth.

In the other National League games, Cincinnati edged San Diego 4-2, New York blanked St. Louis 7-0, Montreal edged Chicago 7-6 and San Francisco topped Atlanta 5-2 in 13 innings.

In American League games, Baltimore edged Oakland 3-2, Chicago nipped Washington 5-4 and California beat Cleveland 84. The Minnesota at Boston game was rained out.

The New York Mets suddenly are starting to show their 1969 form again. They blanked the Cardinals to complete a four-game sweep. Manager Gil Hodges' two-platooning system, which was criticized last year when the Mets came in third, worked perfectly as Donn Clendenon hit a three-run homer. Clendenon was replacing Ed Kranepool, who had three hits and three RBIs on Wednesday, but the move worked as Clendenon got two hits.

Ron Swoboda, who was traded by the Mets because he was one of the guys knocking Hodges, sparked a three-run rally in the ninth inning that carried Montreal past Chicago. Swoboda tripled in the tying run and then scored the winning run on Johnny Bateman's single.

Interest Lost On 'Flat' Bond Sale

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. I purchased 32 bonds and paid interest on them. Five months later I sold them "flat" under the impression that I would receive interest due. When the interest was paid into my account my broker said I was not entitled to it, that it belonged to the buyer. I and 90 per cent of investors don't know what "flat" means and I think I was morally entitled to that interest. — C. S.

A. This term should have been very carefully explained to you by your broker prior to the transaction. When a bond is sold "flat," the seller revokes any claim to accrued interest and, under terms of the Uniform Practice Act, a due-bill for the full amount of said interest should accompany delivery. In this type of sale there is generally an upward adjustment negotiated in the selling price for the bond.

Q. My wife and I are close to 75 and need income to supplement Social Security. About two years ago we bought 600 shares of Sav-on-Drugs at 29½. Later it dropped to 11 but has since recovered to 25. Should we hold for full recovery or take a substantial loss? — M. S.

A. This 63-unit drug supermarket concentrates its operations in the Southern California area. Outlets are open 13 hours a day, 364 days a year, are self-service and dispense more than 25,000 items, primarily at discount.

In spite of the intense competition in this field, Sav-On has boosted sales an average of 10 per cent and earnings 14 per cent annually in the last five years. Cash for store expansion has been internally generated. The five new units planned for opening this year will also be financed without recourse to long or short-term debt.

There are only 3.5 million shares outstanding, with a large percentage of these closely held, leaving a float of under one million shares. Price action, therefore, can be volatile, as witness the 125 per cent rebound since last July. Hold for further recovery.

SOME FUNNY BUSINESS

Some reports indicate the barbering business has fallen off, but here are two examples of some funny business in the barbershop. Above, Minneapolis barber Craig Morris talked Carol Sikkema, 17, into dropping by for a leg-shave. "It was a smooth job, all right," said Carol. Below, barber Duke Mercurio helps five Mount Tacoma High School students meet their campaign promise to cut their long hair if a special Tacoma, Wash., school levy passed.

Stocks Fall Second Day In A Row

NEW YORK (UPI) —The stock market backed off for the second consecutive session Friday in what some analysts believed may be the signal a downward correction was getting underway after a sharp, sustained advance. Turnover was heavy.

After almost two hours, declines were leading advances by a two-to-one ratio.

While the Dow Jones Industrial Average fell, Standard & Poor's 500 stock index was off 0.43 at 104.20.

Prices declined in brisk trading on the American Stock Exchange. Of the 950 issues on the tape, 442 pointed lower, while 252 advanced.

Among the most active Amex issues were Automated Building Components down more than 2 on 65,000 shares, Ling-Temco warrants fractionally lower on a volume of more than 26,000, and United Brands also slightly lower on over 25,000.

On the Big Board, IBM was off 3 1-4, while Louisville & Nashville Railroad, Burroughs, and Wrigley Co. dropped 2 or more.

Steels and motors generally surrendered fractions, as did aircrafts.

State Business Falls Sharply In Last Quarter

SACRAMENTO (CNS) — Business during the Christmas quarter of 1970 was more than a quarter of a billion dollars down from the record high set in the fourth quarter of 1969, the State Board of Equalization has reported.

The board's report shows that taxable transactions for the quarter totalled $11.5 billion, $260 million (2.2 per cent) less than the 1969 total.

The report says the slowdown was due to high unemployment levels, continuing inflation and the ten-week General Motors strike.

It also shows that taxable transactions for all of 1970 reached $43.2 billion, 2 per cent higher than 1969, but the pace of business became progressively slower during each quarter and accelerated downward during the fourth quarter.

Sales in Los Angeles County, which has 37 per cent of the taxable business in the state, dropped by more than $340 million, or 7.7 per cent.

Computer Unit That Sketches Wins Contract

LAKE SUCCESS, N.Y. (BW) — Astrosystems Inc. has announced the award to its subsidiary, Dimensional Systems Inc., in Waltham, Mass., of a major computer graphics contract by the Westinghouse Electric Corp.

The system is a complete stand-alone computerized drawing processor which automatically converts and produces finished schematics and manufacturing drawings from rough engineering sketches.

The system includes a central processing unit, provision for digitizing stations, editing stations with cathode ray terminals and up to four plotters. In addition to preparing the finished drawings, the system automatically captures data for wire list information, bills of materials and other direct and indirect manufacturing uses, all of which can be stored on magnetic tape in industry compatible format.

Ford's Income For Quarter Up Over Year Ago

DEARBORN (BW) — Ford Motor Co. consolidated net income in the first quarter of 1971 was $169 million, compared with $124 million in the first quarter of 1970, it was announced Monday.

Net income a share in the first quarter of 1971 was $1.57, up 37 per cent from the $1.15 earned in the first quarter of 1970. Earnings in the 1971 quarter were reduced by an estimated 38 cents a share because of a 65-day strike against Ford of Britain, which ended in the first week in April.

Consolidated sales, also depressed by the strike, were $3.9 billion in the first quarter of 1970, up 14 per cent from sales of $3.4 billion in the first quarter of 1970.

Worldwide factory sales of cars, trucks and tractors were 1,178,902 units, up slightly from factory sales of 1,151,454 in the comparable quarter of 1970.

Care Of Brake Fluid

Improper use of motor-vehicle brake fluids can harm your brake system.

Knowing exactly what fluid to use poses no problem. Simply stick with the brake fluid recommended by your vehicle manufacturer, for any other fluid may harm brake seals and cause brake system failure.

Remember that vapor lock can develop during hot weather if you use a brake fluid with a lower boiling point than that of your recommended fluid.

Vapor lock can also develop if you don't reject brake fluid from unsealed containers, which can accumulate dirt and absorb moisture. Use fluid only from sealed containers or small amounts of water in the fluid.

A Built-In Automobile Market

By HARRY CRAFT

Marin County has a built-in automobile market all its own.

With more than the usual amount of hilly terrain, winding and narrow roads and comparatively short driving distances to everyday shopping and conveniences, this area is about as close as you can get to being ideally suited for the small car.

Add to this the fact that the country leads the western states in the size of its average family income and it follows that Marin residents should be "hot" prospects for quality cars, probably not inclined to haggle too much over the extra cost of desirable options.

The hypothesis is indeed supported by fact.

During the 1970 model year, sales of foreign cars (mostly small cars) in Marin accounted for 40 per cent of the new car market. That approaches three times the national percentage figure. In terms of new car registrations it meant that out of a total of 10,227 passenger vehicles, 4,100 of them were imported makes. An additional segment of the market can be credited to a healthy showing by domestic compacts and also some of the new sub-compacts which began appearing on the scene in 1970.

This unique situation has caused some local dealers to take on small imports in addition to their regular lines of larger cars. And of course American manufacturers have already moved into the mini field — Chrysler with its Simca import, Ford with its Pinto, Chevrolet with Vega, American Motors with Gremlin, Dodge with the imported Colt, Buick with its Opel import, Lincoln-Mercury with the foreign manufactured Capri — and so on.

Marin is also a county of many two-car (or more) families and one of the cars is almost bound to be an import, possibly of an older vintage.

Since our last edition there have been several dealership changes. George Dexter gave up his Pontiac-GMC and American Motors agencies in San Rafael to concentrate on Dexter Toyota, which has been moved from Larkspur to San Rafael. He has also kept his interest in Annex Motors. The Pontiac-GMC and American Motors agencies are now operated by Marin Automobile Co. and Marin American Co. respectively — both at Fourth and E Streets, San Rafael.

Marin Dodge in San Rafael retains its same name but the new dealer-operator here is Frank Proto. L. J. Dervin Ford Co. of Novato is now Novato Ford, headed by Denny Saris. Brown Motors, Inc., San Rafael replaces Doug Dicker Sports Car Centre.

There are other new names in our list of dealers. Marin Mazda, San Rafael is one — handling the new Japanese Mazda with the rotary engine. Mill Valley Imports with a BMW agency and Paradise Motors, Corte Madera with a SAAB agency are others. Recently Marin Automobile Co. added the Japanese Honda line to its other cars.

Again this year, Marin new car dealers have joined in a common time for promoting and displaying their mid-1971 models at their individual showrooms. This is now traditionally known as the Showroom Auto Show and will take place throughout the coming week.

Imports, minis and midis and large domestic makes all will be shown in profusion. Special inducements to buy will be offered. This is the great mid-year automobile season which follows the introduction of many new models for the first time at automobile shows in major American cities.

It is a good time to reappraise the qualities of your favorite car and compare it with competitive makes. It is a good time of the year for buying and one of the best for looking.

Visit one or more of your local dealers during the coming week. Who knows? You may not even know you need a new car until you see the improvements made since your last one.

What It Was Like In Old Days — No Comfort In Memories

When father or grandfather gets a faraway look in his eye and tells of those beautiful winter drives to the farm when he was a lad, the pleasure of remembered scenery is blotting out the real discomforts of those trips.

This, at least, is quite likely the case if he was reared in the northern reaches where the mercury often flirted with zero at night and kept up the courtship all the next day.

Before World War I, most cars in the north stayed under cover all winter — drained of water and oil and jacked up to keep the tires from going flat and ruining the tubes.

A few rugged souls kept going. In the morning they'd fill the engine block with hot water, and the crankcase with oil kept overnight in the house to keep it from taking on the consistency of very thick molasses.

Side curtains cut off the worst winds but were seldom really tight — especially if several of their brittle mica or "isinglass" windows were broken out.

The combination of hot water and warm oil, and sometimes a teakettle or two of boiling water poured over the engine block, would normally get you underway.

With very many passengers, however, the windshield frosted over quickly unless you sliced an onion in half and rubbed the glass well with the fresh-cut end.

Later you could buy little fans to mount on the dash or steering column, or electric heaters with glowing wires like a toaster and suction cups to affix them to the windshield. Unfortunately, the latter tended to fall off on bumpy roads.

Passengers could have warm feet for awhile with wrapped soapstones, bricks or even mother's irons, heated on the kitchen range.

These primitive "heaters" were of little use to the driver, who had one foot on the accelerator and the other poised for the clutch. He did have his own touch of luxury, however, a wheel cover to keep his fingers from freezing tight to the rim.

Manifold heaters, an early attempt to bring engine heat to passengers, were hard to control — they sometimes got so hot they charred the wooden floor boards.

Engine heat could be used to de-ice the windshield in freezing rain. A hammer handle propped the hood open on the left side and warm air flowed back to the glass.

These and all the other tricks seldom made winter driving a real pleasure, however. That waited on development of closed cars, good heaters and defrosters.

They really don't build cars like they used to!

The Growing Loss Of Car Stereos

Music appreciation among thieves seems to be on the increase, judging from the growing number of thefts of auto stereo systems.

Whether they are inspired by the charms of music or the charms of high profits, thieves cost insurance companies $40 million in paid claims in 1969 for auto tape decks and stereo tapes. Figures for 1970 are not available, but it is believed such thefts have continued to mount.

You cut down on air pollution, too.

About a decade ago, we made a promise to remove our cars from the air pollution problem.

SPORTY PONTIAC SPRINT OPTION

Occasional Drink, Driving Out

You eight out of 10 men over 21 and you two out of three women over 21, who drink alcoholic beverages at least occasionally, should not drive afterward.

The National Automobile Club reports that the drinking problem has reached staggering proportions on the road. And a two-year study of fatal holiday accidents by the California State Automobile Association and the Automobile Club of Southern California showed that alcohol was involved in almost half of all fatal accidents covered.

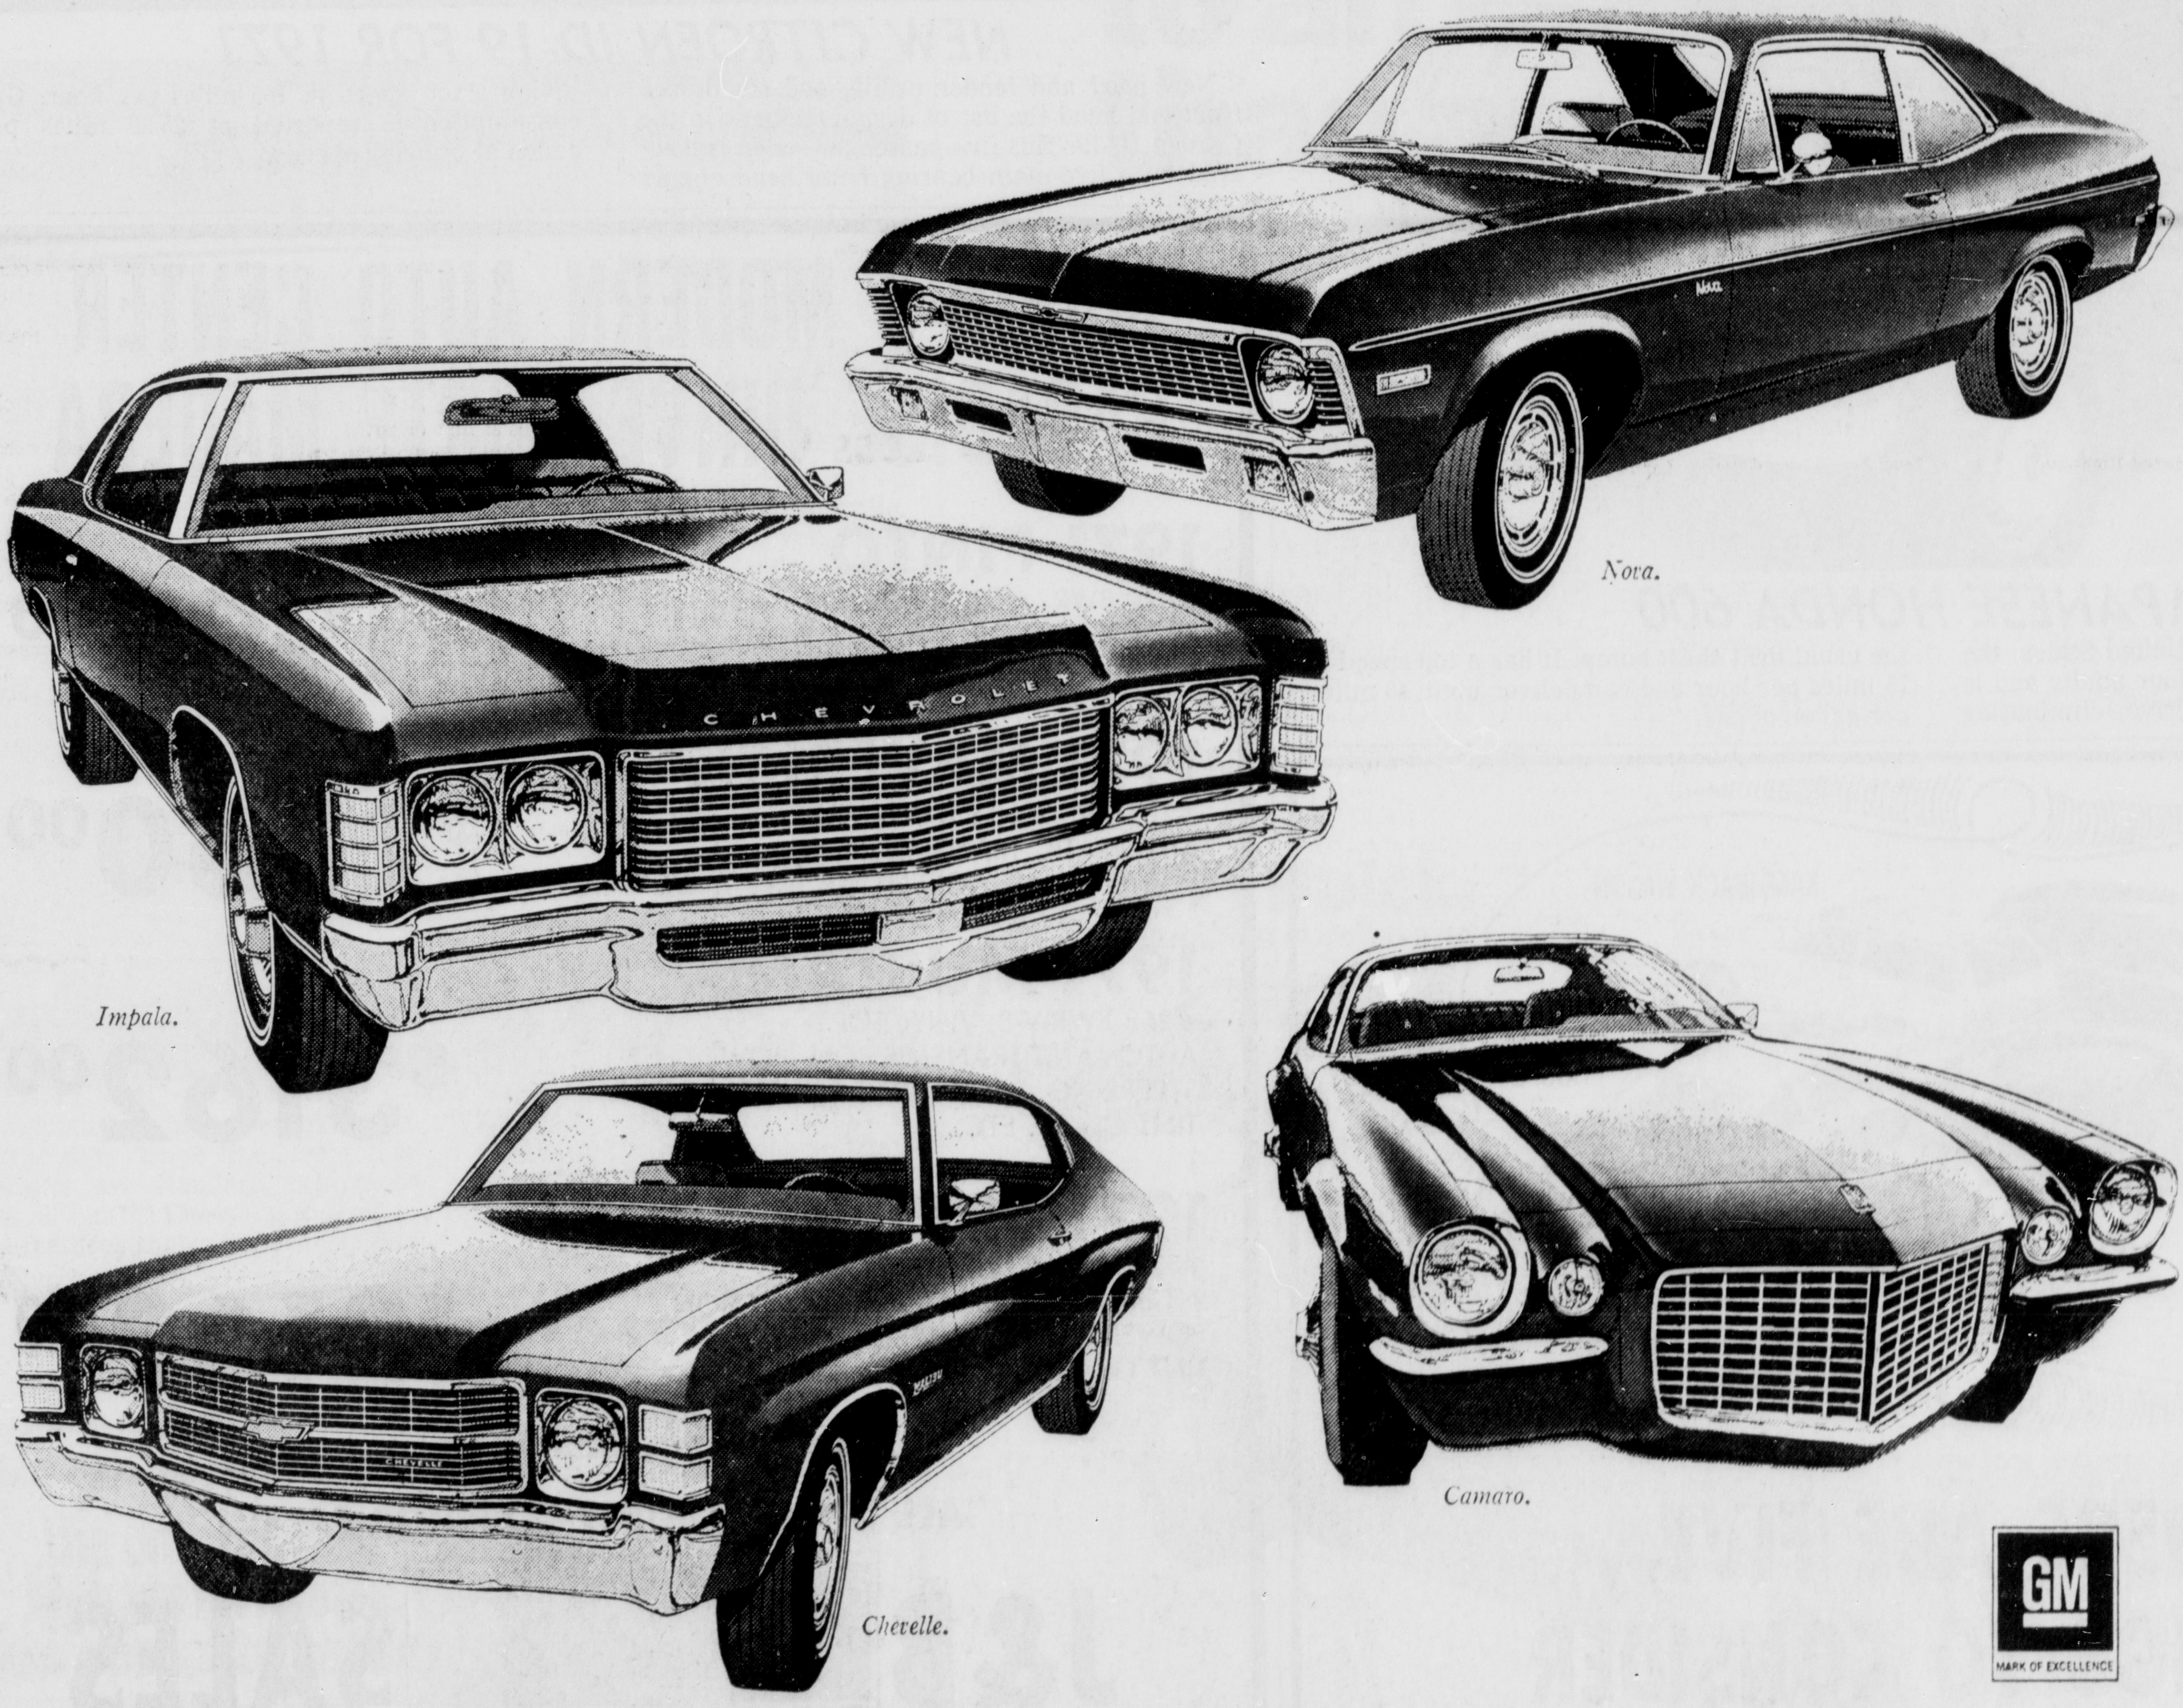
The study also showed that two-thirds of the fatal accidents occurred within a 25-mile radius of the driver's home; that two-thirds of the accidents occurred in rural areas; and that only 15 per cent occurred on freeways.

Single vehicle "solo" accidents accounted for 46 per cent of all fatalities, two-car accidents about 31 per cent, multiple car accidents 6 per cent and pedestrian fatalities 17 per cent.

And if you think that only "drunks" caused them you'll be surprised how many so-called light drinkers were the guilty parties.

RESTYLED GRAND PRIX — This classic Pontiac model has been given new front treatment and the rear has a boat tail with remodeled quarter panels, deck lid, bumper and tail lights. Standard equipment includes variable ratio power steering, power front disc brakes and a 400 cubic inch V-8 engine.

You cut down on outer wear, inner wear and under wear with any of these Chevrolets.



Your money's tight these days.

And before you go loosening it up on something new, you want to be very sure what you buy will be around for a while.

We understand. And we've done something about it.

Impala. Chevelle. Camaro. And Nova.

Each car, for example, gives you a lot more outerwear protection. In things like Magic-Mirror acrylic finish that's tougher and less porous than enamel. That holds a shine longer. Bumpers, door handles, and locks that are made to resist rust. And special protective inner fenders to help keep the outer fenders looking new.

Each car gives you more innerwear protection, too.

That's because our Body by Fisher craftsmen equip the cars with upholstery and materials that really hold their good looks. Resilient cushioning that gives you thousands and thousands of comfortable sits. And long-lasting vinyl trim.

And each car gives you more underwear protection. The engines last longer because they run cleaner on no-lead or low-lead gas. The brake lines are corrosion-resistant. The exhaust system is aluminized. And there are rocker panels or body sills designed to help keep rust spots from ever forming under the doors.

Impala. Chevelle. Camaro. And Nova.

If you like their good looks now, you'll love the way they hold onto their good looks.

It's putting you first like this, that keeps us first.

GM
MARK OF EXCELLENCE

Chevrolet

Buckling your seat and shoulder belts is an idea you can live with.

The Proper Care Of Radiator

As the heart of your car's cooling system, the radiator requires careful attention, without which it can cause your entire engine to overheat.

For a starter, excessive heat has a bad effect on engine oil, causing it to produce varnish and acids that damage valves, cylinders, and pistons.

What is your radiator's worst enemy? Since rust is the answer, it makes good sense to drain and flush your radiator about twice a year.

Taking good care of your radiator means keeping an eye on its water level. By not letting water hosswater hoses get too old, by not filling the radiator to the top, you're helping it to perform the way it should. And another thing, you should brush or wash out insects, leaves and dirt from the radiator's core. Other sise the air can't cool the water.

Whatever you do, don't pour cold water into an overheated radiator. That cylinder head can crack under the strain of a sudden temperature change.

Give the radiator, the heart of your cooling system, that careful attention.

Highway speed laws in Nevada say only that drivers must be "careful and prudent."

And if you think that only "drunks" caused them you'll be surprised how many so-called light drinkers were the guilty parties.

RESTYLED GRAND PRIX — This classic Pontiac model has been given new front treatment and the rear has a boat tail with remodeled quarter panels, deck lid, bumper and tail lights. Standard equipment includes variable ratio power steering, power front disc brakes and a 400 cubic inch V-8 engine.

You cut down on outer wear, inner wear and under wear with any of these Chevrolets.

Your money's tight these days.

And before you go loosening it up on something new, you want to be very sure what you buy will be around for a while.

We understand. And we've done something about it.

Impala. Chevelle. Camaro. And Nova.

Each car, for example, gives you a lot more outerwear protection. In things like Magic-Mirror acrylic finish that's tougher and less porous than enamel. That holds a shine longer. Bumpers, door handles, and locks that are made to resist rust. And special protective inner fenders to help keep the outer fenders looking new.

Each car gives you more innerwear protection, too.

That's because our Body by Fisher craftsmen equip the cars with upholstery and materials that really hold their good looks. Resilient cushioning that gives you thousands and thousands of comfortable sits. And long-lasting vinyl trim.

And each car gives you more underwear protection. The engines last longer because they run cleaner on no-lead or low-lead gas. The brake lines are corrosion-resistant. The exhaust system is aluminized. And there are rocker panels or body sills designed to help keep rust spots from ever forming under the doors.

Impala. Chevelle. Camaro. And Nova.

If you like their good looks now, you'll love the way they hold onto their good looks.

It's putting you first like this, that keeps us first.

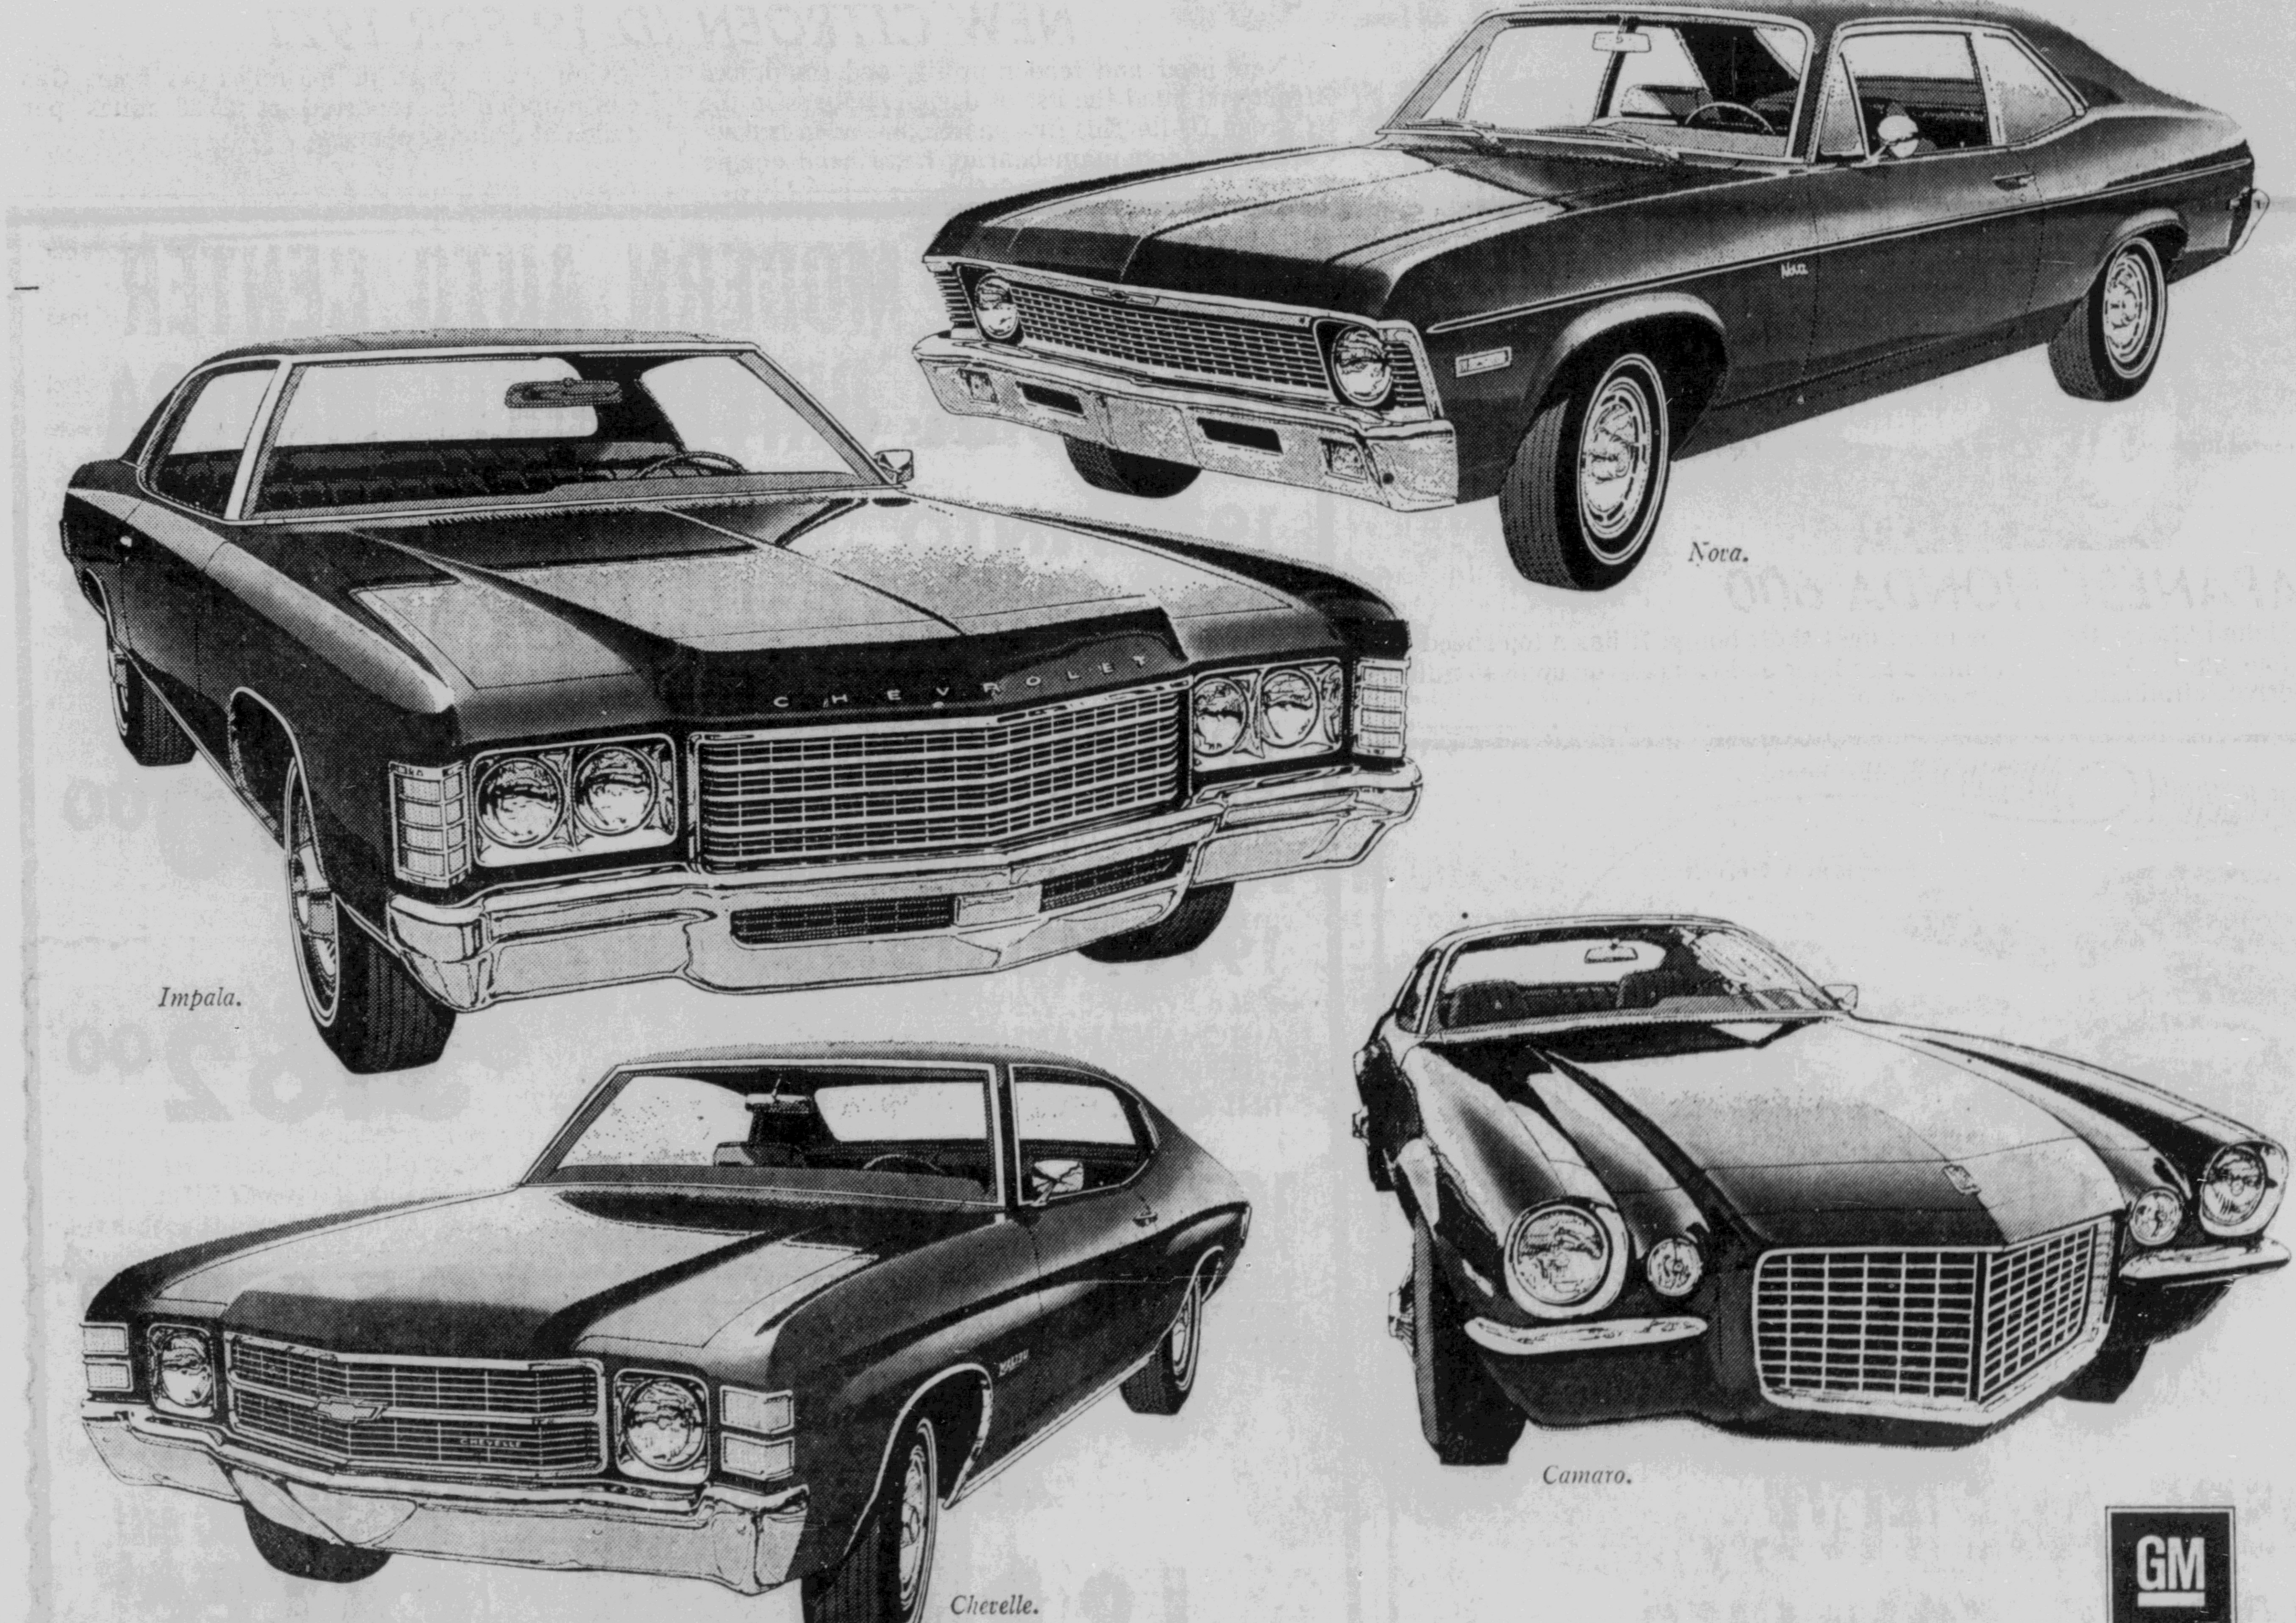
Buckling your seat and shoulder belts is an idea you can live with.



The Proper Care Of Radiator

As the heart of your car's cooling system, the radiator requires careful attention, without which it can cause your entire engine to overheat.

For a starter, excessive heat has a bad effect on engine oil, causing it to produce varnish and acids that damage valves, cylinders, and pistons.

What is your radiator's worst enemy? Since rust is the answer, it makes good sense to drain and flush your radiator about twice a year.

Taking good care of your radiator means keeping an eye on its water level. By not letting water hosswater hoses get too old, by not filling the radiator to the top, you're helping it to perform the way it should. And another thing, you should brush or wash out insects, leaves and dirt from the radiator's core. Other sise the air can't cool the water.

Whatever you do, don't pour cold water into an overheated radiator. That cylinder head can crack under the strain of a sudden temperature change.

Give the radiator, the heart of your cooling system, that careful attention.

Highway speed laws in Nevada say only that drivers must be "careful and prudent."

Things are seldom what they seem.

Big cars often pose as big cars, when they're really small cars.

For instance, notice how much bigger the big car seems than the Volkswagen Squareback Sedan.

Then count the number of suitcases it can take on: only 12.

Now, notice how small the Squareback seems to be.

Then count the number of suitcases it can take on: 16.

That's because the Squareback has 32.8 cubic feet of carrying space. Which is one and a half times as much as that of the largest sedan trunk.

Of course, if you really have a lot to carry you can always fold down the Squareback's rear seat. Then you'll have more than twice as much carrying space as the largest sedan trunk.

So which would you rather have —a sedan that looks like a big bully but really is a 12-suitcase weakling?

Or a little fella who's really a 16-suitcase giant?

The Newport Royal has been introduced this year by Chrysler-Plymouth Division. It features a new 360-cubic inch V-8 engine as standard equipment. Formerly a 383-cubic inch V-8 was the smallest engine available in a Chrysler model. Same optional equipment is available as on other Chrysler models.

An increased displacement to 120 cubic inches gives the Peugeot 504 a boost to 98 horsepower. Standard features for 1971 are fourwheel independent suspension, power assisted four-wheel disc brakes and sliding sunroof. Automatic transmission, radio and air conditioning are optional equipment.

Women Are Challenging The Males

Another claim to male superiority is on shakey ground.

Results of a nationwide test show that men may not be better drivers than women after all.

In fact the study showed girls reacted slightly better in four simulated traffic emergencies than their male counterparts.

The teenagers, members of driver education classes had to cope with an impending head-on collision, a near sideswipe, brake failure and a tire blowout. Using the Drivotrainer system they sat in small model cars fully equipped like real automobiles. The "drivers" responded to changing traffic conditions seen in full-color, sound films. Shown the Aetna emergency driving film for the first time, the girls grappled with the crises better than the boys in two out of four situations and tied them in a third.

The percentages of correct responses were:

Tire blowout — girls, 26 per cent; boys, 19 per cent. Sideswipe — girls, 17 per cent; boys, 11 per cent. Head-on — girls, 26 per cent; boys, 27 per cent. Brake failure — girls, 57 per cent; boys, 66 per cent.

Although the girls did somewhat better than the boys, neither group scored highly.

Rusty Car Can Bring Value Drop

Not only does the owner of a rusty car lose face among his friends but he also will lose plain dollars and cents. If and when he decides to sell that car, he will get less for it than its Blue Book value.

Rust sets in as the result of exposure to several substances, with salt often being the culprit. In industrial area, chemicals can corrode various car parts too, sometimes more so than salt.

To curtail the rusting of your car, go in for weekly car washes with thoroughness. Drive on dusty, wet, or snow-covered roads and your car better get even more washings than that.

Driving practices indeed have something to do with the formation of rust. Tailgating, a highly dangerous practice for the driver, also does damage to cars. For tailgate and your car can have its bumpers and body scratched by the road gravel and other debris thrown back by the car ahead.

And damaged parts do rust. Any nicks or paint chips on your car, therefore, need to be touched up immediately. Don't wait. To remove rust, use steel wool or sandpaper.

Remember these procedures for guarding against the dirty work of salt and chemicals, for protecting the good appearance of your car. Why lose face or money with a rusty car?

Flex Phenomenon Heats Up Tires

Did you know that tires can get hotter than boiling water?

It's a fact. Water boils at 212 degrees Fahrenheit. Tires that flex rapidly at fast speeds, however, can build up a higher temperature than that, a temperature as high as 250 degrees Fahrenheit.

And what causes such rapid flexing of tires? Underinflation for the loads carried makes tires flex more rapidly.

Keep your tires cool. Maintain the air pressures recommended in your owner's manual and you'll be a safe driver with safe tires.

Visibility of 250 miles is possible in an atmosphere containing only permanent gases and uncondensed vapors, says Encyclopaedia Britannica.

PLYMOUTH'S 1971 COMPACT MODEL

A new vinyl sun roof is being offered on the Plymouth Duster. Manually operated, it slides to the rear where it is stowed atop the roof. The Duster, introduced at the outset of the 1970 model year, is available in two models — the standard two-door coupe and the performance Duster 340 shown here.

PLYMOUTH SUBCOMPACT — Under development since 1966, the Plymouth Cricket has a four-cylinder engine producing 70 horsepower. Standard transmission is a floor-mounted, four-speed manual box. Other features are coil springs and anti-roll bar, power disc brakes and forced air ventilation.

PERFORMANCE CAR

Plymouth's Road Runner is intermediate in size with a standard 383-cubic inch, four-barrel V-8 engine, with 440-cubic inch, six-barrel and 426-cubic inch hemi as optional equipment. Road Runners are equipped with wide oval fiberglass belted tires.

Pact For Suspension Research

Ford Motor Co. has been awarded a federal research contract to investigate the feasibility of magnetic levitation as a suspension system for high-speed ground vehicles.

The feasbibility study could lead to a system of vehicles gliding on a cushion of electromagnetic force at speeds of up to 300 miles per hour. Such vehicles might be propelled along a roadbed by linear-induction motors, jet engines or turbine-driven propeller systems.

The basic theory behind the study is relatively simple: Like magnets repel. By installing powerful electromagnets on the vehicles, currents would be induced in the roadway. These currents would act as an opposing magnetic force, thus providing an invisble but very real cushion of magnetic energy.

Vehicles would be borne along this cushion with little friction. "Levacar" conept of the late 1950's. The Levacar used compressed air to lift it from a smooth surfaceway.

Under the government contract, studies will be conducted at Ford's scientific research laboratories in Dearborn, Mich.

The government also issued a contract for a similar study to the Stanford Research Institute of Palo Alto. The Ford and Stanford teams have agreed to coordinate their program plans to avoid unnecessary duplication of effort and to cooperate in exchanging information with the Canadian Federal Department of Transport, which also is interested in the concept.

If the concept proves workable, it would be particularly attractive for transportation systems running between the hearts of metropolitan centers ranging from 100 to 500 miles apart.

The Correct Way To Fix Flat Tires

Do you know what to do when you have a flat tire, besides swearing?

A great many people don't.

Of course, the first thing to do is to stop as soon as possible — but not without first checking where you are. Try not to pick a roadside spot just below the crest of a hill. Get on the shoulder of the road, out of the line of traffic.

And you might cut out and keep these rules, just in case it does happen to you:

Be sure the parking brake is on, the jack is firm on the ground and the lifting head is positioned on the car in a way so it will not slip. It's good idea to place a brick in front of or behind the tire diagonal to the one with the blowout. (In front, if the flat is a rear tire; behind if the flat is a front tire). That also helps prevent the car from shifting and sliding off the jack.

Loosen the lug nuts before — not after — jacking. That way you won't have to contend with a turning wheel when you take off the lug nuts.

LOWER PRICED CHRYSLER NEWPORT

The Newport Royal has been introduced this year by Chrysler-Plymouth Division. It features a new 360-cubic inch V-8 engine as standard equipment. Formerly a 383-cubic inch V-8 was the smallest engine available in a Chrysler model. Same optional equipment is available as on other Chrysler models.

MORE POWERFUL PEUGEOT

An increased displacement to 120 cubic inches gives the Peugeot 504 a boost to 98 horsepower. Standard features for 1971 are fourwheel independent suspension, power assisted four-wheel disc brakes and sliding sunroof. Automatic transmission, radio and air conditioning are optional equipment.

Women Are Challenging The Males

Another claim to male superiority is on shakey ground.

Results of a nationwide test show that men may not be better drivers than women after all.

In fact the study showed girls reacted slightly better in four simulated traffic emergencies than their male counterparts.

The teenagers, members of driver education classes had to cope with an impending head-on collision, a near sideswipe, brake failure and a tire blowout. Using the Drivotrainer system they sat in small model cars fully equipped like real automobiles. The "drivers" responded to changing traffic conditions seen in full-color, sound films. Shown the Aetna emergency driving film for the first time, the girls grappled with the crises better than the boys in two out of four situations and tied them in a third.

The percentages of correct responses were:

Tire blowout — girls, 26 per cent; boys, 19 per cent. Sideswipe — girls, 17 per cent; boys, 11 per cent. Head-on — girls, 26 per cent; boys, 27 per cent. Brake failure — girls, 57 per cent; boys, 66 per cent.

Although the girls did somewhat better than the boys, neither group scored highly.

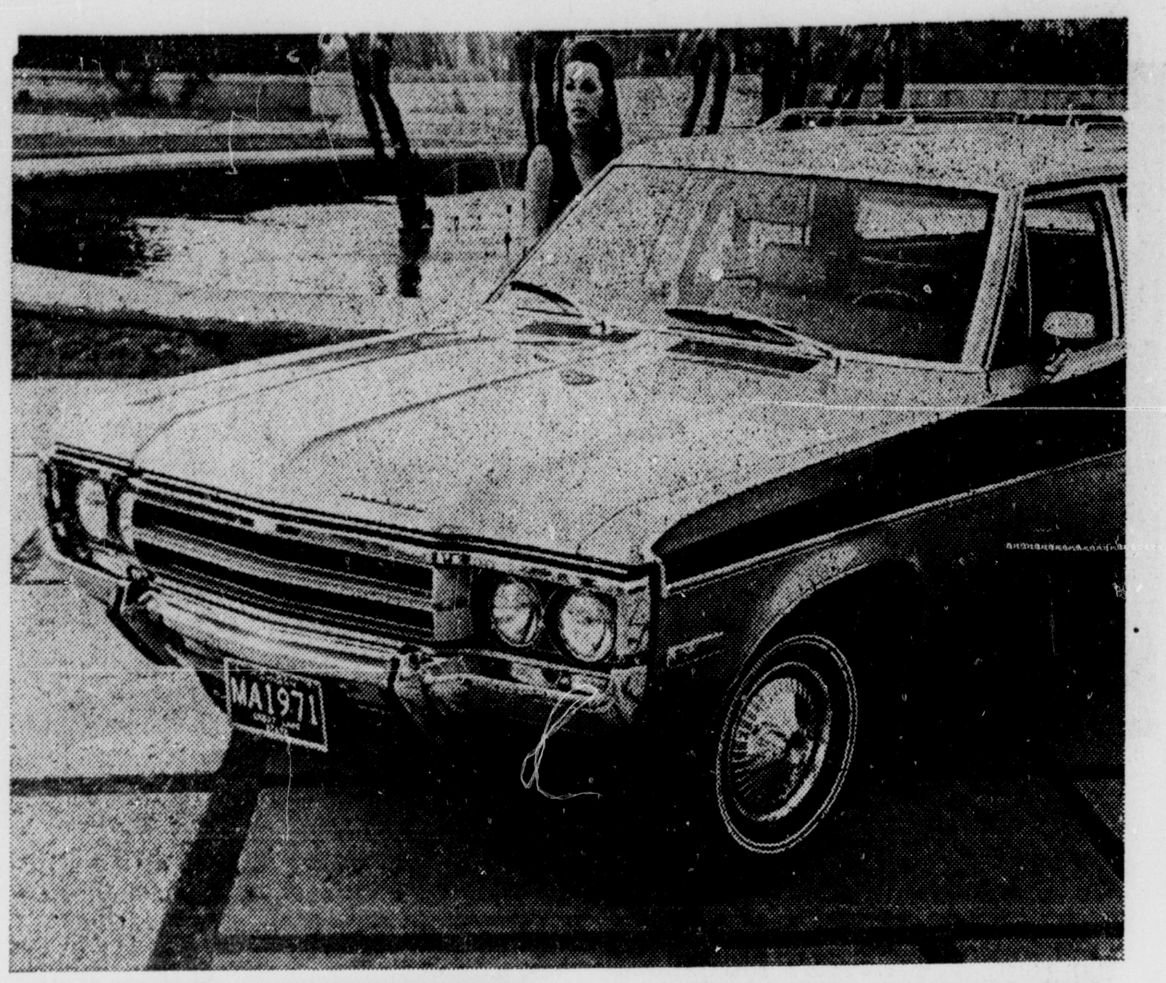
FOUR-PASSENGER JAVELIN

This sporty two-door hardtop by American Motors is slightly longer, compared with the 1970 model, and three inches wider. Sculptured raised fender sections keynote the styling. The windshield is sharply raked and side windows are ventless. High bucket seats are standard.



NEW NAME FOR INTERMEDIATE AMERICAN — The Matador is successor to the Rebel. All models seat six passengers, except bucket seat-equipped hardtops and this station wagon model is available with an optional third seat to provide space for eight persons. In addition to the standard 135-horsepower six engine there are five step-up options.

Air Conditioner Demand Goes Up

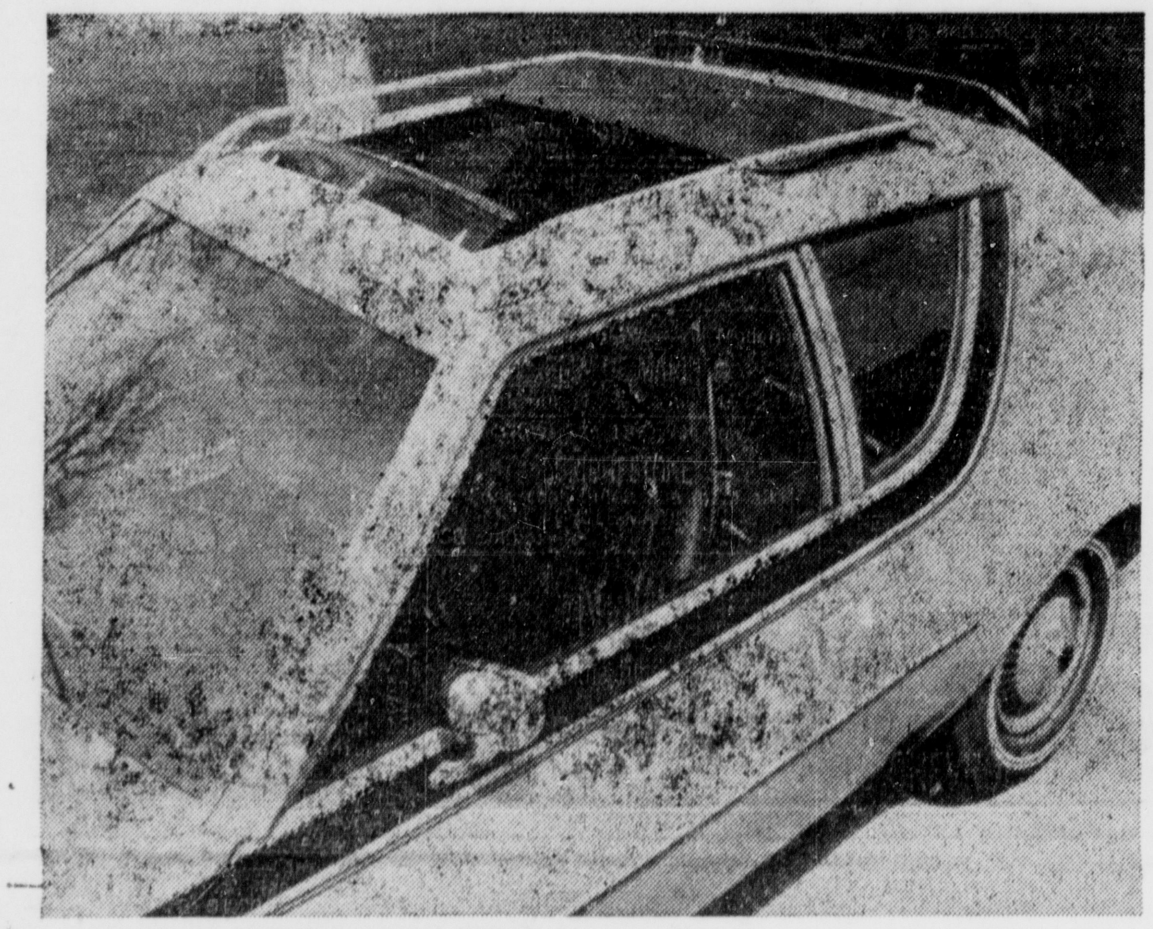
American motorists who keep up with the times have a thing about keeping cool.

Back as recently as 1960 our motoring citizens ordered air conditioning for a small minority of their cars, for less than seven percent.

Last year, however, those orders came flooding in, with Americans requesting air conditioning in more than 55 percent of their cars.

Boating Peril

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—The major cause of boating accidents is the failure of the operator to maintain a forward lookout, a U.S. Coast Guard study has revealed.



SPECIALLY EQUIPPED GREMLIN — A standard manually-operated sliding sun roof is a no-charge feature offered on the Gremlin four-passenger model, giving it a European flair. The sun roof is made of black vinyl with inner metal supporting members and slides rearward on aluminum rails.

Mountains Can Upset Drivers

After driving in mountain country for a little while, a person suddenly might not feel quite up to the whole thing.

That change in altitude often brings on weakness, sleepiness, or dizziness.

If you find yourself suffering from any of these symptoms while driving, better stop at a safe spot and get some rest.

Only resume your driving when you feel more like yourself again.

As customers get tougher Ford cars sell better.

Ford LTD, quiet and strong, is the luxury car without the luxury car price.

Ford LTD is the car that can match the luxury of cars costing hundreds of dollars more. And LTD's quiet ride is the standard that those same more expensive cars have to match themselves. That quiet strength is one reason for consumers choosing LTD over all other luxury cars in its class.

Torino is sized and priced right in the middle. Room for six, small car handling.

Consumers know the mid-size Torino gives them the roominess of a big car plus the easy handling of a small car. For a price that's right in the middle. As a result, Torino has become the most popular 4-door in its class. Your Ford Dealer has 13 other models to choose from, including sedans, wagons and hardtops.

Maverick, the simple compact car, offers 2 doors or 4; 6 or V-8 power.

Take Maverick. Consumers know that the simple machine is simple to own, simple to run, simple to keep. And they learned recently that a leading independent survey found Maverick has the best frequency of repair record of any American car. That might explain why it's America's best-selling compact.

NEW WOLKSWAGEN 411

Other standard features include automatic transmission, front disc brakes and front-end energy absorbing design.

Rusty Car Can Bring Value Drop

Not only does the owner of a rusty car lose face among his friends but he also will lose plain dollars and cents. If and when he decides to sell that car, he will get less for it than its Blue Book value.

Rust sets in as the result of exposure to several substances, with salt often being the culprit. In industrial area, chemicals can corrode various car parts too, sometimes more so than salt.

To curtail the rusting of your car, go in for weekly car washes with thoroughness. Drive on dusty, wet, or snow-covered roads and your car better get even more washings than that.

Driving practices indeed have something to do with the formation of rust. Tailgating, a highly dangerous practice for the driver, also does damage to cars. For tailgate and your car can have its bumpers and body scratched by the road gravel and other debris thrown back by the car ahead.

And damaged parts do rust. Any nicks or paint chips on your car, therefore, need to be touched up immediately. Don't wait. To remove rust, use steel wool or sandpaper.

Remember these procedures for guarding against the dirty work of salt and chemicals, for protecting the good appearance of your car. Why lose face or money with a rusty car?

Flex Phenomenon Heats Up Tires

Did you know that tires can get hotter than boiling water?

It's a fact. Water boils at 212 degrees Fahrenheit. Tires that flex rapidly at fast speeds, however, can build up a higher temperature than that, a temperature as high as 250 degrees Fahrenheit.

And what causes such rapid flexing of tires? Underinflation for the loads carried makes tires flex more rapidly.

Keep your tires cool. Maintain the air pressures recommended in your owner's manual and you'll be a safe driver with safe tires.

Visibility of 250 miles is possible in an atmosphere containing only permanent gases and uncondensed vapors, says Encyclopaedia Britannica.

Set A Good Example When Teaching A Teen To Drive

Sitting in your comfortable easy chair, you put down the newspaper as your teen-ager approaches you with that pleading but determined look. You half suspect what's up. Soon come the words that put butterflies in the stomach of many a parent.

"Let me learn to drive."

With all his outbursts and coaxing that follow, you finally consent, but not without reservations.

After all, unmarried youth under the age of 25 continues to be the most potentially dangerous person on the road today.

Still you're not without the means to raise him to be a careful driver. Hopefully you already started this long ago in preparation for his first day behind the wheel.

Time and again you've probably heard that parents have the greatest single influence on their children when it comes to driver development, good or bad. This is true.

While riding with parents, even young people not of age to drive often watch them like hawks. Actually driving habits begin to form unconsciously in children as early as their preschool days.

So, if you always exercise proper control of your driving, chances are your teen-ager will too. If unfortunately you don't, it's not too late to change.

All this boils down to your setting a good example. Observe all traffic laws so that your teen-ager won't throw something like this at you: "You don't always signal your intentions." Or, "You don't always come to a full stop at stop signs." And almost in the same breath he'll arrogantly ask why he should.

In the matter of your teenager's first chance to take the car out alone, don't allow it until you're sure he can handle the car in all traffic and weather conditions.

Okay. You think he's ready to go his own way on the road. About all you can do now is hope that you taught him everything he needs to know about safe driving.

In the event you get some feedback that he's pulling reckless stunts, you should restrict his driving privileges. Once he cuts out that nonsense, you can take off those restrictions

FAT CARS DIE YOUNG!

Burdened with tons of chrome and useless sheet metal, some cars collapse under the strain at a tender age.

But Volvos live to ripe old ages. Because Volvos are unfettered by fat.

They're trim. Yet they're designed to make good use of the space they take up.

That's why a Volvo's trunk holds more than a Lincoln's. And why a Volvo has more leg room in front than a Cadillac and more in the rear than a Buick.

So take a look at our Volvos. Driving a long-lasting, lean car can help put the fat where it belongs.

PLYMOUTH'S 1971 COMPACT MODEL

A new vinyl sun roof is being offered on the Plymouth Duster. Manually operated, it slides to the rear where it is stowed atop the roof. The Duster. introduced at the outset of the 1970 model year, is available in two models — the standard two-door coupe and the performance Duster 340 shown here.

PLYMOUTH SUBCOMPACT — Under development since 1966, the Plymouth Cricket has a four-cylinder engine producing 70 horsepower. Standard transmission is a floor-mounted, four-speed manual box. Other features are coil springs and anti-roll bar, power disc brakes and forced air ventilation.

PERFORMANCE CAR

Plymouth's Road Runner is intermediate in size with a standard 383-cubic inch, four-barrel V-8 engine, with 440-cubic inch, six-barrel and 426-cubic inch hemi as optional equipment. Road Runners are equipped with wide oval fiberglass belted tires.

Pact For Suspension Research

Ford Motor Co. has been awarded a federal research contract to investigate the feasibility of magnetic levitation as a suspension system for high-speed ground vehicles.

The feasbibility study could lead to a system of vehicles gliding on a cushion of electromagnetic force at speeds of up tc 300 miles per hour. Such vehicles might be propelled along a roadbed by linear-induction motors, jet engines or turbine-driven propeller systems.

The basic theory behind the study is relatively simple: Like magnets repel. By installing powerful electromagnets on the vehicles, currents would be induced in the roadway. These currents would act as an opposing magnetic force, thus providing an invisble but very real cushion of magnetic energy.

Vehicles would be borne along this cushion with little friction. "Levacar" conept of the late 1950's. The Levacar used compressed air to lift it from a smooth surfaceway.

Under the government contract, studies will be conducted at Ford's scientific research laboratories in Dearborn, Mich.

The government also issued a contract for a similar study to the Stanford Research Institute of Palo Alto. The Ford and Stanford teams have agreed to coordinate their program plans to avoid unnecessary duplication of effort and to cooperate in exchanging information with the Canadian Federal Department of Transport, which also is interested in the concept.

If the concept proves workable, it would be particularly attractive for transportation systems running between the hearts of metropolitan centers ranging from 100 to 500 miles apart.

The Correct Way To Fix Flat Tires

Do you know what to do when you have a flat tire, besides swearing?

A great many people don't.

Of course, the first thing to do is to stop as soon as possible — but not without first checking where you are. Try not to pick a roadside spot just below the crest of a hill. Get on the shoulder of the road, out of the line of traffic.

And you might cut out and keep these rules, just in case it does happen to you:

Be sure the parking brake is on, the jack is firm on the ground and the lifting head is positioned on the car in a way so it will not slip. It's good idea to place a brick in front of or behind the tire diagonal to the one with the blowout. (In front, if the flat is a rear tire; behind if the flat is a front tire). That also helps prevent the car from shifting and sliding off the jack.

Loosen the lug nuts before — not after — jacking. That way you won't have to contend with a turning wheel when you take off the lug nuts.

It's stylish to drive a truck.

That, at least, is one explanation for the continued boom in truck sales, particularly of weight vehicles. Truck sales are booming even more than auto sales.

But not all trucks are sharing the boom. Medium weight trucks have been losing popularity for years. Lightweight trucks are those with gross vehicle weight ratings of 10,000 pounds or less.

What's the reason?

In some suburban and exurban families, the pick-up truck or utility vehicle has become the second car. It's more convenient for hauling materials, such as new shrubbery or picnic gear, than any other type of vehicle.

There also seems to be a social status aura about it. Almost certainly a family with a pick-up truck is a two or more vehicle family, and driving the truck to the railroad station or even to church is one way they can advertise that fact.

Another force behind the spurt in light truck sales is the tendency for many skilled craftsmen — plumbers, carpenters, roofers and the like — to use the truck as their office.

In urban areas these skilled craftsmen work out of their shops. But with the growth of the suburbs the craftsmen forsake shops and are reachable at their homes. They don't need a shop because they keep all their tools and other equipment in their truck — an office on wheels.

Also stimulating sales of weight trucks is the surge in outdoor recreation and camping. Three-quarter-ton pick-up trucks (6,001 to 10,000 pounds) become a part of the "camper" type recreational vehicle.

The pickup trucks are used for daily shuffling around town during the week. Comes the week-end, and the camper is mounted on the truck and becomes the family's rolling home as they go exploring the great outdoors.

Car Engine Study

HANOVER, N.H. (UPI)—Dr. David V. Ragone, dean of the Thayer School of Engineering at Dartmouth College, has been named chairman of the Advisory Committee on Advanced Automotive Power Systems. Russell E. Train, chairman of the President's Council on Environmental Quality, said the panel will be responsible for evaluating and advising the council on the status of various advanced power systems which could serve as alternatives for internal combustion engines.

VW Buyers Like Brighter Colors

Light and bright colors are the choice of Volkswagen Super Beetle buyers this year with nearly 25 percent of them asking for yellow cars, according to a survey conducted by Volkswagen of America.

This is the second year in a row that yellow has taken first place in buyer popularity. Three years ago the favorite was light blue.

In second place on VW's 1971 color card is the tangerine-like Clementine, the choice of 17 per cent of all Super Beetle buyers through February.

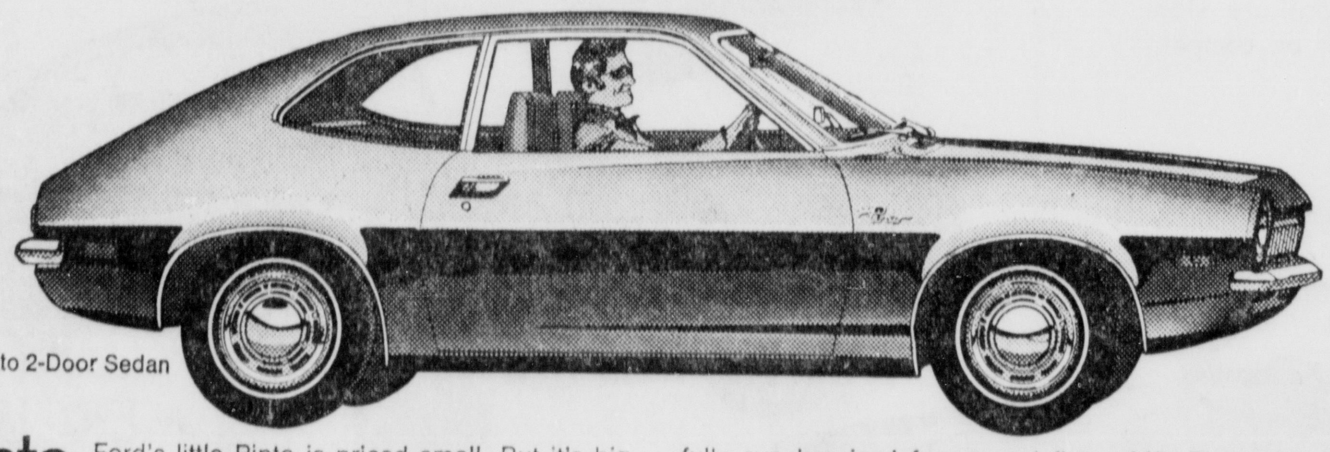
(for so many miles of carefree driving)



1971 Pinto 2-Door Sedan

Pinto Ford's little Pinto is priced small. But it's big on value and performance. Pinto averaged over 25 mpg in simulated city/suburban driving.

Pinto calls for only half as many oil changes as VW. One-sixth as many chassis lubes. Has self-adjusting brakes.

It has more overall room inside than VW and is only an inch longer outside. Pinto has high back, front bucket seats and a fully synchronized four-speed floor shift. Pinto also has a 75-hp engine so you can merge easily into high-speed traffic.

And Pinto's wide stance and low silhouette are designed for better stability—even in gusty winds. It has rack-and-pinion steering (like expensive sports cars) for precision handling.

Pinto. It's at your Ford Dealer's now. Along with the brand-new 3-Door Pinto Runabout with the 5-foot trunk.

*$1919 is Ford's suggested price for the base 2-Door Pinto. However, the car shown is equipped with white sidewall tires $29, and accent option $60. Destination charges $99. Dealer preparation charges (if any), state and local taxes are extra.

Simple to the core.
(Simple to buy. Simple to drive. Simple to service.)

Maverick Simplicity is what Mavericks are all about. Whether you choose two doors or four. Whether you like Six or V-8 power. And whether you want an economy model or a jazzy Grabber. All Mavericks are simple to live with. A recent independent survey found that Maverick has the lowest frequency of repair record of any American car. See the simple machine that gives you more of whatever you like. At your Ford Dealer's now.

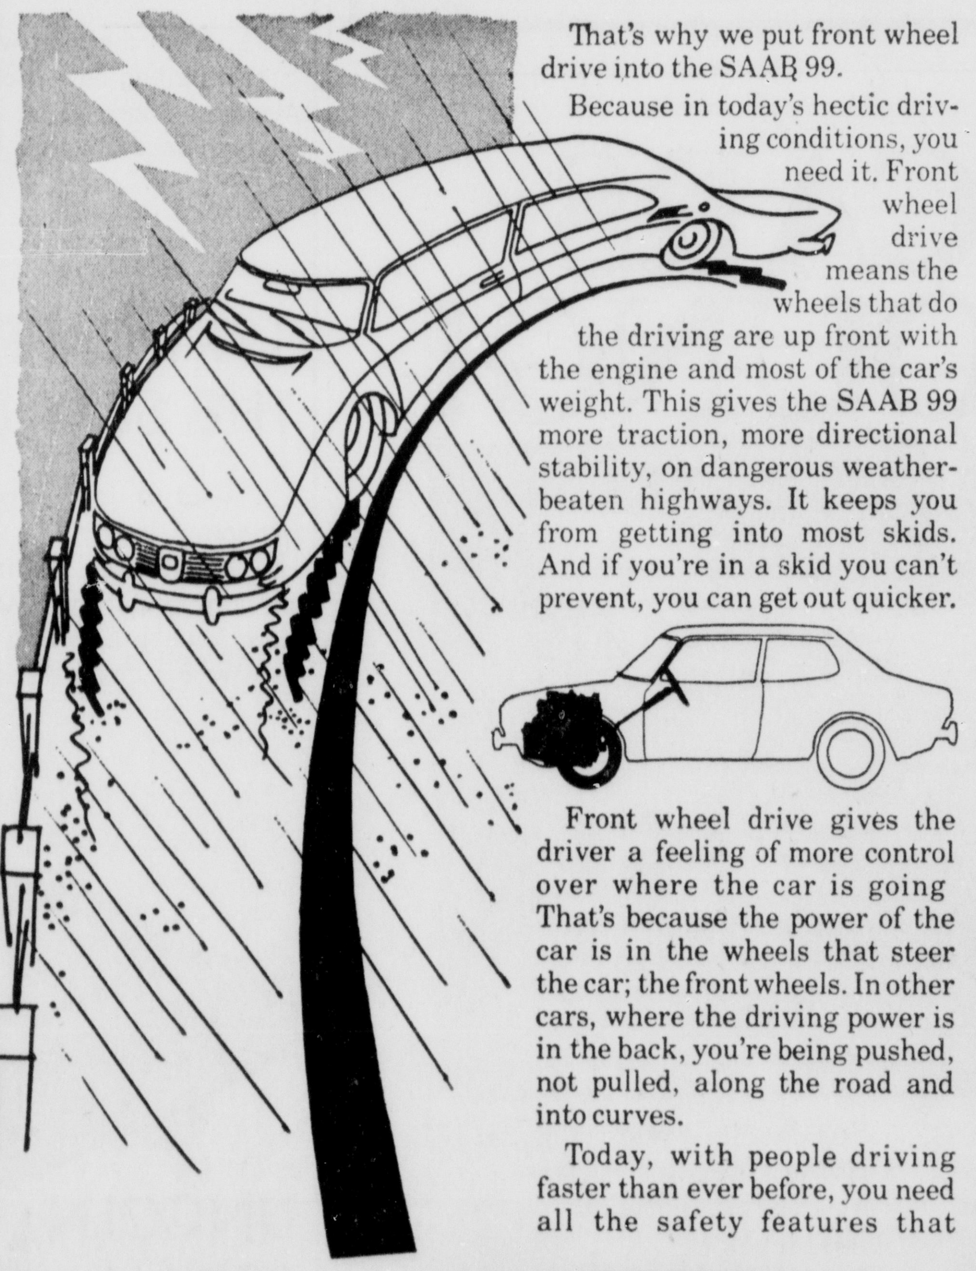
Today, if your car doesn't pull you out of a curve, you may have to be towed out.



That's why we put front wheel drive into the SAAB 99.

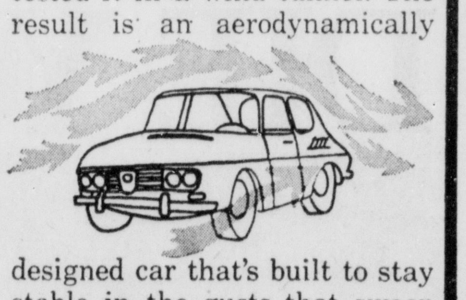
Because in today's hectic driving conditions, you need it. Front wheel drive means the wheels that do the driving are up front with the engine and most of the car's weight. This gives the SAAB 99 more traction, more directional stability, on dangerous weather-beaten highways. It keeps you from getting into most skids. And if you're in a skid you can't prevent, you can get out quicker.

Front wheel drive gives the driver a feeling of more control over where the car is going That's because the power of the car is in the wheels that steer the car; the front wheels. In other cars, where the driving power is in the back, you're being pushed, not pulled, along the road and into curves.

Today, with people driving faster than ever before, you need all the safety features that SAAB has put into the 99.

. Take our wide-track. It's the widest of any small car. It keeps the 99 on an even keel, hugging the road tightly.

And before we put the 99 out to face wind-swept roads, we tested it in a wind tunnel. The result is an aerodynamically designed car that's built to stay stable in the gusts that sweep across open highways. It also means that the 99 is quieter than other cars, because there isn't that noise you get when you're constantly fighting the wind.



And the 99 is available with fuel injection, automatic transmission, and in either a two door or four door model.

When we built the SAAB 99 we built a car for today's driving conditions. For driving on wet roads, bad roads or super fast highways. SAAB 99 is a car built to pull you out of danger spots, instead of pushing you into them.

FOUR-PASSENGER JAVELIN

This sporty two-door hardtop by American Motors is slightly longer, compared with the 1970 model, and three inches wider. Sculptured raised fender sections keynote the styling. The windshield is sharply raked and side windows are ventless. High bucket seats are standard.

NEW NAME FOR INTERMEDIATE AMERICAN — The Matador is successor to the Rebel. All models seat six passengers, except bucket seat-equipped hardtops and this station wagon model is available with an optional third seat to provide space for eight persons. In addition to the standard 135-horsepower six engine there are five step-up options.

Air Conditioner Demand Goes Up

American motorists who keep up with the times have a thing about keeping cool.

Back as recently as 1960 our motoring citizens ordered air conditioning for a small minority of their cars, for less than seven percent.

Last year, however, those orders came flooding in, with Americans requesting air conditioning in more than 55 percent of their cars.

Boating Peril

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—The major cause of boating accidents is the failure of the operator to maintain a forward lookout, a U.S. Coast Guard study has revealed.

SPECIALLY EQUIPPED GREMLIN — A standard manually-operated sliding sun roof is a no-charge feature offered on the Gremlin four-passenger model, giving it a European flair. The sun roof is made of black vinyl with inner metal supporting members and slides rearward on aluminum rails.

Mountains Can Upset Drivers

After driving in mountain country for a little while, a person suddenly might not feel quite up to the whole thing.

That change in altitude often brings on weakness, sleepiness, or dizziness.

If you find yourself suffering from any of these symptoms while driving, better stop at a safe spot and get some rest.

Only resume your driving when you feel more like yourself again.

Well we're going to make that happen. Convince you that the Citroen ton for ton and dollar for dollar is the finest, best engineered and safest car in the world.

As customers get tougher Ford cars sell better.

Ford LTD, quiet and strong, is the luxury car without the luxury car price.

Ford LTD is the car that can match the luxury of cars costing hundreds of dollars more. And LTD's quiet ride is the standard that those same more expensive cars have to match themselves. That quiet strength is one reason for consumers choosing LTD over all other luxury cars in its class.

Torino is sized and priced right in the middle. Room for six, small car handling.

Consumers know the mid-size Torino gives them the roominess of a big car plus the easy handling of a small car. For a price that's right in the middle. As a result, Torino has become the most popular 4-door in its class. Your Ford Dealer has 13 other models to choose from, including sedans, wagons and hardtops.

Maverick, the simple compact car, offers 2 doors or 4; 6 or V-8 power.

Take Maverick. Consumers know that the simple machine is simple to own, simple to run, simple to keep. And they learned recently that a leading independent survey found Maverick has the best frequency of repair record of any American car. That might explain why it's America's best-selling compact.

Tie Rod Comes In For Damage

What vehicle parts get damaged most frequently in various types of collisions?

Of the parts in the steering system the tie rod proves to be the one most likely to take a treal beating during a collision.

When it comes to the suspension of the car involved in a serious accident, both front-wheel and rear-wheel alignment frequently go out of whack.

Among the visual aids, damage to the windshields and side windows can be counted on more often than not.

In the propulsion of the car, fan cad clutch, radiator, engine mounts, and transmission linkage all bear checking for damage after a collision.

The Use Of Safety Studs

Safety tire studs should never be installed in worn tires, even if their use has been minimal, because the holes molded into the tires to accept studs will quickly collect particles of dirt.

If studs are installed over these dirt particles, they could push them through the casing and ruin the tire.

Winter tires and tire studs have been improved over the past years so that it is not likely that one would lose the studs out of his tires. Replacement of lost studs, which was done occasionally years ago, is no longer necessary.

TREAD WEAR EXPECTANCY

Because of variable driving habits and road conditions under which tires are used, it is impractical for Montgomery Ward, and conceivably misleading to our customers, to guarantee any specific number of months or miles of tread wear. If a Riverside tire wears down to the tread wear indicators during the Tread Wear Expectancy, Montgomery Ward will upon presentation of the tire and evidence of date of purchase replace the tire for the then current regular price less the following dollar allowance:

Set A Good Example When Teaching A Teen To Drive

Sitting in your comfortable easy chair, you put down the newspaper as your teen-ager approaches you with that pleading but determined look. You half suspect what's up. Soon come the words that put butterflies in the stomach of many a parent.

"Let me learn to drive."

With all his outbursts and coaxing that follow, you finally consent, but not without reservations.

After all, unmarried youth under the age of 25 continues to be the most potentially dangerous person on the road today.

Still you're not without the means to raise him to be a careful driver. Hopefully you already started this long ago in preparation for his first day behind the wheel.

Time and again you've probably heard that parents have the greatest single influence on their children when it comes to driver development, good or bad. This is true.

While riding with parents, even young people not of age to drive often watch them like hawks. Actually driving habits begin to form unconsciously in children as early as their preschool days.

So, if you always exercise proper control of your driving, chances are your teen-ager will too. If unfortunately you don't, it's not too late to change.

All this boils down to your setting a good example. Observe all traffic laws so that your teen-ager won't throw something like this at you: "You don't always signal your intentions." Or, "You don't always come to a full stop at stop signs." And almost in the same breath he'll arrogantly ask why he should.

In the matter of your teenager's first chance to take the car out alone, don't allow it until you're sure he can handle the car in all traffic and weather conditions.

Okay. You think he's ready to go his own way on the road. About all you can do now is hope that you taught him everything he needs to know about safe driving.

In the event you get some feedback that he's pulling reckless stunts, you should restrict his driving privileges. Once he cuts out that nonsense, you can take off those restrictions

FAT CARS DIE YOUNG!

(1967-1971)

Burdened with tons of chrome and useless sheet metal, some cars collapse under the strain at a tender age.

But Volvos live to ripe old ages. Because Volvos are unfettered by fat.

They're trim. Yet they're designed to make good use of the space they take up.

That's why a Volvo's trunk holds more than a Lincoln's. And why a Volvo has more leg room in front than a Cadillac and more in the rear than a Buick.

So take a look at our Volvos. Driving a long-lasting, lean car can help put the fat where it belongs.

Drive Slowly Into Curves For Safety

Don't gamble on the curves.

Since it is easy to underestimate both your speed and the sharpness of a curve ahead, you should approach all highway curves with caution. It is much wiser to enter a curve at a low rate of speed and then accelerate while rounding it than to enter at a high rate of speed and have to brake while rounding the curve. Excessive speed on a curve will put your car in the relentless grip of centrifugal force, throw it out of control, and drag it from the road. Excessive speed on a curve can all too easily end in disaster.

Rules For Driving In The Rain

No matter what day or what hour the rain comes, the average driver realizes that it brings with it increased driving hazards.

Driving in the rain need not be so bad if you know the meaning of caution, the safe driver's guiding light. The following are the ways in which you should exercise that caution:

Rule number one concerns speed. By all means, slow down. Don't risk skidding, among other things.

Get the "feel" of the road, another important rule. To do so, brake gently and experimentally.

Consider the ill effects of rain.

Bicycle Riders Also Need To Obey Rules

Obeying the rules of the road is not a policy only for car drivers. To remain safe, bike riders also must have such rules clearly in mind and follow them to the best of their ability.

Rule number one stresses respect for the law. You bicyclists as well as motorists should try to obey all traffic signs and signals without exception. You have no right to decide which ones you want to obey and which ones you want to disobey. Every sign and signal on the road demands your obedience.

The authorities devised such signs not to place an added burden on you but to protect you against those many road dangers.

Always stop on "red" and go on "green." Never attempt to beat the lights. And so keep your eyes peeled for signs designating one-way streets. If you ride down a one-way street the wrong way, you might crash into a big car or truck, with your little bike being no match for either one. And you might really get yourself "wiped out."

For the very reckless driver, the chances of avoiding a serious accident are mighty slim. And your chances won't be much better if you perform some reckless stunts on your bike. Don't speed or weave from lane to lane. Don't be selfish. Be courteous. As for the other maneuvers, keep to the right, and whenever you're near parked cars keep that safe distance. Make turns from the proper lane. And always be careful.

Summer's On The Way So Watch Out For Damage

Long, hot summer drives can do anything but wonders for your car.

One of their major threats to your car and to your pocketbook, that of overheating the engine, can damage delicate engine parts. Resulting repairs did others out of a pretty penny. They can do the same to you.

It pays to remember that a car's engine develops enough heat to keep a house warm in winter. So it's logical that many causes of overheating exist, causes that can't be eliminated by just pouring fresh water in the radiator.

That radiator itself can leak. It can leak from any part that has rusted through. And any radiator with a leaking pet cock that won't shut off is considered damaged and requires replacement.

Another possible cause of overheating: A loose fan belt will slip. A slipping fan belt prevents the pump from circulating coolant.

How about a defective thermostat? If it releases hot water at all, it still won't release it to the radiator soon enough.

Not the least of a driver's worries, a faulty water pump can be detected by leaks around the shaft. A churning noise clues you in too.

Find the above causes bad enough? Many others come into play, too, others such as a clogged radiator core, damaged radiator cap, or loose head gasket. But the worst in any driver's book is the cracked cylinder head or block.

As soon as the overheating problem hits, take your car to an able mechanic.

Repair Costs Hike Insurance

The continuing upward trend in the cost and frequency of automobile repairs can be expected to exert strong upward pressure on the barometer of auto insurance prices, according to the Insurance Information Institute.

The institute said it appeared unavoidable that insurance rates would be forced to react sensitively to such factors as the increasing number of highway accidents, soaring repair costs and the reluctance of auto manufacturers to produce new cars less vulnerable to damage in low-speed crashes than their predecessors.

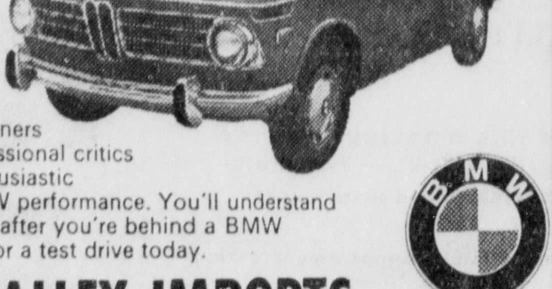
While deaths and injuries declined slightly in 1970, the number of accidents rose to more than 22 million — an increase of almost 100,000 over the previous year. Meanwhile, a national survey of auto insurance adjusters and repair garages shows that the average hourly labor rate increased from $5.10 in 1965 to slightly more than $8 in 1970, a 56-per cent jump.

Skipping Meals On Road Can Be Costly

Skipping meals might be one way of making up for lost time on the road. It's just as foolhardy, however, as all the other ways.

Through this practice you're only risking the fatigue and drowsiness that can be brought on by low blood sugar. Have regular meals along the way, but make them light and of easily digested foods.

Road and Track Magazine (May 1968) says:
"The BMW 1600 and 2002 are the best sedan buys in the world."



Next to BMW owners themselves, professional critics are the most enthusiastic endorsers of BMW performance. You'll understand why five minutes after you're behind a BMW wheel. Come in for a test drive today.

MOTOR WORKS

Most automobile makers would like you to visit the showroom.

Mercedes-Benz would rather you visit the factory.

Almost any automobile can be made to look good in the showroom.

Sloppy workmanship and production shortcuts are easily glossed over amid a barrage of adjectives and the glitter of neon lights.

But you can't hide anything in the factory. It's as revealing as inspecting the kitchen of a restaurant.

That's why, at Mercedes-Benz, we wish everyone could visit our factory before they visit our showroom.

Here are some of the things you'd discover.

Some quaint notions

The work areas are clean and bright. The atmosphere orderly and unhurried. More like an Old World Guild Shop than a typical automobile factory. While some brag about assembly lines that build 100 cars an hour, we boast of building 30. We take six weeks to craft our 600 model.

And we have some refreshingly quaint notions about how automobiles should be built.

In our upholstery shop, over 100 former dressmakers cut, stitch and tailor each interior with the care that goes into a designer's original.

A luxury to some makers. A necessity to Mercedes-Benz.

Five layers of material, an inch of rubberized padding and 16 man-hours go into every convertible top. That's longer than it takes most manufacturers to assemble an entire convertible.

Over 100 former dressmakers now live in Sindelfingen, West Germany. They work in our upholstery shop.

Expensive? Of course. But the top of a Mercedes-Benz convertible will never billow or flutter. And it muffles road noise better than most hardtops.

Cabinetmakers, not chemists

We have still another old-fashioned idea. It concerns the wood trim that goes into our automobiles. We think it should come from a tree. Not a plastic mold.

So instead of chemists we have cabinetmakers.

They take hours to select and match grains; highlight and accent the wood's character with artist's brushes and stain, protect its beauty with five coats of varnish; then polish it with oil and pumice. When time permits they use their cabinetmaking skills to build furniture for our executive offices.

Minutes, not seconds

Even the assembly lines reflect this pace. Cars crawl along while workers spend minutes, not seconds, on their specialty. You'd find craftsmen filling, grinding, and smoothing a single roof seam for 15 minutes or more. Solidifying the body into a single rattle-thwarting unit with 8,000 to 10,000 welds. And patiently fitting doors, hoods and trunk lids to a tolerance that cannot vary more than one millimeter.

A blow to time and motion experts. But a boon to some appreciative owner.

If it might rust, paint it

You can't fully appreciate the 44 pounds of rust protection we apply to every car until you've exposed your Mercedes-Benz to the slush and salt of several winters.

But in our factory you could begin to understand why it will resist the ravages of corrosion.

You'd see workers swabbing zinc oxide paint on the back side of body panels before they are welded airtight.

Spraying the underside with a resilient armor that actually "heals" itself when struck with a stone.

Hand painting the front of the car with an extra coat of specially formulated enamel designed to shrug off gravel.

Even the insides of the bumpers get a protective coat of paint.

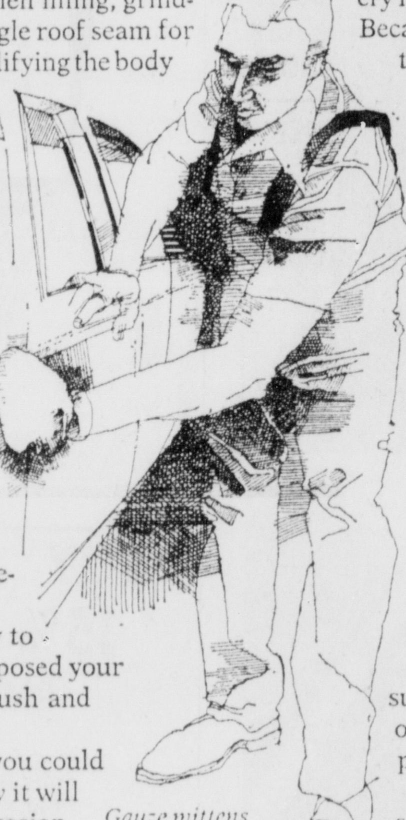
The ear rejects 1 in 10

Wending your way through the factory, you'd notice a curious mix in our labor force. One of every ten workers is an inspector.

Inspectors check vital welds by pounding away at them with a hammer and chisel. A skill so demanding they're sent back to school twice each year.

Inspectors with white gauze mittens painstakingly feel every inch of the unfinished body. Because the hand is better than the eye in detecting minute burrs and ripples.

And after inspectors subject rear axles to 55 mechanical and electronic checks, some to tolerances as fine as 8/10,000 of an inch, one in ten is rejected by an amazing device called the human ear.



Gauze mittens protect inspectors' hands from calluses that might impair their uncanny touch.

"A small basket for waste"

But in checking disc brakes, our distrust goes largely unrewarded.

The machines that produce the discs are adjusted after every 40 pieces. An electronic inspector measures five critical dimensions on every disc they make. A production supervisor manually re-checks the dimensions on every fifth one. And a quality controller must personally take every disc from the end of the line.

Yet after all this, only one disc in a thousand fails to meet our exacting standards. As an experienced controller once told a visitor, "We have only a very small basket for waste."

One man decides

But after passing thousands of quality control checks, it all comes down to one man. A sort of "ultimate inspector."

He spends at least 20 minutes with each car as the world's fussiest critic. Feeling, checking and testing anything he suspects. No car can leave the factory without his approval, which he signifies by affixing a signature to the windshield. The traditional signature of Gottlieb Daimler. Only then is it ready for your approval in the showroom.

The mark of final approval is the same as it was in 1886. The signature of Gottlieb Daimler.

$5,000 and up.

Adhering to an engineering ideal, not a price objective, has put our automobiles among the world's most costly.

The least expensive Mercedes-Benz, our 220 Sedan, costs $5,445†.

But to the man who buys an automobile to keep, not to trade every few years, this seems no extravagance at all.

As the engineering editor of Road & Track magazine noted in a recent article on his own Mercedes-Benz, "The most satisfying thing about the car is its great precision of operation and quality of manufacture.

"At 35,000 miles…the car is more impressive than when new."

If you are planning to visit Europe this year, plan to visit our factory. To see, for yourself, why even the lowliest Mercedes-Benz is worth over $5,000.

To make arrangements, just check the coupon. Our man in charge of tours, Peter Grassl, will send details.

And if you'd like to see the rest of Europe in your own Mercedes-Benz, simply check the box for our Guide to European Delivery.

A NEW LINE FOR BUICK

The new Centurion series comes in a hardtop coupe as shown above and a four-door hardtop as well as a convertible. Like all regular Buick models, the Centurion has curved glas windows and cantilever roof styling. Power is delivered by a 455-cubic inch engine. Variable ratio power steering and power brakes with front discs are standard.

DRAMATIC REAR DESIGN - Buick's Riviera sport coupe for 1971 has a unique rear window treatment. New body has larger interior dimensions and 35 per cent more trunk space. A computerized drive control system which is said to improve directional stability on slippery roads is introduced as an option on the Riviera.

It's stylish to drive a truck.

That, at least, is one explanation for the continued boom in truck sales, particularly of weight vehicles. Truck sales are booming even more than auto sales.

But not all trucks are sharing the boom. Medium weight trucks have been losing popularity for years. Lightweight trucks are those with gross vehicle weight ratings of 10,000 pounds or less.

What's the reason?

In some suburban and exurban families, the pick-up truck or utility vehicle has become the second car. It's more convenient for hauling materials, such as new shrubbery or picnic gear, than any other type of vehicle.

There also seems to be a social status aura about it. Almost certainly a family with a pick-up truck is a two or more vehicle family, and driving the truck to the railroad station or even to church is one way they can advertise that fact.

Another force behind the spurt in light truck sales is the tendency for many skilled craftsmen — plumbers, carpenters, roofers and the like — to use the truck as their office.

In urban areas these skilled craftsmen work out of their shops. But with the growth of the suburbs the craftsmen forsake shops and are reachable at their homes. They don't need a shop because they keep all their tools and other equipment in their truck — an office on wheels.

Also stimulating sales of weight trucks is the surge in outdoor recreation and camping. Three-quarter-ton pick-up trucks (6,001 to 10,000 pounds) become a part of the "camper" type recreational vehicle.

The pickup trucks are used for daily shuffling around town during the week. Comes the week-end, and the camper is mounted on the truck and becomes the family's rolling home as they go exploring the great outdoors.

Car Engine Study

HANOVER, N.H. (UPI)—Dr. David V. Ragone, dean of the Thayer School of Engineering at Dartmouth College, has been named chairman of the Advisory Committee on Advanced Automotive Power Systems. Russell E. Train, chairman of the President's Council on Environmental Quality, said the panel will be responsible for evaluating and advising the council on the status of various advanced power systems which could serve as alternatives for internal combustion engines.

VW Buyers Like Brighter Colors

Light and bright colors are the choice of Volkswagen Super Beetle buyers this year with nearly 25 percent of them asking for yellow cars, according to a survey conducted by Volkswagen of America.

This is the second year in a row that yellow has taken first place in buyer popularity. Three years ago the favorite was light blue.

In second place on VW's 1971 color card is the tangerine-like Clementine, the choice of 17 per cent of all Super Beetle buyers through February.

Small Bite...$1919*
(for so many miles of carefree driving)

1971 Pinto 2-Door Sedan

Pinto Ford's little Pinto is priced small. But it's big on value and performance. Pinto averaged over 25 mpg in simulated city/suburban driving.

Pinto calls for only half as many oil changes as VW. One-sixth as many chassis lubes. Has self-adjusting brakes.

It has more overall room inside than VW and is only an inch longer outside. Pinto has high back, front bucket seats and a fully synchronized four-speed floor shift. Pinto also has a 75-hp engine so you can merge easily into high-speed traffic.

And Pinto's wide stance and low silhouette are designed for better stability—even in gusty winds. It has rack-and-pinion steering (like expensive sports cars) for precision handling.

Pinto. It's at your Ford Dealer's now. Along with the brand-new 3-Door Pinto Runabout with the 5-foot trunk.

*$1919 is Ford's suggested price for the base 2-Door Pinto. However, the car shown is equipped with white sidewall tires $29, and accent option $60. Destination charges $99. Dealer preparation charges (if any), state and local taxes are extra.

Simple to the core.

Today, if your car doesn't pull you out of a curve, you may have to be towed out.

That's why we put front wheel drive into the SAAB 99.

Because in today's hectic driving conditions, you need it. Front wheel drive means the wheels that do the driving are up front with the engine and most of the car's weight. This gives the SAAB 99 more traction, more directional stability, on dangerous weather-beaten highways. It keeps you from getting into most skids. And if you're in a skid you can't prevent, you can get out quicker.

Front wheel drive gives the driver a feeling of more control over where the car is going That's because the power of the car is in the wheels that steer the car; the front wheels. In other cars, where the driving power is in the back, you're being pushed, not pulled, along the road and into curves.

Today, with people driving faster than ever before, you need all the safety features that SAAB has put into the 99.

Take our wide-track. It's the widest of any small car. It keeps the 99 on an even keel, hugging the road tightly.

And before we put the 99 out to face wind-swept roads, we tested it in a wind tunnel. The result is an aerodynamically designed car that's built to stay stable in the gusts that sweep across open highways. It also means that the 99 is quieter than other cars, because there isn't that noise you get when you're constantly fighting the wind.

And the 99 is available with fuel injection, automatic transmission, and in either a two door or four door model.

When we built the SAAB 99 we built a car for today's driving conditions. For driving on wet roads, bad roads or super fast highways. SAAB 99 is a car built to pull you out of danger spots, instead of pushing you into them.

Mercury Comet
puts in 3 important things the other small cars leave out.

Comet 2-door sedan

1. A gutsy, "expensive" look plus luxuries you don't pay extra for.

We thought you'd like styling to wink at, not wince at. Nice lines, smooth, solid looking, sculptured.

Unlike "stripped" small cars, Comet offers many luxuries. At no extra charge:

100% nylon carpeting both front and rear. Wheel lip moldings. Deluxe steering wheel.

Plus a cigarette lighter. Rear armrests and ashtray. Foam-padded front seat cushion. Lighted front ashtray. Dual body paint stripes.

2. Real room for 4 adults—not just 3½.

Front hip room and shoulder room are much greater than in most other small cars.

In fact, Comet's front head room and leg room are within a fraction of an inch of big cars like Chrysler Imperial, Dodge Charger and Chrysler Newport.

3. Zippy "6" or V-8 performance—100 to 210 horsepower.

Comet's standard engine has over 50% greater power than many small imports.

If that's not enough, choose from 2 optional "sixes." 115 and 145 hp. Or a 210 hp. V-8. And some V-8 it is. Gets you up to turnpike speeds quickly. Let's you haul a fair-sized trailer.

And Comet gives you everything you buy a small car for: Easy handling. Gas economy. Low prices.

Turning diameter is only 36.9 feet, making Comet just as deft in a parking lot as it is on the highway.

Gas mileage rivals imports—about 22 mpg based on simulated city/suburban driving tests with standard engine.

And Comet is such a simple, easy-to-fix, money-saving machine, we even offer a Do-It-Yourself Manual.

And look at these low prices. Remember these are manufacturer's suggested retail prices. Why not see what your Mercury dealer suggests.

	Manufacturer's Suggested Retail Prices*	Mercury Dealer Prices

Comet 4-door sedan	2276.00	....

LATEST IN TRIUMPH'S SPITFIRE LINE

The 1971 Mark IV Spitfire is Triumph's lowest priced sports car and one of its most popular models. It boasts an extensively restyled interior as well as several chassis and engine modifications which improve performance, comfort and handling.

The Use Of Safety Studs

Safety tire studs should never be installed in worn tires, even if their use has been minimal, because the holes molded into the tires to accept studs will quickly collect particles of dirt.

If studs are installed over these dirt particles, they could push them through the casing and ruin the tire.

Winter tires and tire studs have been improved over the past years so that it is not likely that one would lose the studs out of his tires. Replacement of lost studs, which was done occasionally years ago, is no longer necessary.

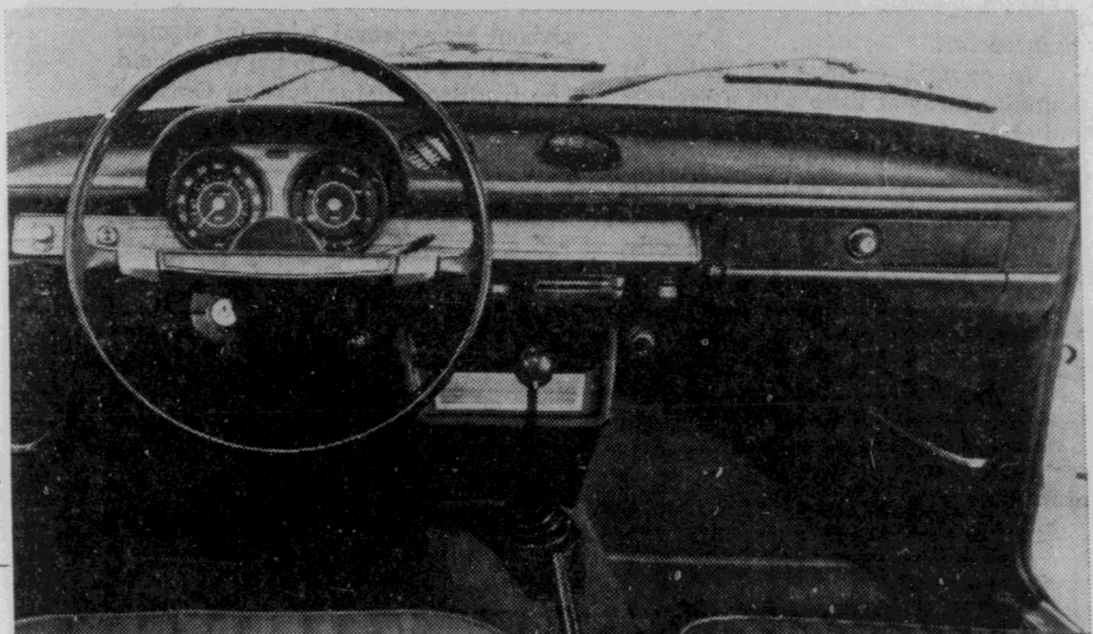
Venezuela is the largest oil producer in South America.

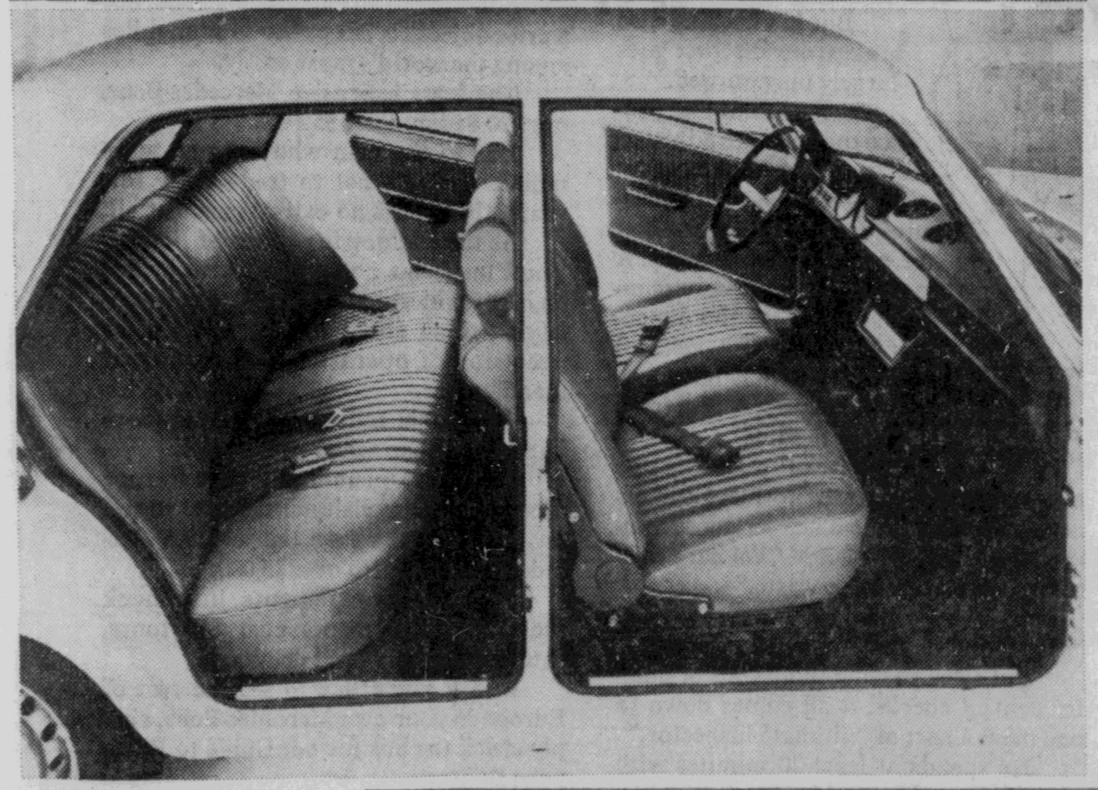
NEWEST OPEL MODEL

This four-door version of the Opel 1900 is being introduced this spring. The 1900 series, which made its appearance this year, features longer looking hood, wider treads and power brakes with front discs as standard equipment.

VOLVO'S NEW SPORT SEDAN

The 142-E two-door sedan added to the Volvo line this year has an electronically controlled engine that generates 130 horsepower. Four-speed transmission is all synchronized and comes equipped with an electrically operated overdrive.





FIAT STYLING Passenger compartments in the new Fiat 124-S sedan are carpeted. A center console is suitable for radio, stereo or air conditioning. There is a locking glove box and two molded compartments on the firewalls. Front seats have reclining backs and adjustable head rests.

Tie Rod Comes In For Damage

What vehicle parts get damaged most frequently in various types of collisions?

Of the parts in the steering system the tie rod proves to be the one most likely to take a treal beating during a collision.

When it comes to the suspension of the car involved in a serious accident, both front-wheel and rear-wheel alignment frequently go out of whack.

Among the visual aids, damage to the windshields and side windows can be counted on more often than not.

In the propulsion of the car, fan cad clutch, radiator, engine mounts, and transmission linkage all bear checking for damage after a collision.

TREAD WEAR EXPECTANCY

Because of variable driving habits and road conditions under which tires are used, it is impractical for Montgomery Ward, and conceivably misleading to our customers, to guarantee any specific number of months or miles of tread wear. We can, however, indicate the wear potential we have built into our tires in terms of service in normal family use. If a Riverside tire wears down to the tread wear indicators during the Tread Wear Expectancy, Montgomery Ward will upon presentation of the tire and evidence of date of purchase replace the tire for the then current regular price less the following dollar allowance:

FIFTY YEARS MAKE A DIFFERENCE

In 1921 Dodge offered a commercial car with a choice of three wooden bodies — express, stake and business car. Today the "commercial car" is a truck. The "express" (top) is a pickup (bottom). The stake body is reserved for larger units and the "business car" has become a van.

DODGE'S IMPORTED SUBCOMPACT — The Colt, of Japanese origin, has a 100-horsepower motor, water-cooled four-cylinder engine, disc brakes and adjustable steering column. Besides this four-door sedan it is available as a coupe, two-door hardtop and four-door sedan.

Defects Vs. Fatalities

If you have been ignoring an annoying "cluck-cluck-cluck" from the front of your car or delaying replacement of a bald tire, you should know about a study by the California Highway Patrol which reveals the extent of relationship between mechanical defects and highway fatalities.

In a detailed study of 409 fatal single vehicle accidents, 29 per cent of the vehicles involved had one or more mechanical defects. Two out of three of these defects either caused the accident or contrubuted to it.

In 6.4 per cent of the accidents investigated, a mechanical deficiency was directly responsible.

The two year study discloses 172 faulty mechanical systems in 119 vehicles.

The Wundercar

Automotively speaking you are looking at the wonder of the age. The new BMW Bavaria. Take the way it goes. Up to 130 mph. (Cruises at 120 all day long.) That's because its engine is built around the most efficient combustion system ever designed. Take the way it holds the road. Like you'd hold a beautiful girl. Tight. That's because of a remarkable suspension system that features MacPherson struts up front, semi-trailing arms in back, with BMW's unique multi-jointed rear axle.

Small wonder Ken Purdy says, in Playboy Magazine, that BMW may be the best car in the world.

Rules For Driving In The Rain

No matter what day or what hour the rain comes, the average driver realizes that it brings with it increased driving hazards.

Driving in the rain need not be so bad if you know the meaning of caution, the safe driver's guiding light. The following are the ways in which you should exercise that caution:

Rule number one concerns speed. By all means, slow down. Don't risk skidding, among other things.

Get the "feel" of the road, another important rule. To do so, brake gently and experimentally.

Consider the ill effects of rain.

Drive Slowly Into Curves For Safety

Don't gamble on the curves.

Since it is easy to underestimate both your speed and the sharpness of a curve ahead, you should approach all highway curves with caution. It is much wiser to enter a curve at a low rate of speed and then accelerate while rounding it than to enter at a high rate of speed and have to brake while rounding the curve. Excessive speed on a curve will put your car in the relentless grip of centrifugal force, throw it out of control, and drag it from the road. Excessive speed on a curve can all too easily end in disaster.

Bicycle Riders Also Need To Obey Rules

Obeying the rules of the road is not a policy only for car drivers. To remain safe, bike riders also must have such rules clearly in mind and follow them to the best of their ability.

Rule number one stresses respect for the law. You bicyclists as well as motorists should try to obey all traffic signs and signals without exception. You have no right to decide which ones you want to obey and which ones you want to disobey. Every sign and signal on the road demands your obedience.

The authorities devised such signs not to place an added burden on you but to protect you against those many road dangers.

Always stop on "red" and go on "green." Never attempt to beat the lights. And so keep your eyes peeled for signs designating one-way streets. If you ride down a one-way street the wrong way, you might crash into a big car or truck, with your little bike being no match for either one. And you might really get yourself "wiped out."

For the very reckless driver, the chances of avoiding a serious accident are mighty slim. And your chances won't be much better if you perform some reckless stunts on your bike. Don't speed or weave from lane to lane. Don't be selfish. Be courteous. As for the other maneuvers, keep to the right, and whenever you're near parked cars keep that safe distance. Make turns from the proper lane. And always be careful.

Summer's On The Way So Watch Out For Damage

Long, hot summer drives can do anything but wonders for your car.

One of their major threats to your car and to your pocketbook, that of overheating the engine, can damage delicate engine parts. Resulting repairs did others out of a pretty penny. They can do the same to you.

It pays to remember that a car's engine develops enough heat to keep a house warm in winter. So it's logical that many causes of overheating exist, causes that can't be eliminated by just pouring fresh water in the radiator.

That radiator itself can leak. It can leak from any part that has rusted through. And any radiator with a leaking pet cock that won't shut off is considered damaged and requires replacement.

Another possible cause of overheating: A loose fan belt will slip. A slipping fan belt prevents the pump from circulating coolant.

How about a defective thermostat? If it releases hot water at all, it still won't release it to the radiator soon enough.

Not the least of a driver's worries, a faulty water pump can be detected by leaks around the shaft. A churning noise clues you in too.

Find the above causes bad enough? Many others come into play, too, others such as a clogged radiator core, damaged radiator cap, or loose head gasket. But the worst in any driver's book is the cracked cylinder head or block.

As soon as the overheating problem hits, take your car to an able mechanic.

Repair Costs Hike Insurance

The continuing upward trend in the cost and frequency of automobile repairs can be expected to exert strong upward pressure on the barometer of auto insurance prices, according to the Insurance Information Institute.

The institute said it appeared unavoidable that insurance rates would be forced to react sensitively to such factors as the increasing number of highway accidents, soaring repair costs and the reluctance of auto manufacturers to produce new cars less vulnerable to damage in low-speed crashes than their predecessors.

While deaths and injuries declined slightly in 1970, the number of accidents rose to more than 22 million — an increase of almost 100,000 over the previous year. Meanwhile, a national survey of auto insurance adjusters and repair garages shows that the average hourly labor rate increased from $5.10 in 1965 to slightly more than $8 in 1970, a 56-per cent jump.

Skipping Meals On Road Can Be Costly

Skipping meals might be one way of making up for lost time on the road. It's just as foolhardy, however, as all the other ways.

Through this practice you're only risking the fatigue and drowsiness that can be brought on by low blood sugar. Have regular meals along the way, but make them light and of easily digested foods.

BMW
BAVARIAN MOTOR WORKS

Most automobile makers would like you to visit the showroom. Mercedes-Benz would rather you visit the factory.

Almost any automobile can be made to look good in the showroom.

Sloppy workmanship and production shortcuts are easily glossed over amid a barrage of adjectives and the glitter of neon lights.

But you can't hide anything in the factory. It's as revealing as inspecting the kitchen of a restaurant.

That's why, at Mercedes-Benz, we wish everyone could visit our factory before they visit our showroom.

Here are some of the things you'd discover.

Some quaint notions

The work areas are clean and bright. The atmosphere orderly and unhurried. More like an Old World Guild Shop than a typical automobile factory. While some brag about assembly lines that build 100 cars an hour, we boast of building 30. We take six weeks to craft our 600 model.

And we have some refreshingly quaint notions about how automobiles should be built.

In our upholstery shop, over 100 former dressmakers cut, stitch and tailor each interior with the care that goes into a designer's original.

A luxury to some makers. A necessity to Mercedes-Benz.

Five layers of material, an inch of rubberized padding and 16 man-hours go into every convertible top. That's longer than it takes most manufacturers to assemble an entire convertible.

Over 100 former dressmakers now live in Sindelfingen, West Germany. They work in our upholstery shop.

Expensive? Of course. But the top of a Mercedes-Benz convertible will never billow or flutter. And it muffles road noise better than most hardtops.

Cabinetmakers, not chemists

We have still another old-fashioned idea. It concerns the wood trim that goes into our automobiles. We think it should come from a tree. Not a plastic mold.

So instead of chemists we have cabinetmakers.

They take hours to select and match grains; highlight and accent the wood's character with artist's brushes and stain, protect its beauty with five coats of varnish; then polish it with oil and pumice. When time permits they use their cabinetmaking skills to build furniture for our executive offices.

Minutes, not seconds

Even the assembly lines reflect this pace. Cars crawl along while workers spend minutes, not seconds, on their specialty. You'd find craftsmen filling, grinding, and smoothing a single roof seam for 15 minutes or more. Solidifying the body into a single rattle-thwarting unit with 8,000 to 10,000 welds. And patiently fitting doors, hoods and trunk lids to a tolerance that cannot vary more than one millimeter.

A blow to time and motion experts. But a boon to some appreciative owner.

If it might rust, paint it

You can't fully appreciate the 44 pounds of rust protection we apply to every car until you've exposed your Mercedes-Benz to the slush and salt of several winters.

But in our factory you could begin to understand why it will resist the ravages of corrosion.

You'd see workers swabbing zinc oxide paint on the back side of body panels before they are welded airtight.

Spraying the underside with a resilient armor that actually "heals" itself when struck with a stone.

Hand painting the front of the car with an extra coat of specially formulated enamel designed to shrug off gravel.

Even the insides of the bumpers get a protective coat of paint.

The ear rejects 1 in 10

Wending your way through the factory, you'd notice a curious mix in our labor force. One of every ten workers is an inspector.

Gauze mittens protect inspectors' hands from calluses that might impair their uncanny touch.

Inspectors check vital welds by pounding away at them with a hammer and chisel. A skill so demanding they're sent back to school twice each year.

Inspectors with white gauze mittens painstakingly feel every inch of the unfinished body. Because the hand is better than the eye in detecting minute burrs and ripples.

And after inspectors subject rear axles to 55 mechanical and electronic checks, some to tolerances as fine as 8/10,000 of an inch, one in ten is rejected by an amazing device called the human ear.

"A small basket for waste"

But in checking disc brakes, our distrust goes largely unrewarded.

The machines that produce the discs are adjusted after every 40 pieces. An electronic inspector measures five critical dimensions on every disc they make. A production supervisor manually re-checks the dimensions on every fifth one. And a quality controller must personally take every disc from the end of the line.

Yet after all this, only one disc in a thousand fails to meet our exacting standards. As an experienced controller once told a visitor, "We have only a very small basket for waste."

One man decides

But after passing thousands of quality control checks, it all comes down to one man. A sort of "ultimate inspector."

He spends at least 20 minutes with each car as the world's fussiest critic. Feeling, checking and testing anything he suspects. No car can leave the factory without his approval, which he signifies by affixing a signature to the windshield. The traditional signature of Gottlieb Daimler. Only then is it ready for your approval in the showroom.

The mark of final approval is the same as it was in 1886. The signature of Gottlieb Daimler.

$5,000 and up.

Adhering to an engineering ideal, not a price objective, has put our automobiles among the world's most costly.

The least expensive Mercedes-Benz, our 220 Sedan, costs $5,445†.

But to the man who buys an automobile to keep, not to trade every few years, this seems no extravagance at all.

As the engineering editor of Road & Track magazine noted in a recent article on his own Mercedes-Benz, "The most satisfying thing about the car is its great precision of operation and quality of manufacture.

"At 35,000 miles...the car is more impressive than when new."

If you are planning to visit Europe this year, plan to visit our factory. To see, for yourself, why even the lowliest Mercedes-Benz is worth over $5,000.

Youth Sheds Little Light On Bombings

Says It Was 'Stupid' But 'Right' As Well

By JEFF GREER

"It was a stupid thing, I know. But I thought it was right, because it had been done before."

That cryptic explanation was the only light Paul Lohmann, 16-year-old Tamalpais High School sophomore, would shed on the bombing of his school and two bank branches.

The arrest of young Lohmann, said by police never to have been in serious trouble before, drew varied reaction from his classmates, including the theory that he was claiming responsibility for something he didn't do in order to gain attention.

Lohmann of 40 Miller Avenue, Sausalito, was booked into Marin County Juvenile Hall yesterday on suspicion of using explosives with intent to injure persons. He was held to appear today in juvenile court on charges of bombing a boys' restroom at the school on Wednesday, the Mill Valley branch of the Bank of America April 23 and the bank's Sausalito branch March 23.

Terzich said he had no reason to believe young Lohmann lied in claiming the bombings.

Terzich said Lohmann denied setting fires at the school Monday afternoon or Wednesday evening. The student also denied any connection with a rash of telephoned bomb threats against all three high schools in the Tamalpais district, the chief said.

One threat shortly before 11 a.m. yesterday caused the closing of Tamalpais High School for the rest of the day.

BRUCE PAUL LOHMANN
Held for bombings

At a meeting last night with school officials, Terzich advised against future closings in the face of threats, but the officials said each situation would be weighed before any decision on closing.

Another telephoned threat was received before 8 a.m. today, the chief revealed. The school was not evacuated.

School officials held a student assembly this morning to clear up a rash of rumors about the recurring violence and threats.

Terzich credited Lohmann's arrest to "just good, hard, logical police work" in which his men and FBI agents sifted rumors at Tamalpais High School. Some classmates and teachers reported Lohmann showed an unusual interest in reports of any bombing. The student, according to Terzich, was "antiestablishment" and "pesty" in expressing antiwar feelings. But he was also described by Terzich as polite, quiet, and intelligent.

Lohmann at first refused to talk after being picked up yesterday morning at school, Terzich said. The boy and his stepmother, Carolyn, permitted a search of his room in the family's comfortable Sausalito hillside home.

Terzich displayed part of the findings — an assortment of glue, tacks, cans of dog repellent, and several bundles of chalk studded with heavy thumbtacks.

Terzich said no explosives were found in the home, but an investigator indicated that fuses had been. After the search, Lohmann admitted the bombings, Terzich said.

Lohmann said he regretted the slight injury to a student near Wednesday's restroom explosion. Terzich said the youth explained he had not realized the blast would shatter so much glass in adjoining classrooms. Lohmann strongly denied any connection with Weatherman or other radical groups, Terzich said.

The chief said Lohmann was still being questioned about Wednesday night's fire in the Tam High principal's office,

Ferry Terminal Nod To Larkspur

By PAUL E. PETERZELL

A committee of Golden Gate Bridge District directors, ending months of wrangling over where to put the Central Marin ferry terminal, yesterday decided to recommend it go on the Hutchinson Quarry property in Larkspur.

The committee withheld public announcement of its decision, reached in a one-hour closed session, but newsmen quickly learned the decision.

The chairman of the committee, Marin Supervisor Michael Wornum, told newsmen, "Let's say Mr. Wornum is happy about the decision." Wornum has urged the Larkspur site over a competing one in Corte Madera.

The committee's recommendation did not necessarily kill Corte Madera's chances, however, since it still faces action by the full board of directors, probably on May 14.

The committee withheld announcement of its decision for fear of scaring off hoped for federal funds. At the urging of director Ben K. Lerer of San Francisco, the committee directed the district's Washington lobbyist to seek a federal loan or grant for the land purchase, reportedly to cost $1.5 million.

The lobbyist, Richard J. Smart, cautioned the committee that if the district took an option on the ferry terminal site, the government could be precluded from making a loan or grant on the land.

The committee made no decision on whether to seek such federal money, but referred the question to the finance-auditing committee, which will set a special meeting on it sometime next week. Only after that committee decided the question of federal funds was the transportation committee's decision to be announced, Wornum said.

The supervisor indicated that tentative agreement had been reached by the committee on where to put the district's bus maintenance facility, but declined to disclose the selection. Four sites in Corte Madera and San Rafael were under consideration.

The committee met behind closed doors at the request of the district's attorney, Thomas M. Jenkins. He said the closed session was needed so he could report on his negotiations with the property owners.

The full bridge board last month authorized Jenkins to negotiate for the best deal he could get from the two owners of the proposed ferry terminal sites.

No price was disclsed yesterday, but spokesmen for TI Properties, promoters of the quarry property, have said they originally asked $1.5 million for 25 acres. If the district bought more of almost 100 acres available, the price per acre would be reduced, according to spokesmen for the Los Angeles-based corporation.

The ferry system is to begin

Novato AF Sergeant Murdered

BULLETIN

An Air Force Recruiting Sergeant from Novato was stabbed to death today by a young man enraged at the military for "sending people to Vietnam."

Killed in the Berkeley recruiting office was Staff Sgt. Rogers D. Mobley, 32, of 1088 San Jose Boulevard.

The attacker, Christopher Cowsar, 21, of Berkeley, was overpowered by two witnesses who rushed to the office when they heard a scuffle.

Cowser, witnesses said, was screaming, "He is sending people to Vietnam. He's got to die!"

Mobley was dead on arrival Herrick Hospital, Berkeley.

PICKETS AT FBI: JURY REINDICTS

'Try Criminal' Signs Carried

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Antiwar protesters picketed the Justice Department and the FBI today carrying placards proclaiming "We Are All POWs" and "Try Criminals Not War Resisters."

About 100 demonstrators were on hand as employes of the government's legal and investigative arms came to work.

There had been some threats of "action" in advance of the demonstration, but the first phase at least was peaceful, with some singing and chanting and distributing leaflets.

About 40 persons sat down in the doorway of the FBI entrance at 9th and Pennsylvania Avenue about 9 a.m., but building guards managed to keep open a narrow passageway so that workers could get through.

Protesters' request for "free access" to the always heavily guarded building was denied and they said they rejected an offer for "group conferences" with selected officials.

At midmorning, building guards closed the massive ornamental bronze doors of the FBI entrance. A few minutes later, two women were arrested on charges of crossing a police line. Both walked quietly to a police van.

On Capitol Hill, Deputy Attorney General Richard Kleindienst briefed a group of Republican senators on plans to cope with protesters' announced plans to disrupt rush hour traffic by blocking key bridges and roads leading to downtown

Kissinger Plot Involves Eight

WASHINGTON (UPI) —A federal grand jury today reindicted eight persons on charges of plotting "antiwar vandalism" intended to culminate in kidnapping of Henry A. Kissinger, President Nixon's national security adviser.

The office of Attorney General John N. Mitchell announced a 10-count indictment by a U.S. District Court grand jury in Harrisburg, Pa., superceding a seven-count indictment returned there Jan. 12.

The new indictment names two additional defendents and drops three previously named as co-conspirators in the controversial case. Three additional counts plus 13 more overt acts were listed.

Named as a defendant in the new indictment as well as the previous one was a former Catholic priest, Rev. Philip Berrigan, 47, now already serving a sentence at a federal prison at Danbury, Conn., for his part in destruction of Selective Service records in Catonsville, Md., in 1968.

It is unusual for a grand jury to issue an indictment superceding a previous one, but today's action was not unexpected because the grand jury continued to take testimony and subpoena witnesses weeks after the original indictment.

The case created a controversy because FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover had disclosed some of the details last Nov. 27 to a Senate subcommittee.

Besides Berrigan, those

Air Pollutant Limits Set; May Force Vast Changes

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The government announced today final air quality standards that are likely to force sharp limits on driving in cities and put tight restrictions on emissions by every industrial facility in the nation.

Administrator William E. Ruckelshaus of the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA), which issued the standards, said they must be implemented by July 1, 1975, and would change some aspects of Americans' daily lives.

"We've got to make some changes in transportation systems, in closing hours, and when we go to work," Ruckelshaus told a news conference.

He said big cities would have to promote "rapid transit, car pooling and staggered work hours" in order to reduce automobile emissions enough to comply with the standards.

"It may even require the

Rejected Applicant Will Seek Bolinas PUD Recall

By GLORIA EAGAN

A rejected applicant for a seat on the Bolinas Community Public Utility District board vowed last night to lead a recall campaign against members of the five-man board.

After a unanimous vote by directors to appoint retired auditor Fred W. Wade to the seat, William E. Niman, 26, a teacher in the Bolinas-Stinson Beach School District charged members are unresponsive to the public and insensitive to environmental needs.

A petition signed by more than 200 residents backing Niman was presented to directors before they met in closed session to chose between the two applicants for the seat vacated by Albert William Meyer Jr. The term expires in November 1973.

About a dozen Niman supporters packed the small meeting room at the Bolinas Improvement Club and hurled insults at directors, coloring their commentary with four-letter words.

In nominating Wade after the 20-minute closed deliberation, Director Edwin A. Cadagon said the board represents the entire community.

"That's a lie," said a young man wearing a headband and poncho who then walked out the door, but returned prior to adjournment of the eight-minute open session.

"xxxx," he said as he made his exit.

Outside other supporters, unable to squeeze into the tiny room, clapped their hands.

"We came here with petitions representing half the registered voters in Bolinas. How can you say your choice represents the feelings of the community," asked Greg C. Hewlett, 31, a former teacher at Bolinas School.

Red-faced, but holding his temper board chairman Jose A. Silva shot back, "We don't pull sides."

Niman told directors they were passing up a chance to seek a liason between the hip and the straight members of the community. He warned that further polarization will result.

Although Niman said during the meeting he expected "a fight to recall all four of you" he later said he would not know until Monday how many directors he will attempt to have

Nixon Will Not Be Intimidated By Protesters On Indo Policy

WASHINGTON (UPI) —President Nixon said Thursday night he would not be "intimidated" by antiwar demonstrators in Washington but would stick to his policy of attempting to win a lasting peace in Indochina.

In a televised news conference, the President said a more rapid withdrawal from Vietnam advocated by his critics would lead to a "very dangerous situation in the Pacific and would increase the dangers of war in the future." He said demonstrators who break the law will be prosecuted.

Nixon also bid to further improve American relations with communist China, saying "I hope and I expect to visit mainland China ... at some time in my life, in some capacity."

He said he would in a matter of weeks announce a list of nonstrategic goods the United States would be willing to trade with China, but he cautioned it was "premature" to speculate about whether the United States would support Peking's entry into the United Nations. He said he had not made a decision on this issue.

"I would just summarize it this way," Nixon said of the improvement of contact between the United States and China illustrated by the recent visit of a U.S. table tennis team to the mainland. "What we've done is broken the ice. Now we have to test the water to see how deep it is."

When he said he would like to travel to China, Nixon said, he was "referring only to a hope, an expectation."

Referring to antiwar demonstrations in Washington for almost two weeks, Nixon said he wanted to correct an impression from television accounts that "Washington is somewhat in a state of seige."

"The Congress is not intimidated," Nixon said. "The

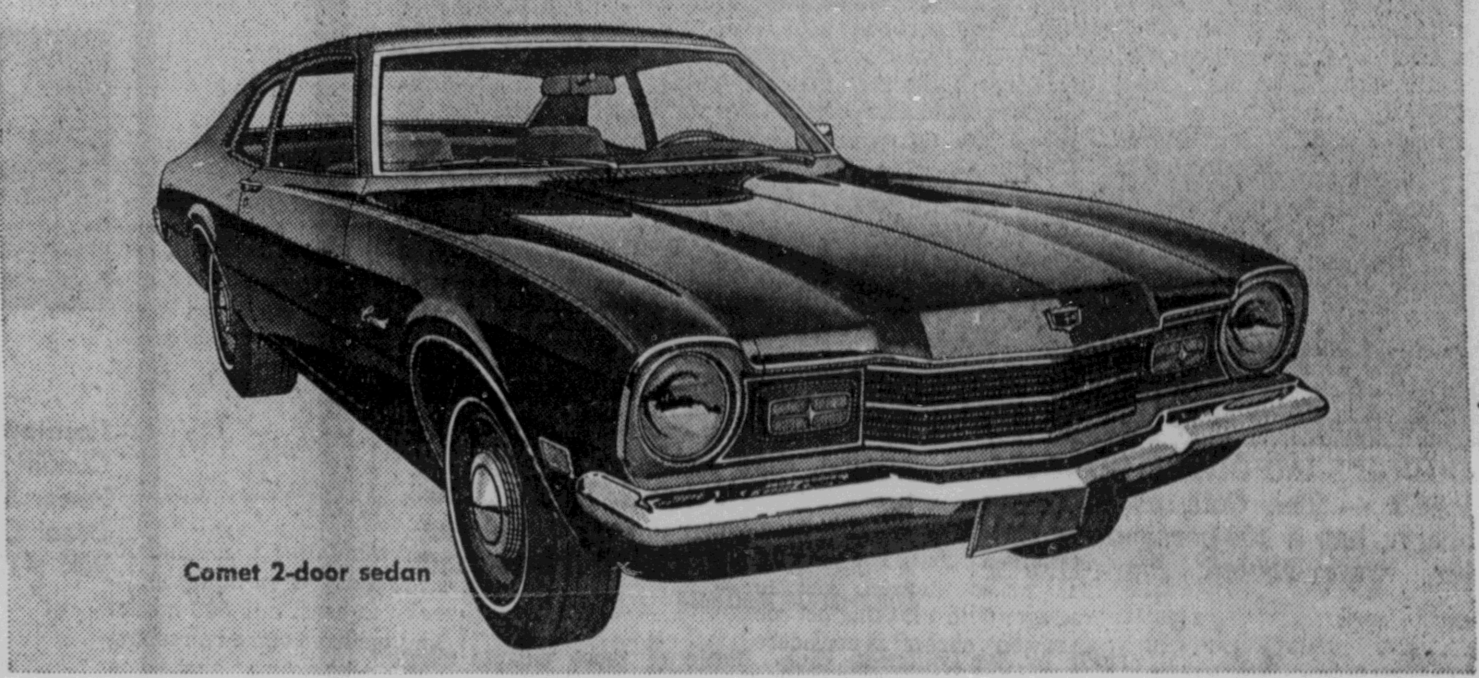
Mercury Comet puts in 3 important things the other small cars leave out.



Comet 2-door sedan

1. A gutsy, "expensive" look plus luxuries you don't pay extra for.

We thought you'd like styling to wink at, not wince at. Nice lines, smooth, solid looking, sculptured.

Unlike "stripped" small cars, Comet offers many luxuries. At no extra charge:

100% nylon carpeting both front and rear. Wheel lip moldings. Deluxe steering wheel.

Plus a cigarette lighter. Rear armrests and ashtray. Foam-padded front seat cushion. Lighted front ashtray. Dual body paint stripes.

2. Real room for 4 adults—not just 3½.

Front hip room and shoulder room are much greater than in most other small cars.

In fact, Comet's front head room and leg room are within a fraction of an inch of big cars like Chrysler Imperial, Dodge Charger and Chrysler Newport.

3. Zippy "6" or V-8 performance—100 to 210 horsepower.

Comet's standard engine has over 50% greater power than many small imports.

If that's not enough, choose from 2 optional "sixes." 115 and 145 hp. Or a 210 hp. V-8. And some V-8 it is. Gets you up to turnpike speeds quickly. Let's you haul a fair-sized trailer.

And Comet gives you everything you buy a small car for: Easy handling. Gas economy. Low prices.

Turning diameter is only 36.9 feet, making Comet just as deft in a parking lot as it is on the highway.

Gas mileage rivals imports—about 22 mpg based on simulated city/suburban driving tests with standard engine.

And Comet is such a simple, easy-to-fix, money-saving machine, we even offer a Do-It-Yourself Manual.

And look at these low prices. Remember these are manufacturer's suggested retail prices. Why not see what your Mercury dealer suggests.

WIRE NEWS BRIEFS From Everywhere

105 Rain Deaths

SALVADOR, BRAZIL (UPI)—Salvador, a city of 600,000 trapped between the mountains and the sea, dug up its 104th victim from the rubble left by three days of rain, flood and landslides.

Mayor Cleristan Andrade said the number of dead may reach 150 today if the Atlantic tides return victims swept out to sea by the rain-swollen Paraguacu River and salvage workers uncover more bodies.

Andrade estimated the number of people left homeless at 7,000.

Fall Decision On Pipeline

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Interior Secretary Rogers C.B. Morton says his decision on whether to approve construction of the controversial Alaska oil pipeline will not be made until mid-September.

He also reported, in an appearance Thursday before the Senate Interior subcommittee, that he has urged oil industry officials to take a look at whether the pipeline could be built across Canada instead.

Whatever his decision, Morton added, the issue is far from settled since the matter almost certainly will wind up in the courts once he acts on the requested construction permit.

Remain Hopeful

VIENNA (UPI) — American and Soviet negotiators at the Strategic Arms Limitation Talks (SALT) still have hope of reaching an accord on curbing nuclear arsenals, despite some press reports to the contrary, conference sources said today.

The two delegations gathered today at the Soviet embassy for their 67th round of talks, and the 11th session since the bargaining was moved to this city March 15.

The sources discounted press reports from Washington that the negotiations were bogged down because neither side was willing to soften its position. They said both countries "are very serious about achieving a nuclear limitation treaty."

As evidence, the sources cited the two and one-half-hour meeting Wednesday at the U. S. embassy, the second-longest session since the talks began in Helsinki in November of 1969, and that a second full meeting was being held this week.

Face Starvation

NEW DELHI (UPI)—About four million persons in the area of East Pakistan ravaged by a cyclone and tidal wave last November face starvation because the civil war has halted emergency food distribution, officials from the area said today.

In Paris, where representatives of 11 nations involved in the relief operations were meeting, it was estimated that as many as 30 million to 60 million of East Pakistan's 74 million inhabitants could starve.

In Washington, officials also said the food distribution had been disrupted and urged the government of President Agha Mohammed Yahya Khan to resume shipments immediately.

Officials from the 10,000-square-mile disaster area said the relief work has stopped completely since the Bengalis declared their independence.

Tito Expected To Visit United States

BELGRADE (UPI) — President Tito will visit the United States later this year, a high U.S. administration official said today.

"We in our country are looking forward to President Tito's coming to America later this year," Robert Finch, President Nixon's special adviser, said in a statement to newsmen here.

Signal To Rogers: No Israeli Shift

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

A high government official said today Israel will not soften its conditions for peace in the Middle East despite U.S. urging that it be more flexible in its demands.

Minister without portfolio Israel Galili, a close aide of Prime Minister Golda Meir, said in an interview with the newspaper Yedioth Aharonoth the Israeli position will be presented to U.S. Secretary of State William P. Rogers during his Middle East tour.

"The visit will give us an opportunity to explain to the American secretary of state the problems of the existence of our state," Galili said. "I believe that Mr. Rogers will find in Israel a united nation, strong in the justice of its demands.

"And if there still are hopes in the (U.S.) State Department that it is possible to erode the Israeli position, or to soften it, by compensation or deception it will be made clear to him there is no basis for this hope."

Galili added that "I fear this awareness is necessary to them, the managers of American policy, and it is essential they come to the conclusion that Israel indeed is ready for compromises but these have a limit."

Galili's mention of compensation apparently alluded to military aid from the United States.

The interview coincided with reports that Mrs. Meir had rejected changes Washington wanted made in Israel's plan for reopening the Suez Canal under a partial peace agreement with Egypt.

Rogers, in Ankara, Turkey, on his European-Middle East tour, was telling members of the Central Treaty Organization (CENTO) the United States is determined to keep momentum going in the search for a permanent Middle East peace.

The Department of Agriculture's meat and poultry inspection service has 7,750 employees.

Youth, 18, Charged In Girls' Slayings

SAN JOSE (UPI)—A clean-cut, hard-working college freshman who underwent psychiatric evaluation three years ago is charged with the knife murders of three teen-age girls.

Karl Werner, 18, described as "an all-American type" and "the typical boy next door," was booked Thursday for the murders of Deborah Furlong, 14, and Kathy Snoozy, 15, on Aug. 3, 1969, and the murder of Kathy Bilek, 18, last Easter Sunday.

All three victims were slashed to death, Deborah with 200 knife wounds, the Snoozy girl with 100 and Miss Bilek with 50.

Police in Marlboro, Mass., where Werner lived before moving here two years ago, said the youth was arrested there at the age of 15 on a charge of assaulting a woman with a knife. She was not seriously injured and juvenile authorities dropped the charge against Werner and committed him to Westboro State Hospital for 35 days' observation.

Santa Clara County Undersheriff Tom Rosa would not elaborate on the evidence against Werner, a lanky 6-foot-2 freshman at San Jose City College who worked six nights a week at a hamburger stand.

Rosa did say, however, that the youth once attended high school with the two 1969 victims and lived in the same neighborhood where their bodies were found on a sunny hillside a few blocks from their homes. He said Werner was also known to frequent the wooded county park where Miss Bilek's body was discovered by her father April 12.

He said Werner became a suspect a few days after the killing of Miss Bilek, when an unidentified teen-age girl reported that she was frightened in the same park just two days before the murder by a young man matching Werner's description who became angry when she refused to go for a hike with him. The undersheriff described the bespectacled suspect as "an all-American type."

KARL WERNER
'All-American type'

Werner was arrested Thursday at his apartment here, where he has lived since his parents moved back to Massachusetts, and escorted by deputies to the scenes of the murders before being jailed.

"I wouldn't suspect him of anything," said Jim Van Cleve, manager of the hamburger stand where Werner worked seven hours a night, six nights a week. "He was a hard-working man, quiet."

Eve Schulman, 19, a classmate who rode to the campus with Werner each day, called him "the typical boy next door."

She said Werner, a high-ranking student in mathematics and physics who has been constructing a computer as a class project, is "really smart, really neat."

Rogers Asks 'Impetus' For Mideast

ANKARA (UPI)—Secretary of State William P. Rogers said today a strong impetus was needed for a Middle East peace settlement but that an agreement to reopen the Suez Canal could help reduce the danger of renewed fighting while peace efforts continue.

Rogers told the opening session of the Central Treaty Organization (CENTO) that the United States is "prepared to play a role if Egypt and Israel want us to help" bring peace to the Middle East.

Rogers did not say exactly what role the United States might play but diplomatic sources say he probably meant that of an observer capacity toward achieving reopening of the canal, closed since the 1967 war.

"There is a need for a strong impetus toward a resolution," he said.

"An interim agreement to open the Suez, which both the United Arab Republic and Israel are in principle willing to consider, could reduce danger of renewed hostilities," he said.

He emphasized again that the United States is supporting the efforts to U.N. mediator Gunnar V. Jarring for a lasting settlement.

The secretary said he did not expect his forthcoming trip to Egypt and Israel to "produce any dramatic results."

"My efforts will be devoted to encouraging movement on the basis of the possible factors at work in the Middle East today—the factors of organization already made, of logic and enduring self-interest," Rogers said.

U.S. Planes Attack Near Laos Border

SAIGON (UPI)—Waves of B52 bombers struck near the borders of Laos today to prevent the North Vietnamese from attacking the rear of the slow-moving South Vietnamese push into the A Shau Valley. Other B52s hit the Central Highlands and ranged into Cambodia and over the Ho Chi Minh Trail.

The U.S. command said the B52s had dropped more than 3,400 tons of bombs in the A Shau area since April 14 both in direct support of the A Shau operation known as Lam Son 720 and against Communist positions near the Laos border behind the operation.

The A Shau Valley is a 35-mile-long corridor south of the parallel to the Demilitarized Zone and runs from the Hue area to the border of Laos. It has long been a Communist sanctuary despite costly Allied drives into the area in past years. In the new clearing operation which began two weeks ago the approach has been cautious and there has been no heavy ground contact.

The South Vietnamese so far have moved along the northern fringes of the valley which is a dense jungle nestled between 10,000-foot mountain peaks. Maj. Gen. Pham Van Phu, commander of the ARVN 1st Infantry Division conducting the sweep, said today at his Lang Vang headquarters his troops may cross into Laos again "if I think it advisable."

Canadians Will Get Back Civil Liberties

OTTAWA (UPI)—Canadians will have all their civil liberties again at midnight tonight.

The Canadian government announced Thursday it was letting the anti-terrorist control enacted Oct. 16 during Quebec's "kidnap crisis" expire on schedule at midnight. The public order act gave police unprecedented peacetime powers of search, arrest and detention.

Justice Minister John Turner told the House of Commons Thursday that "The government has decided not to seek the extension of the public order act." However, Turner said he would ask a joint committee of the Commons and the Senate to study "the kind of legislation required to seal with emergencies" such as occurred last October.

Turner told newsmen that governments needed special tools to deal with growing political violence in North America. "We believe that there are threats across this country of violence, that the new phenomenum of a confrontation society is part of North America," he said.

The government proclaimed last October there was an "apprehended insurrection" in Quebec as a result of the kidnapping activities of the radical separatist Quebec Liberation Front (FLQ).

Hawaii has imported about everything, including such familiar symbols as the ukelele, says National Geographic.

FIFTY YEARS MAKE A DIFFERENCE

In 1921 Dodge offered a commercial car with a choice of three wooden bodies — express, stake and business car. Today the "commercial car" is a truck. The "express" (top) is a pickup (bottom). The stake body is reserved for larger units and the "business car" has become a van.

DODGE'S IMPORTED SUBCOMPACT — The Colt, of Japanese origin, has a 100-horsepower motor, water-cooled four-cylinder engine, disc brakes and adjustable steering column. Besides this four-door sedan it is available as a coupe, two-door hardtop and four-door sedan.

Defects Vs. Fatalities

If you have been ignoring an annoying "cluck-cluck-cluck" from the front of your car or delaying replacement of a bald tire, you should know about a study by the California Highway Patrol which reveals the extent of relationship between mechanical defects and highway fatalities.

In a detailed study of 409 fatal single vehicle accidents, 29 per cent of the vehicles involved had one or more mechanical defects. Two out of three of these defects either caused the accident or contrubuted to it.

In 6.4 per cent of the accidents investigated, a mechanical deficiency was directly responsible.

The two year study discloses 172 faulty mechanical systems in 119 vehicles.

That's because of a remarkable suspension system that features MacPherson struts up front, semi-trailing arms in back, with BMW's unique multi-jointed rear axle.

Lands Commission Denies Oil Surveys

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —The state Lands Commission, heeding the appeals of conservationists and legislators, yesterday refused oil companies permission to conduct future geophysical explorations along the scenic California coastline.

The extension of state geophysical survey permits was sought by nine major oil companies and their approval was recommended by the commission's staff.

But on a split 2-1 vote, the commission denied a six-month extension of the companies' existing geophysical survey permits.

Lt. Gov. Ed Reinecke and state Finance Director Verne Orr voted for the denial. State Controller Houston I. Flournoy, the chairman, voted against it.

Orr expressed concern about California denying itself sources of energy, but nevertheless made the motion to reject the permits.

"I feel that the sentiment of the people of California is pretty firmly against further drilling," said Orr, who serves at Gov. Ronald Reagan's pleasure.

Opponents of the permits had argued that although geophysical exploration for oil is relatively safe it inevitably would lead to more actual oil and gas drilling offshore.

Extension of the permits until next January was sought by Phillips, Humble Oil, Texaco, Union, Continental, Exploration Services, Inc., Marathon, Atlantic Richfield and Shell oil companies.

Opponents testifying against the exploration permits included Sens. George Moscone, D-San Francisco; Peter Behr, R-Tiburon, and Arlen Gregorio, D-San Mateo, and Assemblyman Bob Wood, R-Greenfield.

The only industry proponent was a representative of Humble who said to deny the permits would be an "unreasonable" act.

The nine permits represent all those issued by the state.

Flournoy said he did not agree with the argument that issuance of the survey permits automatically would lead to new offshore drilling.

Although he voted for the denial, Reinecke—a civil engineer—expressed concern that "we'd be pretty well shutting down the operations of the oil industry."

The commission's executive officers, F. J. Hortig, replied that a denial would "severely hamper" the industry. He said geophysical surveys are a "tremendously valuable" tool in finding oil deposits. Hortig called California an "oil and gas deficient state" and warned that if the current offshore development program is terminated far greater quantities of oil and gas will have to be imported.

Hortig told the commission this would subject California "to greater hazards of oil-spill destruction from accidents involving the super oil tankers."

Muffle Trucks? There's A Way

WASHINGTON (UPI) —No community should have to put up with the noise pollution it gets from trucks, according to Paul S. Veneklasen.

Veneklasen is a Santa Monica, Calif., scientist, who says trucks are the worst offenders among all the noise makers that plague us—worse than jet aircraft because they inflict distress on a broader scale and assail the eardrums of many more people.

But for 15 years, Veneklasen said at a meeting here of the Acoustical Society of America, mufflers have existed which could cut truck noise 75 per cent. They aren't being used.

The theme of the acoustical society's meeting was "noise pollution and noise control." Several speakers described in technical detail how it is possible to erect relatively quiet and "serene" dwellings or high-rise hotels or office buildings in noisy areas, even on top of railroad freight yards.

How do you build grand centers for comfortable living or working in the noisiest parts of town? You do it, according to W.E. Blazier Jr., a San Francisco acoustical engineer, by erecting buildings that "float on rubber." You insert thousands of two-inch rubber pads between the base of columns and the foundations to insulate against noise.

Kenward S. Oliphant, a San Francisco acoustician, described the myriad ways used to make inhabitable an office building erected 150 feet from the northern edge of the main runway of San Francisco International Airport. The result was that 92 per cent of the jet uproar just outside never penetrated to the inside.

The same and other techniques can be used to protect community dwellers from the shattering effect of truck noise. The need to do this gravels Veneklasen.

Instead of going to the expense of protecting communities from truck noise, why not take the cheaper way of making truckers use the mufflers long since available to them?

According to Veneklasen, truckers have resisted mufflers because they think wrongly that mufflers cut engine efficiency and increase fuel costs. Truck buyers have been known to remove mufflers or destroy them.

Veneklasen counsels patience about aircraft jet noise, a much harder problem to solve than truck noise. He predicted it will be solved.

But, he said, it might take 10 more years.

HIDES FACE — Bruce Paul Lohmann, 16-year-old Tamalpais High School student, hides his head with his jacket as Mill Valley Police Chief Dan Terzich (right) escorts him to Marin County Juvenile Hall. Lohmann was arrested yesterday after police said he admitted to bombing his school and two bank buildings.

and the Monday afternoon blaze in which duplicator fluid was spilled on the floor of the English department office and ignited. The fire, put out by students and school staff, is still under investigation by Mill Valley firemen. No report has been written.

Although only a sophomore, Lohmann was enrolled in a chemistry class usually limited to upperclassmen. Classmates recalled that he was sometimes "loud" in class, questioned the instructor about explosives and was believed to have exploded firecrackers and cherry bombs on campus.

"But I don't believe he did the bombings," two students agreed. "He was just being loud."

Several students said Lohmann "always was excited and talked a lot the next day" about any bombing.

Robert Reiter, one of the chemistry students, said classmates used to tease Lohmann about being responsible for the bombings, which he would deny.

As for the bombings for which Lohmann was arrested, "I think he admitted them just to get attention," Reiter said.

Lohmann's father, Paul, is a free-lance motion picture photographer. Although in some conversation he described his son as a quiet "loner" opposed to the war, the father today declined to talk to the press on advice from his attorney.

Neighbors described the student as likable, saying he had been a dependable baby-sitter for them.

Terzich called the tales unfounded. He said young Lohmann's only previous brush with the law had been in firing a flare gun near his home. But Sausalito police Chief James D. Wright said his files showed no such incident, only a traffic violation for the student.

At an assembly in the Tamalpais High School amphitheater today, Principal Raymond J. Bell thanked students for coming forward with information that led to Lohmann's arrest.

Bell reassured seniors that time lost through recent school evacuations would not affect their school credits or graduation.

operations in 1973.

In other business, the committee postponed action on a proposed six-month test of a 40-mile-an-hour "surface effect craft" between Sausalito and San Francisco. It was manufactured in England, thus would require a waiver from the Department of Defense to operate in American waters.

Gen. Mgr. Dale W. Luehring was authorized to seek the waiver. He noted that the department official who handles the waivers was an old friend of his from the Air Force.

Director Stephan C. Leonoudakis of San Francisco, who proposed the test last month, said the 60-passenger vessel could be available by July 1. He previously estimated that it would cost the district $6,500 a month to operate it during the test, and that 50-cent fares would more than offset the cost.

The district's transit manager, Donald White, told the committee the cost would be much higher — $16,888 a month. Even if 75 per cent of the seats were filled on every trip, he said, a 50-cent fare would raise only $13,500 a month, well below the cost.

If the fare were $1, White said, the monthly revenue would be $18,000 if half the seats were filled.

A spokesman for the manufacturer, noting fears of Sausalito officials that the vessel would be as noisy as similar ones operated on the bay by the Coast Guard, said it was much quieter because its propellers were underwater, whereas the Coast Guard vessels use noisy aircraft-type propellers.

Rudolph V. Alosio, vice president of Transportation Technology Inc., manufacturer of the new vessel, told the Independent-Journal he hoped the test would lead to district purchase of large-scale vessels his firm is building to carry more than 300 passengers.

In other business, the rules and policy committee narrowed to about 12 the number of candidates for the new position of ferry transit manager. More than 40 applied for the position, to pay $26,500 a year, including several military officers.

The committee soon will interview finalists for the new job.

Weather In April A Bit Colder

Marinites the past few days have been complaining about the cold, but this month's temperatures in Marin are not as unusually low as they seem when compared with past April readings, the U.S. Weather Bureau said yesterday.

Average high temperature for the first 28 days of the month stands at 67 degrees with an average low of 46.7, the bureau said.

A year ago the mercury averaged 68.2 degrees for a high and 44.2 for a low.

In 1968, Marin had one of its highest averages with a high of 74.5 degrees and a low of 46.7.

However, in 1967, Marin recorded its lowest April averages in history with a high of 59.5 degrees and a low of 42.2.

"It is a little cooler than usual," the bureau said, "but we're near last year's average."

The highest temperature recorded this month was on April 4 when the thermometer peaked at 81 degrees.

In really chilly 1967, the highest temperature recorded was 68 degrees.

Auto Is Looted

Personal possessions valued at $350 were stolen from an auto owned by Richard L. Kozlenko of 1739 Bridgeway, Sausalito, while the car was parked at Samuel P. Taylor State Park on Sir Francis Drake Boulevard last Saturday, Marin County Sheriff's office reported yesterday.

Washington Monday and Tuesday.

After the closed session, Kleindienst told a reporter that the threat of demonstrators to shut down the government by this tactic was "just a lot of hot air."

He said he advised the senators that "at worst this is going to be nothing more than an irritant."

Washington Police Chief Jerry Wilson also briefed the Senate group and commented: "Our advice to people is not to be intimidated by a bunch of radical kids."

President Nixon served notice at a news conference Thursday night that lawbreakers among the demonstrators "will be prosecuted to the full extent of the law."

Eyeing television cameras, Nixon addressed himself beyond the newsmen at the White House to the public, saying "some of the people on television may have gotten the impression ... that Washington is somewhat in a state of siege." He then declared:

"Well, just let me make one thing very clear: the Congress is not intimidated; the President is not intimidated; this government is going to go forward.

"It doesn't mean that we are not going to listen to those who come peacefully, but those who come and break the law will be prosecuted to the full extent of the law."

He stressed confidence that his policies—not the war protesters'—was the proper way to disengage the United States from Indochina, from the standpoint of gaining freedom of American prisoners of war and leaving South Vietnam capable of defending itself.

He said he felt "the decisions I make now ... are in their (protesters') best interest and in the best interest of their children."

Those decisions, he said later, included continued refusal to set publicly a date for total withdrawal of U.S. forces as demonstrators have demanded.

Nearly 225 arrests took place each of the past two days during demonstrations at the draft headquarters and the Department of Health, Education and Welfare. All but a handful were reported this morning to have been released from jail after posting collateral, usually $10.

BOLINAS

The terms of directors Cadagon and Silva expire in November.

"We now have a board composed of three appointees who are going to spend $7 million," Hewlett said, referring to cost of a planned Bolinas-Stinson sewage treatment operation due for completion in September, 1972. Estimates of the cost vary. Other appointees serving the district are Cadagon and Clem C. Slater.

Niman today said he has begun gathering names of recall supporters. The signed petitions first go to district directors then to the Marin County Board of Supervisors, the teacher explained, ten per cent of the 569 registered voters — 57 names — are needed to initiate a recall election.

The challengers, some members of the Bolinas Future Study Center, a group brought together by the January oil slick crisis, dispute an ocean outfall method for dumping sewage. Niman contends that instead of carrying effluent to the ocean via a 2,800-foot long stainless steel pipe, it should be held on the land, treated and recycled.

Director Sherman R. Smith said the pipe would be located two miles north of Agate Beach. A public hearing for opinions on the sewage system goes before supervisors in June.

Director Smith said Wade, a longtime employee of General Cables Corp. of San Francisco who managed a subsidiary branch of the firm, was selected because of his work experience. Wade did not attend the meeting.

Six Drivers Sentenced On Drinking

Six persons have been sentenced by Judge Peter Allen Smith of Marin Municipal Court for drunken driving.

Sentenced Monday were:

Donald Edwin Maki, 20, of Pacifica, arrested April 22 on Highway 101, who was placed on probation for one year and fined $175.

Walter M. Kirkness, 21, of no known address, arrested April 20 on Highway 101, who was placed on probation for one year and fined $150.

Sentenced Tuesday were:

James Gilbert Smith, 46, of Oakland, arrested Feb. 14 in San Rafael, who was placed on probation for one year and fined $250.

Lloyd Raymond Richards, 72, of 50 Idlewood Road, Kentfield, arrested Nov. 19 on Highway 101, who was placed on probation for one year and fined $250.

Ralph Leo Bartlett, 42, of 4 Hammondale Court, San Rafael, arrested May 18 in San Anselmo, who was placed on probation for one year and fined $200.

Theodore Moreno, 37, of San Pablo, arrested April 24 in San Rafael, who was placed on probation for one year and fined $200.

NIXON

President is not intimidated. This government is going to go forward."

But he said he did "not want to leave the impression that those who came to demonstrate were not listened to."

Nixon repeated that he would not set a definite date for the withdrawal of all Ameican forces from South Vietnam. He said it would have the effect of saying to the North Vietnamese, " we quit, regardless of what you do."

The setting of a definite date, Nixon said, would destroy any incentive the other side might have to negotiate and would destroy the American bargaining position on prisoners of war.

"Therefore, the setting of a date is not something that's in our interest; it's only in the enemy's interest," Nixon said.

To get its POWS back, Nixon said, the United States will keep a residual force in Vietnam "no matter how long it takes." He repeated that the other condition for a total U.S. withdrawal is the ability of the South Vietnamese regime to defend itself. Nixon also:

—Said he intervened in the case of Lt. William L. Calley because there was "great concern" across the country. He said his action announcing he would have the final review of the officer's conviction of murdering civilians at My Lai had "cooled down" the public outcry.

—Promised his administration would comply with the Supreme Court decision that bussing and other means would be used to eliminate segregation in southern schools.

—Asked if he would think about naming a court of inquiry to see who got the United States into the Indochina war, said he was "not going to cast the blame for the war in Vietnam on either of my predecessors."

OBITUARIES

ELIZABETH HUENERBEIN

Elizabeth J. Huenerbein, 73, of Petaluma, was pronounced dead at a local hospital yesterday after collapsing at her home at 1286 Sunny Slope Road.

The Sonoma County Coroner's Office was conducting a routine investigation into the cause of death.

Born in Germany, Mrs. Huenerbein, who was divorced, came to the U.S. 15 years ago, settling in San Francisco. She had lived in Petaluma more than five years.

Survivors are two daughters, Kathy Allen of Petaluma and Johanna Novakowitsch of Germany, and two grandchildren.

Funeral will be Monday at 11 a.m. at the Parent Mortuary, Petaluma. Burial will be in Cypress Memorial Park.

AIR

closing of some sections of these cities to auto traffic at certain hours," Ruckelshaus said.

The standards establish limits for six major air pollutants—sulphur oxides, particulate matter, carbon monoxide, photochemical oxidants, nitrogen oxides and hydrocarbons.

Ruckelshaus said the standards for sulphur oxides and particulates would force massive changes in fuels used by electric generating plants and other industries, with a possibility the switch might force "some increase in electric bills."

High sulphur coal would be largely ruled out in some cities, he said.

For example, he said, "We estimate that to bring air pollution levels down to the standard for particulates in New York will require a 300 per cent increase in natural gas usage in the city."

Such a change, he conceded, would severely tax already limited natural gas supplies and would require significant federal action on fuel policy.

The 1970 Clean Air Act required the EPA to work out antipollution standards and the timetable announced by Ruckelshaus.

Each state must submit to EPA by next Jan. 1 detailed plans for implementing the standards, including emission limits for every "stationary source" of pollution-meaning industrial facilities.

EPA must approve or reject those plans by next May 1. By July 1, 1972, all implementation plans must be complete, and EPA will set them for any recalcitrant states.

The rules would put industries and city traffic authorities on a schedule ending with complete compliance by July 1, 1975.

States, cities and industries could appeal in court, Ruckelshaus said, but only on grounds that the standards failed to meet the public health strictures laid down in the Clean Air Act.

HANNA NELSON

Funeral for Hanna O. Nelson of Larkspur will be at 2 p.m. Monday at Keaton's Mortuary in San Rafael. Mrs. Nelson, 76, died Wednesday after an extended illness at a local convalescent hospital.

A native of Sweden, Mrs. Nelson came to the United States in 1914 and settled in Chicago where she met her husband Joseph, a retired tailor who survives her. They moved to Larkspur in 1935 and lived at 25 Heather Way. She was employed for many years by Niven Company, a Larkspur nursery. A son, Fremont, died in an auto accident.

Burial will be at Mount Tamalpais Cemetery.

LUTHER D'ALOISIO

Funeral for Luther D. D'Aloisio of Muir Beach, was held today in San Francisco.

D'Aloisio, 38, was killed Tuesday in a motorcycle accident in San Francisco.

Marin May Vote On South Span

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Residents of six San Francisco Bay counties, including Marin, would have a chance to vote on the proposed Southern Crossing bridge under terms of a bill backed by Gov. Ronald Reagan and approved by the Assembly Transportation Committee.

The committee Thursday approved the bill by Assemblyman Robert W. Crown, D-Alameda, and sent it to the floor on a split voice vote.

It was opposed by Assemblyman John F. Foran, D-San Francisco, and Peter F. Schabarum, R-Covina.

The measure places the question of whether to construct the bridge on the June 1972 ballot.

Voters in San Francisco, Alameda, Contra Costa, Marin, San Mateo and Santa Clara Counties would get to vote on the plan.

The ballot question would read, "Shall the California Toll Bridge Authority be permitted to construct the Southern Crossing Bridge without further specific approval by the California legislature?"

He said Marin County was included because commuters could be affected by possible toll increases on the Golden Gate, San Rafael and Bay Bridges.

Santa Clara was added because the BART system eventually may extend into the county.

Big Money Sewage Plan To Be Given

I-J Special Report

HAYWARD — A plan requiring $847 million in new sewerage facilities in the Bay Area in the next five years will be presented to the Regional Water Quality Control District Board members by their staff in a special briefing on Tuesday.

The session will be at 1:30 p.m. in the Alameda County Public Works Auditorium, 399 Elmhurst Street, Hayward.

The plan, which fixes deadlines for each project to begin, would call for almost $87 million in new facilities in Marin and Southern Sonoma. It provides for strict enforcement of the deadlines.

It also warns that all wastewater discharges into the bay may be prohibited after 1984.

The plan, required by the federal and state governments, must be adopted by the end of next month under a federal deadline. An all-day public hearing on it will be held May 11 in Kaiser Auditorium, Oakland.

Decision Near For Lockheed

HOUSTON (UPI)—Treasury Secretary John B. Connally will decide within 10 days whether to ask President Nixon to save Lockheed Aircraft Co., the nation's biggest defense contractor, with a $250 million loan.

Such a loan is essential to keep Lockheed from going bankrupt, Connally has said. He said the firm is in serious trouble because of high cost overruns on the C5A cargo-transport aircraft it is building for the Air Force.

Connally avoided questions about his political future and reports he would be Nixon's running mate in 1972.

SACRAMENTO ROUNDUP

Maritime Academy Education Viewed

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —A state education official Thursday called the program at the California Maritime Academy at Vallejo "considerably less than desirable" and suggested the school be turned into an upper-division institution.

Russell Reese, chief higher education specialist for the Coordinating Council on Higher Education, delivered the testimony before the education subcommittee of the Assembly Ways & Means Committee.

Reese called the chemistry and physics programs at CMA "deplorable."

Under questioning by Assemblyman John L. E. Collier, R-Los Angeles, however, he conceded that CMA had tried to get additional state funding but without success.

MARRIAGE

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —The Assembly Thursday approved a bill permitting counties to solemnize common-law marriages without publicity.

The measure by Assemblywoman Yvonne W. Brathwaite, D-Los Angeles, was sent to the Senate on a 41-14 vote.

A couple would be able to receive a marriage certificate from the county "without everybody in town knowing it," Mrs. Brathwaite said.

She said the information would not be made public as regular marriage licenses are.

ECOLOGY CENTER

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —A winter deer range in Tehama County has been selected by the Reagan Administration for one of its three new "ecology centers" for conscientious objectors.

The corpsmen will be housed in the Paynes Creek Conservation Camp, a former minimum-security state Corrections Department facility 25 miles east of Red Bluff.

The target date for opening the center is July 1.

The administration said Thursday that the corpsmen "will play a vital role in habitat development" on the 46,000-acre foothill range where deer migrate each winter from the Sierra.

"We have long desired to complete a rehabilitation of this valuable wildlife range," said the state Fish and Game Department.

Corpsemen will also be used for summertime wildland firefighting and for other emergencies such as assistance in search and rescue efforts in northern California, state officials said.

RECALLS LICENSE

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —The state Consumer Affairs Department has revoked the license of a Corona Del Mar structural pest control firm and two of its employees because of fraudulent practices.

The action was taken against Robert M. Koop, president and manager of Countywide Termite Control, Inc., and the firm's field representatives Edward W. Perusse, Huntington Beach, and Ted W. Layman, Mountain Valley.

The department said Thursday that the three were found guilty at a hearing of fraudulent practices and unprofessional conduct.

Layman and Perusse were accused specifically of making false statements to a 77-year-old woman and a nearly blind 74-year-old woman to induce them to enter work agreements.

TAX TALK

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —The Republican caucus chairman says Assembly Speaker Bob Moretti is talking "utter nonsense" when he suggests the GOP plans to "desert" Gov. Ronald Reagan and join Democrats in raising state taxes.

"If he can speak for anyone at all in the Assembly it can only be the Democrats, and there is some doubt in my mind whether he can even do that," said Assemblyman John Stull, R-Leucadia.

Moretti predicted Thursday that Republicans will "ignore" Reagan's "unalterable opposition" and vote with Democrats this year to raise taxes by at least $250 million.

"I have been in contact almost daily lately with the Republican leadership in our house and there's just no question about it," Moretti said. "They will support a tax increase."

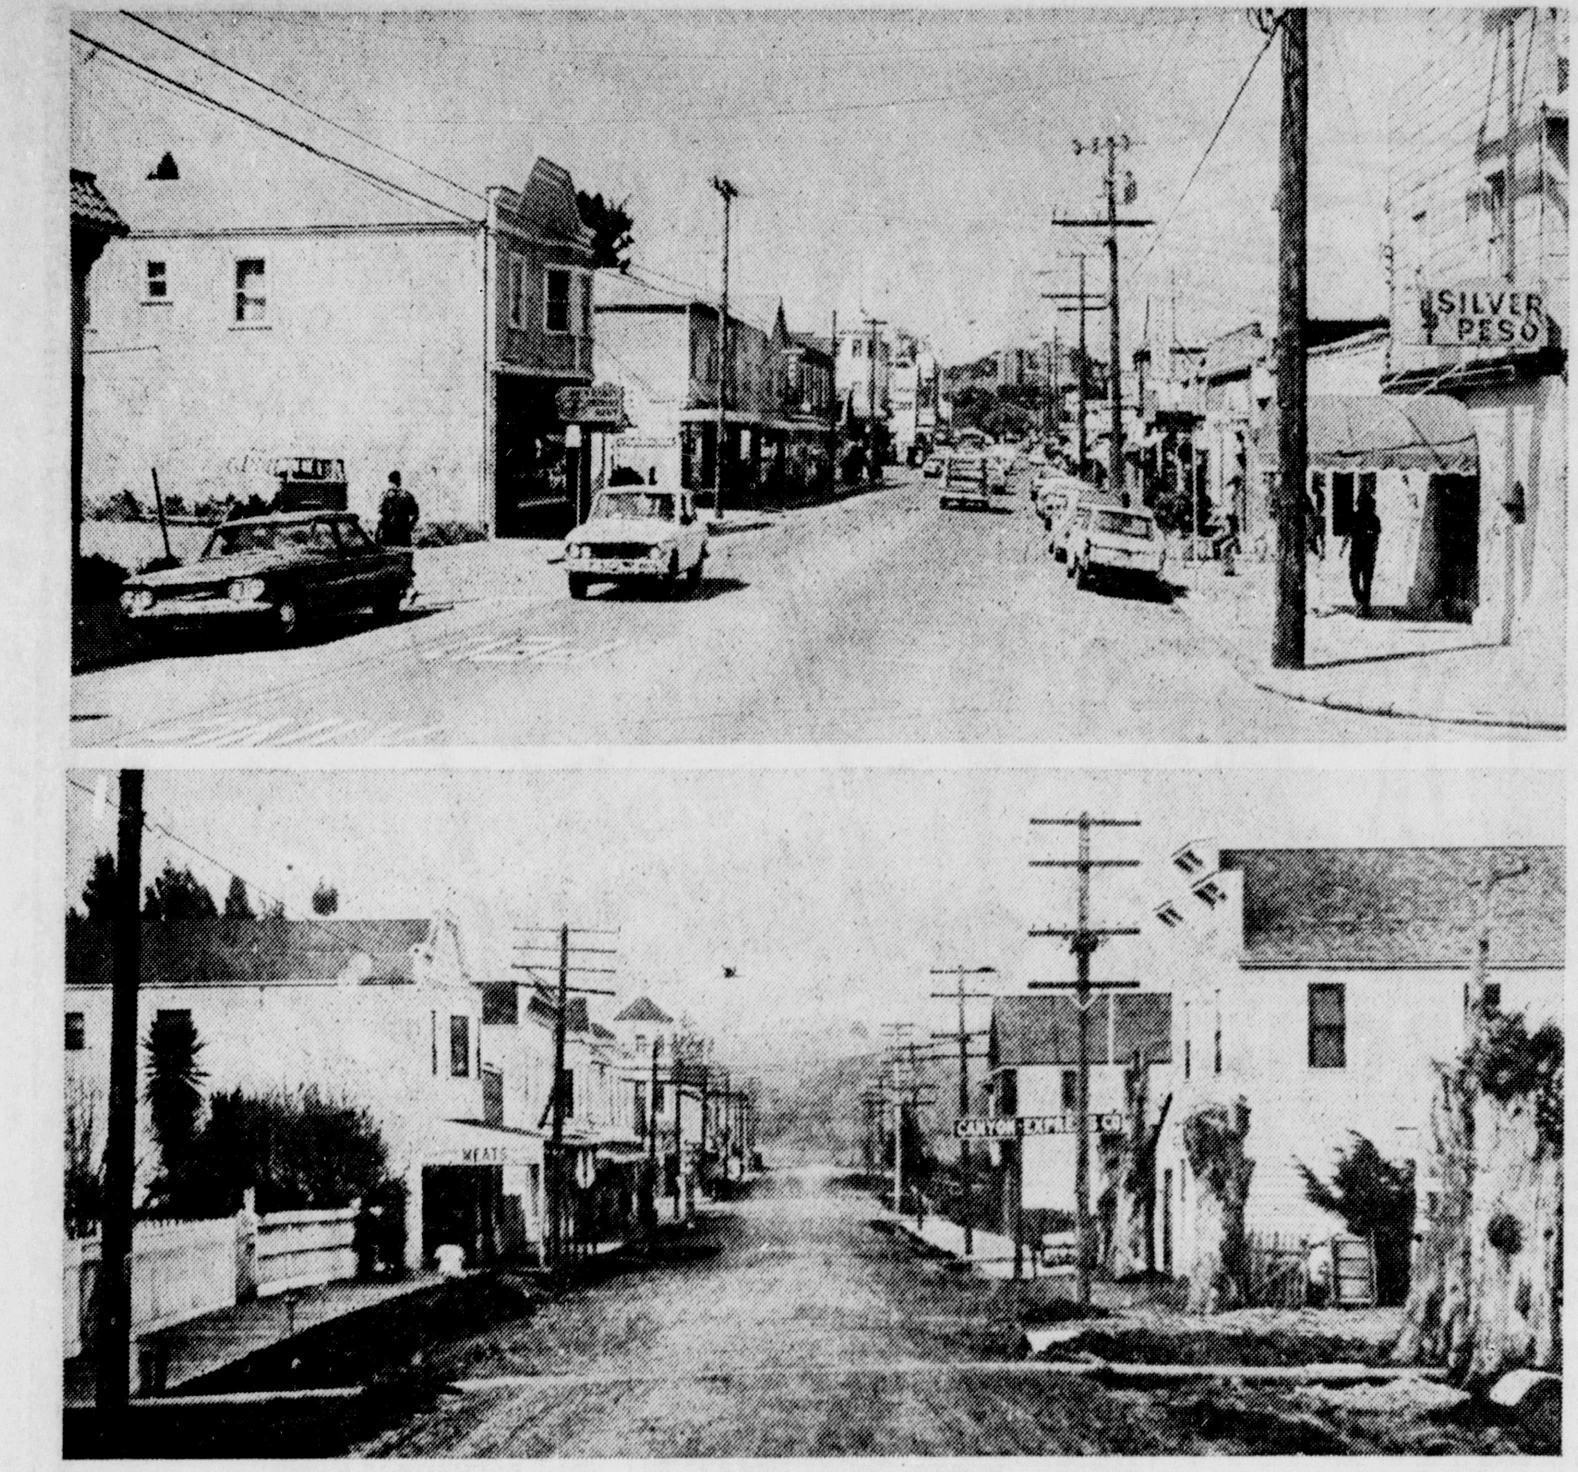
WARDS IS OPEN TONIGHT 'TIL 9 - SATURDAY 9:30 AM til 5:30 PM - SUNDAY 11 AM til 5 PM IN CORTE MADERA



THEN AND NOW — Except for cars and concrete, Larkspur's Magnolia Avenue today (top) — viewed north from Cane Street — is not too different from that in 1910. Many of the white wood frame structures are still standing including those which house the John Barry Insurance Agency, the Rainbow Market, The Silver Peso and the Blue Rock Inn. The future look of Larkspur, as influenced by the population increase, will be the general topic tomorrow of the city's second Town Meeting.

Papa Doc's Son Pledges 'New Haiti'

PORT-AU-PRINCE (UPI)—The teen-age president of the Western Hemisphere's oldest black republic —and its poorest nation —pledged Thursday to "build a new Haiti." He invited the country's 200,000 exiles to come back and help in the reconstruction.

Jean-Claude Duvalier, 19, told the national assembly in his maiden speech his mission was "to improve health, education (and) abolish hunger" —the legacy of this Caribbean nation's 5 million residents after almost 14 years of dictatorship under his late father, Dr. Francois (Papa Doc) Duvalier.

Papa Doc, who died last week at 62, had amended the constitutional age requirement for the presidency from 40 so his son might succeed him.

Duvalier received a large cheer when he told the packed assembly hall he was "offering an olive branch of peace to the exiles." He drew an even bigger ovation when he stipulated moments later that his offer excluded Communists and "trouble-makers."

"All Haitians living abroad are free to come back and take part in the national regeneration," Duvalier said in his hour-long speech.

"My mission is to improve health, education and abolish hunger and build a new Haiti that is generous and progressive."

The husky young ruler spoke of a new understanding between Haiti and the United States and offered Washington his help against Communism.

Duvalier also pledged to continue his father's fight against subversion and said he was firmly committed to a policy of non-intervention and self-determination of all peoples.

Larkspur Town Meeting Will Tackle Growth Issue Tomorrow

For months, Larkspur's governmental agencies have been wrestling with the sometimes volatile issue of how to control growth legally and equitably.

Tomorrow, the Larkspur Town Meeting will take its turn at probing the controversy which has split city councilmen and planning commissioners into two camps — one expounding property owners' rights and the other the preservation of the environment.

The town meeting, Larkspur's second, this time meets under the banner: "Larkspur — Growing, Growing, Growing. The Economic and Environmental Impact of Population Increase."

It proposes four workshops dealing with population and density, open space preservation, commuter traffic and park development.

Topics of discussion include questions of what the city's total population should be and where it should be distributed, where and how commuter traffic should be funneled through the city, how Piper Park should be developed and if the city should cooperate in a joint effort to preserve the 1,200-acre North Ridge from development.

The meeting begins at 9 a.m. at Henry C. Hall School.

Last November, the first town meeting drew about 250 persons who drafted 16 recommendations for action.

Town meeting officials since have lobbied city and county representatives with moderate success.

The city council, at the urging of the town meeting, has agreed to leave marshland areas of Piper Park undeveloped, has agreed to limit docking facilities at the park, has agreed to require developers to dedicate land for park use and has agreed to improve bike trails.

Tricia's Invitations

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The White House says nearly 400 invitations for the wedding of Tricia Nixon and Edward Finch Cox will be mailed out May 10.

The event is being termed a family wedding, with relatively few members of Washington officialdom on the guest list. It was expected that Cabinet members, some members of the diplomatic corps and family friends in Congress would be invited.

Bonaparte Land Condemned For Highway Use

TRENTON, N.J. (UPI)—The last recorded owner of four acres of land the state of New Jersey needs for interstate 295 was Joseph Bonaparte, older brother of French Emperor Napoleon Bonaparte.

So the state Thursday filed two condemnation suits against the "heirs" of Joseph Bonaparte, asking that three commissioners be appointed to fix compensation for Joseph's heirs, if any can be found.

Joseph was king of Naples and Spain while his brother reigned over France and most of Europe.

The armies of the Duke of Wellington forced Joseph to flee Spain in 1813, and two years later he came to the United States. He lived in the United States from 1815 to 1832, when he returned to France.

Graham Closing The Fillmores: 'Success Killed Rock Music'

NEW YORK (UPI)—The operator of two of the nation's most famous rock concert halls is closing them down because he says greed has taken over the music industry.

"The only positive thing anymore is the dollars, and that's not enough anymore," producer Bill Graham said Thursday. "The dues that have to be paid are, for me, no longer worth it."

Graham said Fillmore East, in the heart of New York's East Village, will close June 26 with the last show by the Allman Brothers. Fillmore West in San Francisco is scheduled for demolition late in the summer and Graham said it "will not relocate."

Graham said he now deals with corporations and stockholders instead of musicians. He said the whole rock music industry has become big business.

"Rock is joining America," he said. "With success comes desire and with desire comes greed.

"The inability to cope with success has killed rock music. That's what killed Janis Joplin and Jimi Hendrix, not drugs. They couldn't cope with sudden adulation."

Graham has run the two rock emporiums for six years and during that time has specialized in bringing in big name stars for live one-night stands.

When an artist first makes it big, Graham said, he realizes he can fill a 20,000 seat house with $4 and $5 ticketholders.

"People realize they can make more by giving less," Graham said. "So instead of playing four concerts to 5,000 people each, he wants to play one 20,000 concert and spend the other three days on his yacht."

A fine violin improves with age.

Embezzlement Case Brings Indictments

CHICAGO (UPI)—Four persons, including a former bank official and three officials of a discount store company, were indicted today for embezzling nearly $7 million from the Cosmopolitan National Bank.

When news of the embezzlement broke in March, it was thought to be the largest bank embezzlement in history. But March 30 it was reported that federal officials suspected up to $10 million may have been embezzled from the Eatonton National Bank in Newark, N.J.

Named in today's 30-count indictment were Louis Steinberg, 48, former vice president of the Steinberg-Baum discount store chain; Frank Baum, president of the firm; Leonard Freedman, 52, general manager of the firm, and Donald Santowski, 42, former vice president and bookkeeper of the bank.

The indictment charged they embezzled $6,779,450 from the Cosmopolitan National Bank on the near North Side of Chicago in a check-kiting scheme involving $28,033,875 in checks.

The indictment, returned by the March federal grand jury, charged that large checks, most of them for more than $100,000 and some for as much as $900,000, were written on Steinberg-Baum's checking account at the bank when there were insufficient funds to cash the checks.

The checks, the charges said, were made to other firms controlled by Steinberg-Baum and were deposited in the checking accounts of those firms. At the same time, checks in the same amount were written on these accounts and the second checks were deposited back into the Cosmopolitan bank, the charges said.

At the bank, these checks were intercepted and concealed so that they were not charged against the Steinberg-Baum account, the indictment said. Some checks were concealed for up to a year before finally being charged against the account, it was charged.

The amount lost by the bank was in 17 separate checks, it was charged.

The indictment was returned before U.S. District Court Judge Julius J. Hoffman, who issued warrants for the arrests of the four men and set $4,000 personal recognizance bonds for each.

On Wednesday, 12 subsidiary Steinberg- Baum companies filed for bankruptcies. In its own earlier bankruptcy petition, Steinberg-Baum listed $5 million in assets and $6 million in liabilities. The bank also has said that because it has become the "involuntary creditors" of the firm, it had assumed control of Steinberg-Baum.

Tam Valley Site May Be Purchased

The Tamalpais Community Services District has decided to buy 5.13 acres of land from the Mill Valley School District for $66,500 unless there is strong community objection.

Services District President Glenn Lambacher said the board agreed on the price, midway between appraisals by the services district and the school district, at a special meeting Wednesday.

The property, called the Alice Eastwood site, is at Eastwood Way and Glenwood Avenue in Tamalpais Valley. The former school site will be used for a park, said Lambacher.

The services district board will make a formal offer to buy the property at its May 11 meeting "unless strong objections are voiced by district residents at that time,'' said Lambacher.

Typewriter Stolen

An electric typewriter, valued at $479, was stolen from an office at Green Gulch Ranch near Muir Beach sometime last weekend, Marin County Sheriff's Office reported yesterday.

Judge Sets Rail Switch For Tonight

WASHINGTON (UPI) —U.S. District Judge Howard Corcoran refused today to order a delay in the scheduled takeover at midnight of most of the nation's railroad passenger service by a semipublic corporation.

Railroad unions made immediate plans to appeal the decision in a last minute effort to prevent the corporation — called Amtrak — from implementing its plan to drop 101 of the nation's intercity 285 passenger trains beginning Saturday.

The unions had charged that the labor protection provisions of the Amtrak contract with participating railroads were inadequate and would work extreme hardship on up to 25,000 rail workers, some of whom they said could be cut off without a cent of severance pay.

Rail labor unions charged that Labor Secretary James D. Hodgson's order stipulating required protections for laid-off or otherwise displaced employes were inadequate and not in compliance with Interstate Commerce Commission regulations.

Judge Corcoran said in a 24-page opinion:

"If this court were to declare invalid the contracts which have been entered into between the corporations and the railroads, the statutory plan would be seriously jeopardized.

"The frustration of the intent of Congress and a threat of grave injury to the public and to the railroads should be obvious."

Corcoran said he had no authority to invalidate Hodgson's labor protection order as the railroads asked because he said the act creating Amtrak specifically gave the labor secretary the power to establish those provisions.

Corcoran said it appeared that the order would "make it likely that far more employes will receive the protections" than they would under ICC regulations.

Let The Radicals Carry The Mail, Says Hayakawa

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—College president S.I. Hayakawa said Thursday night college students need to be offered stiffer challenges to take their minds off such things as revolution.

He told 400 delegates to the national convention of the American College Health Association that colleges of the future should become "experimental" and more closely aligned with the world immediately around them.

"Colleges of the future should take students into the community and students should be given municipal jobs such as directing traffic, caring for the elderly and delivering mail," said the president of San Francisco State College.

"Students today are in a kind of enforced quasi-idleness and they are ready for something more challenging. What is needed for a youth is to be extended to the limit."

Hayakawa of Mill Valley said the major problem in higher education is the "elitist student, generally coming from a higher income family and looking down on the working class and other people . . ."

The root systems of most trees are more extensive than their limbs or branches.

Bullet Fired Into Residence

Petaluma police said a bullet was fired into a Petaluma residence last night but no explanation of the shooting could be found.

Police said the shot, possibly fired from a passing car, entered the residence of Junita Tatum of 1262 Lindberg Lane through the front wall, passed through a bedroom and lodged in a clock-radio. The slug, removed from the radio, was tentatively identified as .38-caliber.

The shooting occurred about 6:45 p.m. a neighbor said she heard what appeared to be a car backfiring at the time the bullet was fired.

Demonstration Set For Bonsai Show

Candidates For Principal Interviewed

Ten candidates for principal of San Rafael High School ran the gamut today of interviews by students, faculty members, and parents.

In what may have been their toughest test, the aspirants for the principalship being vacated by Alan W. Ellsberg were quizzed by six students selected by the student body executive board. They also were interviewed separately by panels of eight faculty members and four parents.

Members of the student selection committee are Linda Greene, Jane Thelen, Jode Anderson, Marti Davis, Mark Showers, and Bess Christie.

The faculty committee includes Allan Barahal, Jessie Diffley, Sue-Ann Joy, Joseph E. Brighenti, Lawrence Lack, and Edward Cunningham, all San Rafael High School teachers; Robert R. Royle of Terra Linda High School, and Jerald Gill of the city schools administration.

Members of the parent committee are Robert A. Roumiguiere, Lawrence E. Hoyt, Jean Noble and Willie Vandenbos.

Each committee will present its recommendations to the San Rafael Board of Education, which will make the final choice of principal. Names of the candidates were not disclosed.

Protesters Told To Write Essays In Lieu Of Jail

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Eleven persons convicted of staging a sit-in at the Southwest Museum to protest a display of American Indian bones ..ave been ordered to write 5,000-word essays on civil disobedience.

Municipal Court Judge Irwin J. Nebron Thursday sentenced the nine men and two women to 90 days in jail and three years probation but reduced the sentence to 10 days on condition they write the essays.

All eleven also were fined $375 each.

All but one of the defendants, who staged the demonstration Jan. 12 charging that the display of bones and Indian religious items was "sacrilegious," claimed to be of American Indian ancestry. They were convicted of trespassing for failing to leave the museum at closing time.

Capitol Bomb Figure Arrives In Seattle

SEATTLE, Wash. (UPI)—Leslie Bacon, 19-year-old blonde from a well-to-do California family, arrived here Thursday night to appear before a federal grand jury as a material witness in the March 1 bombing of the U.S. capitol.

Although waiting newsmen could not confirm she had been whisked off the United Air Lines flight which arrived here late Thursday night, several passengers said they had seen her aboard.

She is the first person arrested in connection with the explosion which caused nearly $200,000 damage in a Senate wing. No one was injured.

The government contends that Seattle is not a particularly unusual setting for the investigation of the capitol blast, pointing out that a grand jury can be confined anywhere in the nation because the offense took place in a federal jurisdiction. Miss Bacon's attorneys assert the faraway site will make it more difficult for the defense.

The government implied during court hearings that she knew far more about the bombing than simply the "personal knowledge" of it that was mentioned in a warrant for her arrest.

She was arrested Tuesday night by FBI agents on a warrant she had knowledge of the persons responsible for the blast.

Although her lawyers fought to keep her from leaving Washington, the way was cleared for her transfer Thursday by a decision of a U.S. court of appeals.

Cutbacks In Tam District Administrators Due Study

A recommendation that four Tamalpais High School District administrative jobs be eliminated as part of a test of reorganization will be presented Monday to the district board.

The recommendation, if approved, will save the district about $126,549 next year, according to Dr. Wilber D. Hawkins, district superintendent.

Besides the four administrative positions, the recommendation calls for the elimination of about three and a half secretarial positions.

Hawkins has said the reduction is necessary to "decentralize" the district by moving certain district responsibilities to the school level. Those responsibilities include budgeting and program planning.

However, his recommendation to the board also calls for the creation of one new district position of director of research and development. Responsibilities listed are primarily those held by the soon-to-be-axed positions of director of instruction and his special projects assistant who acts as a grantsman. No salary figure is listed for the proposed position.

The other administrative positions proposed for elimination are those of director of pupil personnel and his child welfare assistant. Their responsibilities would be shifted primarily to school personnel.

The test or reorganization is actually a compromise between teachers who protested being left out of reorganization planning and the superintendent who drafted the plan.

Under the compromise reached earlier this month by the board, the plan will be tried at Sir Francis Drake High School in San Anselmo so its merits and shortcoming can be evaluated.

Also included in his recommendation is a request to reassign district psychologists full time to the schools and to eliminate the professional library at the district office and the clerical position it includes.

The four administrators who hold the positions proposed for scrapping are all listed as teachers to be rehired next year.

The board meeting at 8 p.m. at the Redwood High School faculty lounge also will discuss with its auditor the audit of the fiscal 1969-70 records and hear a report on financial trends, among other items.

Dance Demonstration Is Scheduled Monday

A public informal demonstration of dance will be presented at 8:15 p.m. Monday in the Dominican College gymnasiun.

The demonstration by students of Welland Lathrop, will review the work of the class over the past semester, including group and individual improvisations.

Would-Be Jumpers In Custody

A San Francisco man and his fiance, reportedly distraught over an obstacle to their marriage, were taken into custody yesterday to prevent them from jumping from Golden Gate Bride, according to the California Highway Patrol.

Officers said Richard J. Oba, 24, and his fiance, Susanne Knudson, 22, of Medford, Ore., made their way to the bridge last night after an argument at the home of Oba's mother.

Miss Knudson was picked up by the highway patrol at 8:02 p.m. on the south walk of the bridge. Oba was found at the Round House restaurant near the bridge's southern end 13 minutes later.

Officers said Oba's mother called them and said her son had asked for money for a wedding. When she refused, she said, Oba stormed out of the house and said he was going to take his life.

Miss Knudson then told Mrs. Oba that she would jump as well and left the house, the patrol quoted Mrs. Oba as saying.

The couple was taken to San Francisco General Hospital and committed as being a danger to themselves.

Gopher Problem In Gas Project

DENVER (UPI)—Scientists checking out plans to destroy 3,071 tons of mustard gas at the Rocky Mountain Arsenal said Thursday one thing might put a crimp in the project—the common gopher.

The scientists said gophers on the land near Denver are eating coaxial cable which will be used to transmit data to a monitoring board during detoxification.

M.C. Gilvray, a member of the regional Air Pollution Control Agency's technical advisory committee, said the rodents chew up the plastic and wire cable.

The scientists made no recommendation on how the Army should handle the gopher problem.

Attorney Sees System Making Youth Haters

By GEORGE NEVIN

(Fifth in a series of 24 raps)

Most youths today want to work within the system to bring about change, but enforcement of unjust laws and the prosecution of an unjust war is turning them into "haters."

This is the contention of 33-year-old Michael H. Metzger, the Sausalito attorney whose own arrest last year on suspicion of drug possession confirmed his feeling that "the police and courts are being used as instruments of oppression."

Charges against Metzger, one of San Francisco's so-called dope lawyers, were dismissed in Marin Superior Court last month on the grounds that an informer used a ruse to gain entry to Metzger's Sausalito home.

The attorney, whose clients usually are accused of violating Selective Service or narcotics laws, didn't arrive at his present way of thinking overnight. "I used to be a member of the Establishment. The change was a long, slow one," he said.

If any man should have remained a member of the Establishment, it would seem Metzger should have. Born the son of a wealthy clothing manufacturer, Metzger, by his own account, grew up "in the lap of luxury" in New York.

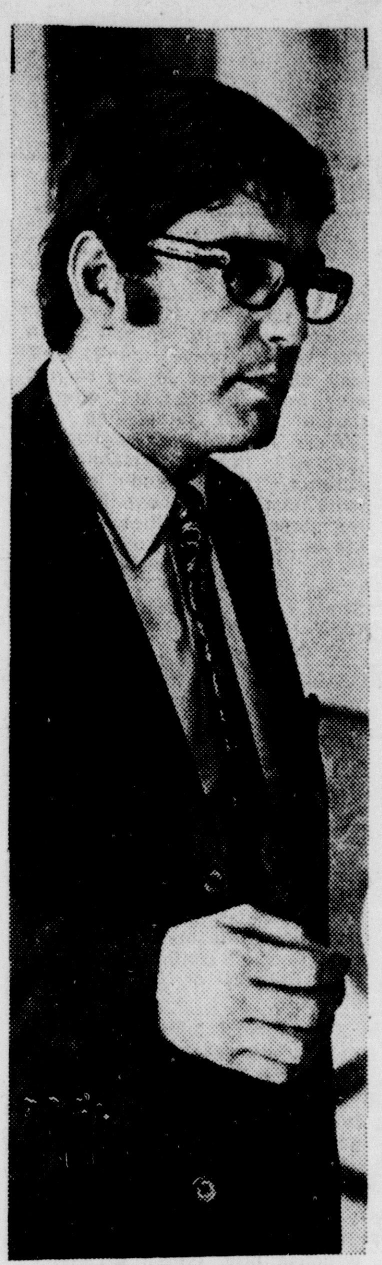
To satisfy a vague desire to make the world a better place, Metzger attended law school, graduating near the top of his class, and then turned down offers to join prestigious New York law firms to become head of the rackets bureau in the New York district attorney's office.

Metzger showed an Independent-Journal reporter books of press clippings on his racket-busting days, which credited him with the conviction of influential men in and near government for corruption, bribery and price-fixing.

After five-and-one-half years, Metzger moved to San Francisco to join the staff of then-U.S. Attorney Cecil Poole as an assistant United States attorney.

"It was here," he recalled, "that I had my first contact with the 'ordinary people' in the courts — people accused of violating draft and drug laws."

The slow change began then. It accelerated when Metzger refused to prosecute a young man for a Selective Service violation on the grounds the defendant had been illegally reclassified 1-A by his draft board.



MICHAEL H. METZGER
"Youth wants to believe . . ."

Metzger stayed on at the U. S. Attorney's office, though, and prosecuted Frank N. Werber, former manager of the Kingston Trio, who was accused of illegally importing marijuana.

After Werber was acquitted by the jury, Metzger resigned and joined the law firm which had defended Werber.

He feels that drug laws, contrary to their professed purpose of preventing a harmful activity, actually encourage drug use among the young by making it seem glamorous.

"I see dissatisfaction, disaffection and alienation among young people. Nothing will help the drug situation until the government shows it's really concerned about kids and their welfare," he said. "Those in power must be wearing blinders to be as shortsighted as they are. They have no idea what resentment they're causing" by arresting drug offenders.

If conditions don't change, Metzger foresees a growing possibility of armed conflict. "Youths have lost faith in the Establishment as it exists today, but they're not organized enough to do a great deal about it."

Is there a generation gap? Certainly, he believes, "but it's not divided by age. Some people over 30 think young, and a lot of chronologically young people think old," he said.

Is Metzger a radical? "If you mean do I see need for a sweeping reorganization of the power structure, yes. But as long as this is a country of law I believe in change within the system."

Metzger cautioned the reporter against making him appear too radical. "We've got a great country. It could be a Garden of Eden, an example for the rest of the world, but it needs a lot of change," he said.

Basically, today's youth wants to believe as he does, Metzger said. "The average kid doesn't buy all that radical talk. Part of him wants to believe this is a good country.

"But when he gets busted for dope and the cops sit on the witness stand and lie about how the contraband was found and the judge believes him, kids turn into real haters and hard-core radicals.

Metzger, casually clad in bell-bottoms, a blue work shirt and loafers, said he has no personal stake in fighting for the relaxation of marijuana laws. "I don't smoke the stuff; good Scotch whiskey is my bag."

The solution to the marijuana problem — if one concedes there is one, and Metzger doesn't — is for the government to realize that ours is a drug culture and that marijuana, which has been used for 5,000 years, is a harmless weed, he said.

Instead, pot laws are being used as a "political weapon in an attempt to silent those who oppose the government," he said, "myself included."

If there's a revolution, enforcement of unjust drug laws won't cause it but will be a factor," said Metzger. "Add narcotics laws to other grievances and violence just might happen."

"When the young generation comes into power and control of destiny, I believe it will look back on this period as one of the blackest in American history, equal to the genocide of the American Indian."

Mock Nuclear Accident Staged At Hamilton For City Officials

Hamilton Air Force Base, which has planes that can carry nuclear weapons, yesterday demonstrated its preparations for coping with the worst.

In this case the worst would be the crash of a plane carrying a nuclear weapon followed by fire and detonation of high explosives in the weapon.

Emergency crews carried out their tasks during a simulated crash before about 60 city officials and pressmen during a disaster preparedness briefing.

The Air Force has had some nuclear accidents, but "no nuclear yields," reported Lt. Raymond W. Davies, base disaster preparedness officer.

There has never been an accidental nuclear detonation in a crash, Davies said. When referring to detonation, "We are speaking of the high explosive component of the nuclear weapon," he explained to the visitors seated in bleachers swept by chilly wind, when the exercise began.

First, there was a report that a plane 15 miles east of the base, with "Class A explosives aboard," was coming in with two engines out and a faulty landing gear and "six souls aboard."

Then came the word that it was a "potential broken arrow" and disaster forces moved since "broken arrow" is the code name for an accident involving nuclear weapons.

Fire engines and ambulances raced toward a cloud of white smoke marking the site of the crash and the disaster control unit set up a command post, outside the danger area.

Minutes later there was a cloud of yellow smoke signifying that the fire had reached the nuclear weapons, and the disaster crews had four minutes to clear the area.

They drew back beyond the danger area, 2,000 feet, and took cover behind their vehicles for protection from the forthcoming explosion.

Then a cloud of red smoke signified that the explosives had detonated.

Two members of the Explosive Ordinance Disposal unit, wearing yellow protective clothing and gas masks then went into the crash area to monitor for radiation.

They called back their findings in code, "10,000 apples, 18,000 apples, but no bananas or grapes," and so on until the final message as they neared the downed plane . . . "37,000 apples."

When they completed their job, they returned to the decontamination area where they were checked for radioactivity.

"The danger of contamination is just in the immediate vicinity of the crash, 2,000 feet," Davies said. The radiation is from the radiological components of the nuclear weapon and "isn't fallout," he said.

The recovery job involving disarming and removing the nuclear weapons wasn't demonstrated. It was explained that such a task could take months, as it did when a nuclear weapon was lost in Spain.

Earlier Air Force officers told city officials, mainly firemen and law enforcement officers, how the base and the civilian authorities can cooperate in the event of plane crashes, disasters or demonstrations.

Lt. William B. Slagle Jr., security officer, said that the Air Force would attempt to keep civil disturbances "off the base," and in such cases would need the assistant of local police and sheriff's deputies.

If there are demonstrations in cities, the Air Force can offer some types of aid such as "billeting," he said. Before Air Force personnel, ammunition, cars or planes could be used there would have to be approval from the Department of Defense, he said.

Youth Attacked By Classmates

A 14-year-old Martin Luther King School student was hospitalized today with a head injury apparently received when he was attacked yesterday by two classmates who jumped him during a break between classes.

David Swift of 520 Spring Street, Sausalito, was reported in satisfactory condition at Marin General Hospital.

Lawrence A. Lindberg, superintendent of the Sausalito School District, said today that two eighth grade boys have been suspended while school officials investigate the attack.

He said that Swift was apparently beaten by two boys in a corridor of the school about 11 a.m. No disciplinary action except the suspension has been taken against the boys yet, he said.

Lindberg declined to speculate whether the attack by two black youths on Swift, who is white, had racial overtones, saying only that Martin Luther King School is "fully integrated" and that other motives might be involved.

Henry E. Hopkins, principal of the school, who, according to Lindberg knew more details of the incident, was not available for comment today. The Sausalito Police Department also refused to tell details of a report taken by officers.

Minor Injuries In Auto Crash

A Walnut Creek woman suffered minor injuries last night when her car rammed a bridge railing on Highway 101 in Petaluma, the California Highway Patrol reported.

Pearl Reichel, 23, was treated at Hillcrest Hospital for a bloody nose and a head bump.

Officers said the driver told them she lost control of her vehicle when another auto made a sharp passing movement while both were southbound on the freeway. The accident occurred about 9:10 p.m. near the offramp to Route 12.

Pleas Due In Marin Kidnap Case

Three men were arraigned yesterday in Marin Municipal Court on charges of kidnapping a woman who was hitchhiking from Sausalito to Corte Madera.

Abel Homer Carrasco, 22, of Chico; David Hernandez, 26, and Juan Hernandez Medina, 33, both of San Francisco, were to plead to the charges today.

Judge Robert A. Smallman yesterday set bail on the men at $5,000 each.

The three were arrested by Sausalito police early yesterday after they allegedly picked up Karin M. Kellam, 26, of Millbrae, who was hitchhiking with Glenn I. Shear, 21, of Sausalito. At Corte Madera the trio forced Shear out of their car and sped off, police said.

Sausalito police stopped the car at an entrance to Highway 101 and freed Miss Kellam who told officers the men were stripping her when the car was stopped.

Welfare Checks Mailed On Time

About 4,500 welfare recipients in Marin County will get their May checks on time tomorrow because the state has advanced the funds.

Marin County Auditor-Controller Michael Mitchell said he received money this morning from the state to cover a delay in federal funds which had threatened to hold up the welfare checks for a few days. The welfare checks, tolalling $750,000, were mailed to Marin recipients today.

In the past, the federal share of the welfare funds had been sent to the states several days before the end of the month. But this week, federal authorities announced a new policy of not releasing federal funds "before the first of the month."

Mitchell was caught in a dilemma because the state law says he must deliver the welfare checks on the first postal day of each month. But Mitchell was not about to issue the checks until he had the federal and state funds in the county treasury. "I wasn't about to write $750,000 in checks without funds to cover them,'' said Mitchell.

In Sacramento, Deputy State Controller Ralph I. McCarthy said the state has decided to advance funds each month to cover the time lag caused by the new federal policy.

Final Search In Dog Bite Case

Novato police today were making a last-day search for a black dog who bit a 14-year-old boy Wednesday.

If the dog isn't located by tomorrow, Dan M. Liegl of 730 Bradley Avenue will have to undergo antirabies treatment.

Liegl was bitten on the upper right leg by a small, short-haired black dog with a white spot on the crest of his breast at 4:06 p.m. Wednesday near 717 Del Mar Avenue.

An intensive check including door to door checking hadn't shown any results, but this morning police were working on two leads offered by high school students.

Trial Scheduled In Marijuana Possession Case

I-J Special Report

OAKLAND — A West Marin physician has been scheduled for trial Wednesday on marijuana possession following more than two years of court appearances concerning the constitutionality of the seizure of the evidence.

Dr. William E. Kaye of 40 Manana Way, Point Reyes Station appeared yesterday in Alameda Superior Court where the date for his trial was set.

Kaye and John C. Frankling of no known address were arrested Jan. 11, 1969, on suspicion of possessing marijuana when police were called to Kaye's home, then in Berkeley, because of an alleged disturbance.

Kaye's subsequent petition that the evidence was seized unconstitutionally was upheld by Judge George W. Phillips Jr. who ruled the evidence be suppressed. That decision was appealed and reversed by an appellate court in December 1970, and the evidence will be used in the trial, according to Tom Condit, Alameda County deputy district attorney.

Frankling did not appear in court and a bench warrant was issued for his arrest, according to Condit.

Democrats To Discuss Reforms

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — Party reforms will be discussed by Democrats in the Sixth Congressional District, which includes most of Marin and western San Francisco, at 1:30 p.m. tomorrow at Mission United Presbyterian Church, 23rd and Capp streets, San Francisco.

The caucus, open to all registered Democrats in the district, will discuss reforms proposed in January by a party commission. The reforms include basing local central committees on Assembly district lines instead of on county and congressional district lines, expansion of the state chairman's powers, party identification of candidates in local elections, and pre-primary endorsement of candidates by the state central committee.

Astronaut Chides Moon Trip Critics

HOUSTON (UPI)—Astronaut Eugene A. Cernan says the United States definitely should commit itself to staying first in space and scoffed at space critics who ask "what difference does it make?"

"How would they feel if on the moon today instead of the Stars and Stripes there was a Hammer and Sickle?" Cernan, who flew on Gemini 9 and Apollo 10 and was backup pilot for Apollo 14, asked a Rotary Club Thursday.

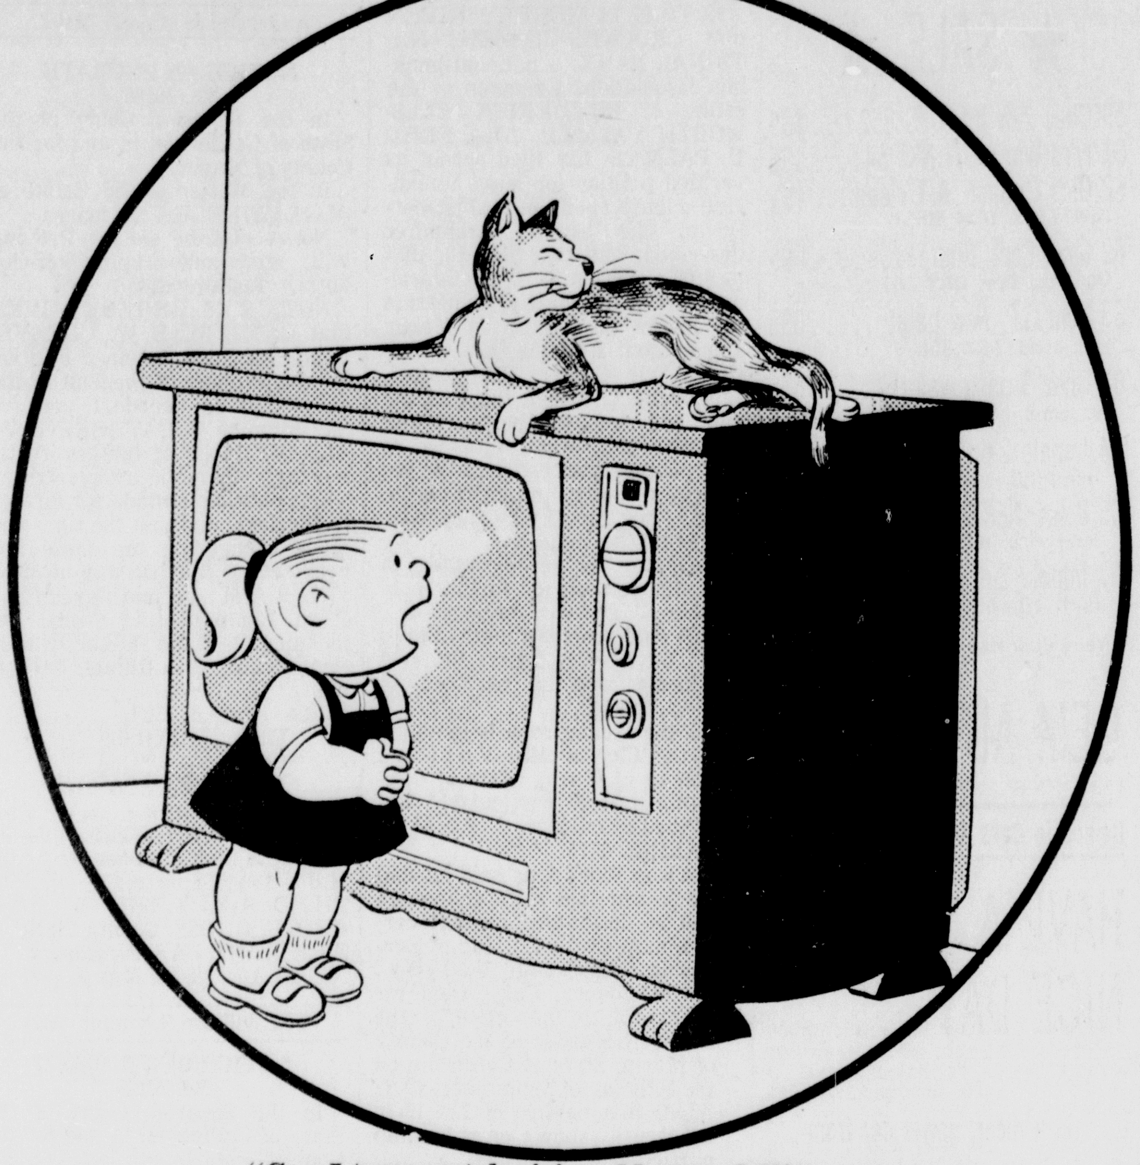
THE FAMILY CIRCUS



"Can I turn on television, Mommy? Kitty-cat wants to keep warm."

ALMANAC

Today is Friday, April 30, the 120th day of 1971.

The moon is between its new phase and first quarter. The morning stars are Mercury, Venus, Mars and Jupiter. The evening star is Saturn.

Those born on this day are under the sign of Taurus.

Queen Juliana of The Netherlands was born April 30, 1909.

On this day in history:

In 1803 the United States more than doubled its land area with the Louisiana Purchase, obtaining all French territory west of the Mississippi River for $15 million.

In 1945 the body of Adolph Hitler was found in a bunker under the ruins of Berlin. The Nazi dictator apparently killed himself.

Also in 1945 Russian soldiers captured the Reichstag in Berlin, raising the Communist flag over the Nazi capital.

In 1963 New Hampshire became the first state to legalize a state-run lottery since 1894 when a similar one was ended in Louisiana.

A thought for today: American author Edward Newton said, "From contemplation one may become wise, but knowledge comes from study."

HOW TO PLAY

WINNING BRIDGE

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

This Hand Is Even Heavy Burden On A Superior Player

A bridge player must have a heart of stone if he can read today's sad story without laughing. The hero of our little tale is a very good bridge player, much better than anybody he plays with — as he takes care to let them know. In spite of this, few of his opponents are really fond of him. The burden of the superior man is a very heavy one. Heavier than ever since the hand shown today.

FIRST TRICKS

East took the first two tricks with the king and ace of diamonds, wondering how he was going to get two trump tricks to defeat the contract. He could see a safety play coming unless he could find a way to mislead declarer.

While East gathered in the first two tricks, South (our hero) prepared to play the trumps to best advantage. Experienced players will agree with South that the right way is to cash the ace of hearts first. Then South must clear the ace of spades out of the way, get to dummy with a club to discard a club on the king of spades and then lead a trump. If East plays low, South must take a safety finesse with the ten.

If West is able to win the trick with the queen or jack of hearts, only one trump will be left outstanding; and South can later pick that trump up with the king. If West is unable to beat the ten of hearts, the deep finesse will be necessary to prevent the loss of two trump tricks.

ODD SWITCH

While South was planning the play of the trumps, East led the deuce of clubs to the third trick. This strange play up to dummy's strength was an obvious singleton, South announced. (He believed in letting the opponents know how transparent their little devices were.)

"This is the wrong time for a safety play," South continued. "I can't afford to let you ruff a club," he told East. And declarer forthwith led out the ace and king of trumps. This gave East two trump tricks to defeat the contract.

The saddest part of the story is that East and West often remind South of this hand.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with one heart, and the next player passes.

You hold:
♠ - J 8 4
♥ - Q J 5 3
♦ - A K 5
♣ - 8 6 2.

What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid two diamonds.

The hand is too strong for a raise to two hearts, but not strong enough for a jump to three hearts. Bid a side suit, even a "phony" suit, and raise the hearts later to describe your strength.

Danes Are Mapping Country's Pollution

COPENHAGEN (UPI)—The Danish Pollution Council plans to make a "Pollution Atlas" of the country. All local authorities have been asked to supply information on water and environment.

"The country is in a mess but before we have a full view of the situation the politicians can take no real action," said Joergen Qvist, head of the council's administration.

'Antipeonage' Bill For Mental Patients

NEW YORK (UPI)—Indiana has enacted legislation to compensate patients in mental hospitals for tasks performed just as if they were outside employes.

The National Association for Mental Health, Inc., said the state is the first in the country to enact "anti-peonage" legislation. The rate of pay to the patients will be set by a remuneration board.

Fine Ordered In Case Linked To Marijuana

Brian V. Beard, 26, of Marin City, has been ordered to pay a $50 fine or serve three days in jail, after pleading guilty in Marin Municipal Court to a misdemeanor charge of being in a place where marijuana is used.

The place happened to be Marin County Jail.

Beard was originally charged with a misdemeanor count of possessing marijuana after a pot cigarette was found in his pocket March 23 when bailiffs were booking him into jail to serve a 50-day sentence for resisting a public officer in a 1969 scuffle.

Beard pleaded innocent to the pot possessing charge, but changed his plea to guilty to the charge of being in a place where pot is used.

Judge Peter Allen Smith also placed Beard on probation for one year.

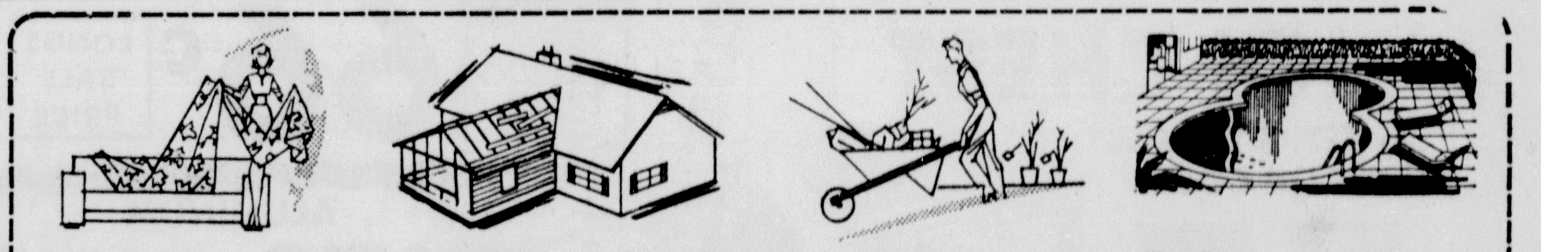
"Everlasting Punishment"



Coming this Saturday in Marin Magazine

Special features you'll enjoy:

Little Cathy Mouchka is a 5-year-old kindergarten student at the Garden School on the Dominican College campus in San Rafael. Like other tykes, she studies, she plays and she creates. But in some ways, Cathy is very different from her schoolmates. She is almost totally deaf and blind. How this courageous little girl is able to attend a regular school and to live a nearly normal life is the subject of a feature story written by Dorothy Gardiner in which the Marin Magazine takes special pride.

There has been a reawakening of interest in the hand crafts. And fine stitchery has been one of the new enthusiasms. Not really new, of course. For earlier generations engaged in elaborate embroidery, crocheting, sewing, etc. Those attending next weekend's Stitchery Faire at the Antiquary in San Anselmo, May 8 and 9, will be reminded of the skill of our ancestors by a special display of a collection owned by Mrs. Neil Burton of Kentfield. It is the work of three generations of her family, all of them interesting as well as gifted personalities.

HOMEMAKER AND PHYSICIAN

Petaluman's 38 Years In Medicine

RAMBLING ROWS of roses, especially miniatures, are a favorite of Mrs. Stanley Seidell, who is known throughout Sonoma County as Dr. Kathleen G. Morris. Retired after 38 years of medical practice she has more time to enjoy the garden flowers and vegetables she has cultivated as a way to relax and unwind at her Petaluma home. Many of her patients fondly recall receiving a bouquet of her miniature rosebuds after the birth of a baby or surgery.

By DYANNE FORTNER

A general practitioner is faced daily with multiple challenges. To meet each demand confidently and maintain besides a rapport with the public is a special aptitude. For 38 years one Petaluma woman did both successfully in addition to fulfilling the role of homemaker. What could replace such a pace after her decision to retire from medicine?

"I'm enjoying my retirement as much as I did my medical career," says Mrs. Stanley Seidell of Petaluma.

Known in professional circles as Dr. Kathleen G. Morris and by her patients as Dr. Kay, she is constantly asked by her male colleagues just how she keeps from being bored. As was her habit when she vacationed from her active practice, she doesn't stay at home to rest but busies herself in something actively different.

SHE AND HER HUSBAND have been active Sierra Club members for more than 20 years and she was quick to interject that she prefers the Sierra for hiking than any European mountains. Trail Riders of the Wilderness was another interest of the pair, but Kay Seidell admits she rode only when she was not in shape to walk.

When they vacation it is usually spent travelling around the world, so that Seidell can pursue his favorite hobby, photography. Their three trips to Africa include a tour of Egypt, Morocco and a photographic safari of Kenya, East Africa. They will possibly make one more Africa trip so that they can visit the almost extinct Bushman tribe.

A typical week's activities now for the retired Dr. Morris include a Great Books Literature discussion each Monday morning and creative stitchery classes on Tuesdays. As often as possible she participates in rounds at the U.C. Hospital on Wednesdays, and Thursday mornings are reserved for a body conditioning class, which includes yoga. Friday mornings she visits Petaluma's Hillcrest Hospital for its rounds.

AN INVESTMENT class, trips to San Francisco to visit its museums and oriental treasures, which she feels is the finest in the West, and cultivation of an exquisite flower garden at her home is sandwiched in between her other interests. Many of her patients can fondly recall receiving a bouquet of miniature rose buds from the doctor's prize collection after the birth of a baby or surgery. The Seidells' vast vegetable garden is another hobby; hundreds of seedlings presently border her brick patio, ready for planting.

Born in Petaluma in 1904, Kathleen Morris' father owned and operated a shoe store on then Main Street. Her mother, a Gallagher from Marin County, was a Marin County native whose father quarried Black Hill mountain for basalt blocks to pave the streets of San Francisco.

Their family physician, interestingly enough, was a woman and Mrs. Seidell fondly recalled the late Dr. Ruth Hoffman's liberal prescriptions of sugar pills. "It was a common practice at the start of the century," said Kay Seidell, "especially as a cure-all for children."

"But it was really a close family friend, the late Dr. John Tierney, who reinforced by desire to go into medicine. He was a local veterinarian and his scientific knowledge and conversations fascinated me," she related. Her family also encouraged her education and after graduation from Petaluma High School she attended the University of California at Berkeley. To supplement her income during her undergraduate years she served as a house manager for a sorority. While in her fourth year of premedical studies she submitted her application to medical school along with 300 other students. Sixty were accepted and of those, 10 were women.

She noted it was obvious competition was keen and scholastic ability was the deciding factor. Recently her medical school class held its 40th reunion. Of the 50 students who finished in the class, six were women.

"My medical school partner and I keep in touch. She is also retired and living in San Francisco.

OF COURSE THERE was discrimination against women in medicine at the time I was in school, but it was the faculty, not the students," she remembered. The late Dr. Frank Lynch, who in Mrs. Seidell's opinion was an outstanding gynecologist, instilled in her the premise that she aspire to be not only as good as any male student but absolutely better. His assistants were all women, a very independent gesture on his part.

"I enjoyed serving my residency with him. He was definitely a leader," she stated.

Her salary while a resident was $50 a month. While interning, however, it was a mere $10 monthly. To supplement this income she took a job as a night librarian. "We weren't awfully busy at night and I could get a lot of reading done," she said. Her studies continued throughout the 38 years she practiced medicine. Each year she traveled around California to participate in seminars to complete 75 hours of study.

Graduating from medical school in 1931, the middle of the depression, Dr. Mrris returned home to become the first Petaluma-born woman to set up practice in the community. With a loan of $1,500 from a sympathetic banker, she established her first office. An early schedule reflected house calls two and three times daily plus night office hours three times a week.

"Eight of 10 pneumonia cases were treated at home during this time because there were no wonder drugs; no penicillin or sulpha," she said. Hospital fees for maternity patients were $50 for a 10-day period. In the depression most families could ill afford this luxury so many babies were delivered at home. "I much preferred to deliver a baby in the surroundings of a hospital," she said.

She also said that she spent a lot of time during the early days of her practice counseling worried and distraught mothers regarding discipline problems of their children. Offering to serve a local nursery school in an advisory capacity, she encouraged these same mothers to participate in the nursery school program. They would have the advantage of observing other children in relation to their own. Another purpose was to introduce these mothers to other women with similar concerns.

"Parents have the problems, not the children," she emphasized.

SHE DID HAVE time for an active social life, and on a blind date she met her future husband, a young business executive from San Francisco.

Asked how she could maintain a growing practice and courtship, she grinned, "I lost a little sleep but when you're young you can go without." Married 35 years, she readily admitted that organization was the key to her success in combining a career and comfortable home.

"My most dependable assistants were three pressure cookers, usually used all at once, and an electric oven with automatic controls. Inevitably I would get home from the office, have everything spread out to fix dinner and the telephone would ring. It was always a 'tragedy'," she laughed.

"When my husband would arrive home, I'd be gone and the kitchen would be a mess. Leaving notes helped to keep the communication between us alive."

Mrs. Seidell also mentioned that nearly every ski trip they took to Cisco Grove during their early marriage was interrupted with a knock at the door and message, "Dr. Kay had a telephone message and is needed in Petaluma to deliver a baby."

"At that time it took five hours to drive back but I made it every time," she proudly recalled, "but Stan was left to hitch a ride back with friends!"

Involved in the Reach to Recovery Program sponsored by the Sonoma County Chapter of the American Cancer Society, Kay Seidell herself experienced two encounters with the disease. Ten years ago she underwent a successful surgery for cancer of the colon and just three years ago received surgical treatment for cancer of a breast. Following a brief rehabilitation period, her capacities to enjoy her favorite out-of-door activities, hiking, swimming and gardening, are not in the least diminished.

A VACATION is not meant to be used at home resting but to do something different, says Dr. Morris, and travel satisfies this urge for her and her husband. During their third trip to Africa they enjoyed a photographic safari in Kenya and came home with a variety of hand-carved animals and objects. Among them are woven grass and wooden animals and a wooden head rest.

WILD HORSES

Cause Fighter Is Soft Spoken

By RUSSELL NIELSEN

RENO, Nev. (UPI)—The name "Wild Horse Annie" brings forth the image of a huskily-built woman in jeans and boots and a gravelly voice blasting any opponent in the manner of Marjorie Main as Tugboat Annie.

But the real "Wild Horse Annie" is a secretary, a middle-aged widow, soft spoken with a quiet, pleasant personality, sometimes almost shy.

Anyone seeing Mrs. Velma Johnston at her insurance office desk would hardly guess the sustained fighting qualities she shows in her efforts to preserve the last of the nation's wild horses . . . some 17,000 mustangs still roaming the West.

Mrs. Johnston's cause is now before Congress last week she testified at length before subcommittees on public lands. Sen. Henry Jackson, D-Wash., and Rep. Walter S. Baring, D-Nev., a former classmate of Mrs. Johnston's, have introduced identical bills putting the mustangs under control of the Department of Interior.

Legislation under consideration would direct the department to set up refuges on which wild horses and burros would be safe from hunters.

Mrs. Johnston got her moniker 22 years ago when she entered a committee room in the Nevada legislature to plead for passage of a bill to protect the dwindling herds.

"Here comes Wild Horse Annie," muttered an opponent. She has been so-called ever since. She was instrumental in getting enactment of a bill which prohibited use of airplanes or other mechanical devices in capturing wild horses or burros in Nevada. Enforcement was left to local agencies, however, and offtimes was lax.

Mrs. Johnston became a national figure when she went to Washington in 1959 to urge passage of similar legislation by Congress. It was approved, but it has not been effective in protecting the mustang, which to many is a symbol of unbridled freedom and part of the romance of the Old West. That's why Mrs. Johnston continues to press for stronger legislation.

She has the support of many senators and representatives who have bent an ear to the current concern about ecology. She has received thousands of letters, many from school children. One boy collected $10 in nickels and dimes and sent a check to support her efforts.

She is president of the International Society for Protection of Mustangs and Burros which has received many contributions and which underwrote her latest trip to the national capital.

Mrs. Johnston first became keenly sensitive to the fate of the animals when in 1950 she saw horses on a crowded van being taken to a slaughterhouse. She investigated and found hunters used planes and trucks to stampede the animals to the point of exhaustion. Then the horses were herded into trucks and shipped to packing plants to be made into dog food. She thought the fate terrible for animals descended from the horses which strayed from the early Spanish expeditions in the Southwest.

About half the estimated 17,000 remaining mustangs are in Nevada.

Ranchers complain that the horses pollute the water holes and run off domestic horses, many of which join the wild bands.

"These wild horses are not the romantic mustangs you read about roaming the hills," said Nevada Assemblyman Norman Glaser, a rancher. "They are ornery, inbred, roman-nosed maverick cayuses and they are detrimental to fish and game individually and our public resources of grass and feed."

The opposition united at the current legislative session to defeat a bill which would have made the wild horse Nevada's state animal.

Mrs. Johnston and other conservationists are riding tall in the saddle, however, and expect to win the final battle.

John Crow, chief administrator of the Bureau of Land Management, saw the trend some time ago and said the agency expects eventually to become custodian of the wild herds.

"We're getting thousands of letters," he said.

Much of the supporting mail Mrs. Johnston and her group receive comes from persons who never even hope to see the wild horses, she said. "They're just happy to know the horses are still out there somewhere in the West. They're a symbol of the freedom on which our country was founded."

A six-year member of the organization, she says "We promote the dairy industry and will cooperate with all dairy, farm and community organizations working for the best interests of dairy ranchers."

Membership is open to all women now or formerly associated with the production or processing of milk.

One of the largest endeavors of the club is its participation in the Dairy Princess Ball set May 8 at the Petaluma Veterans Memorial Building. The Garzelli's daughter Pauline is one of the candidates this year.

North Bay Dairy Women also sponsor a booth each June at the Sonoma-Marin Fair plus organize an annual house tour of ranch homes each fall.

Born in San Francisco, Mrs. Garzelli is a graduate of Petaluma High School and has lived her entire life in Sonoma County. She and her husband, a salesman for Moor-Man Mineral, are the parents of Michael, Pauline, 18, and Tommy, 16. She is employed part time by a rest home in Rohnert Park.

Other officers are Mmes. Carl Haderman, first vice president; Fidele Ferraris, second vice president; Duke Christensen, secretary; Newton Petersen, treasurer; Frank LaFranconi, notification secretary; Joseph Schultz, corresponding secretary, and Donald DeBernardi, publicity.

Easy Dresses

Since the easy slip of a dress is back on the current fashion wave length, Adesso does a bevy of little Ban-Lon beauties. One shirtdress shape was mixed colorfully with a lilac skirt joined to a yellow bodice by a green waistband. Pink collar and sleeves were bandbound in blue and green.

HELEN HELP US!

By HELEN BOTTEL

Maternity Home Offers Aid And Comfort To Pregnant Woman

DEAR HELEN:

I have noticed that you receive letters from distraught girls and women who are pregnant and not married. At times, these girls feel there has to be a drastic, quick solution, and this decision is reached under pressure. Sometimes they feel that they must marry the man or boy when they would not have done so if not pregnant. Some think that abortion is the only answer.

This is unfortunate, because there are in this country some 200 maternity homes offering specialized professional services to the girl or woman who is pregnant. She may be single, divorced, separated or married. These services include medical care, social work counseling, accredited education, group therapy, adoptive placement if desired, recreational programs and, most important, a climate of acceptance. The girl lives with other girls in an atmosphere which is non-judgmental and supportive.

Maternity homes, nationally, have a lower incidence of health problems, and a lower infant mortality rate than is found elsewhere, even among married women.

For the girl who feels that abortion is the only answer, there are a great number of people waiting to adopt babies. Some adoption agencies can no longer take applications from prospective adoptive parents, since there are so few babies. These couples could provide healthy, happy homes for children who might not otherwise know life. — MATERNITY HOME DIRECTOR

DEAR READERS:

I might also add to this excellent letter that many maternity homes have fees based on the girls' ability to pay. — H.

DEAR HELEN:

My husband and I have been married eight years and have two children. We haven't been out alone together since they have been born, and hardly ever out at all, because 1) he doesn't believe in baby-sitters, and 2) he says it's too much hassle taking the kids anywhere.

I love my children. I love my husband, but not as much as I used to, for all this "togetherness" can pull you apart at the seams. He says if you start going out it becomes a habit.

Am I wrong to be terribly tired of these — FOUR WALLS

DEAR F.W.:

No! You've every right to feel stir-crazy.

Staying home constantly can become a habit too — and a bad one. If you can't nudge your husband off his stump, I'd suggest you let HIM baby-sit while you go out. This may change his attitude. — H.

DEAR HELEN:

With Memorial Day coming up, my husband and I had our annual discussion. His first wife has been dead for many years. He still insists on sending money to the cemetery for grave decorations, even though she has several relatives nearby who always take out flowers.

I say this isn't necessary. Who's right? — B.L.

DEAR B.:

You'll be the winner if you lose this argument gracefully. — H.

This column is dedicated to family living, so if you're having kid trouble or just plain trouble, let Helen help you. Address Helen Bottel in care of the Independent-Journal.

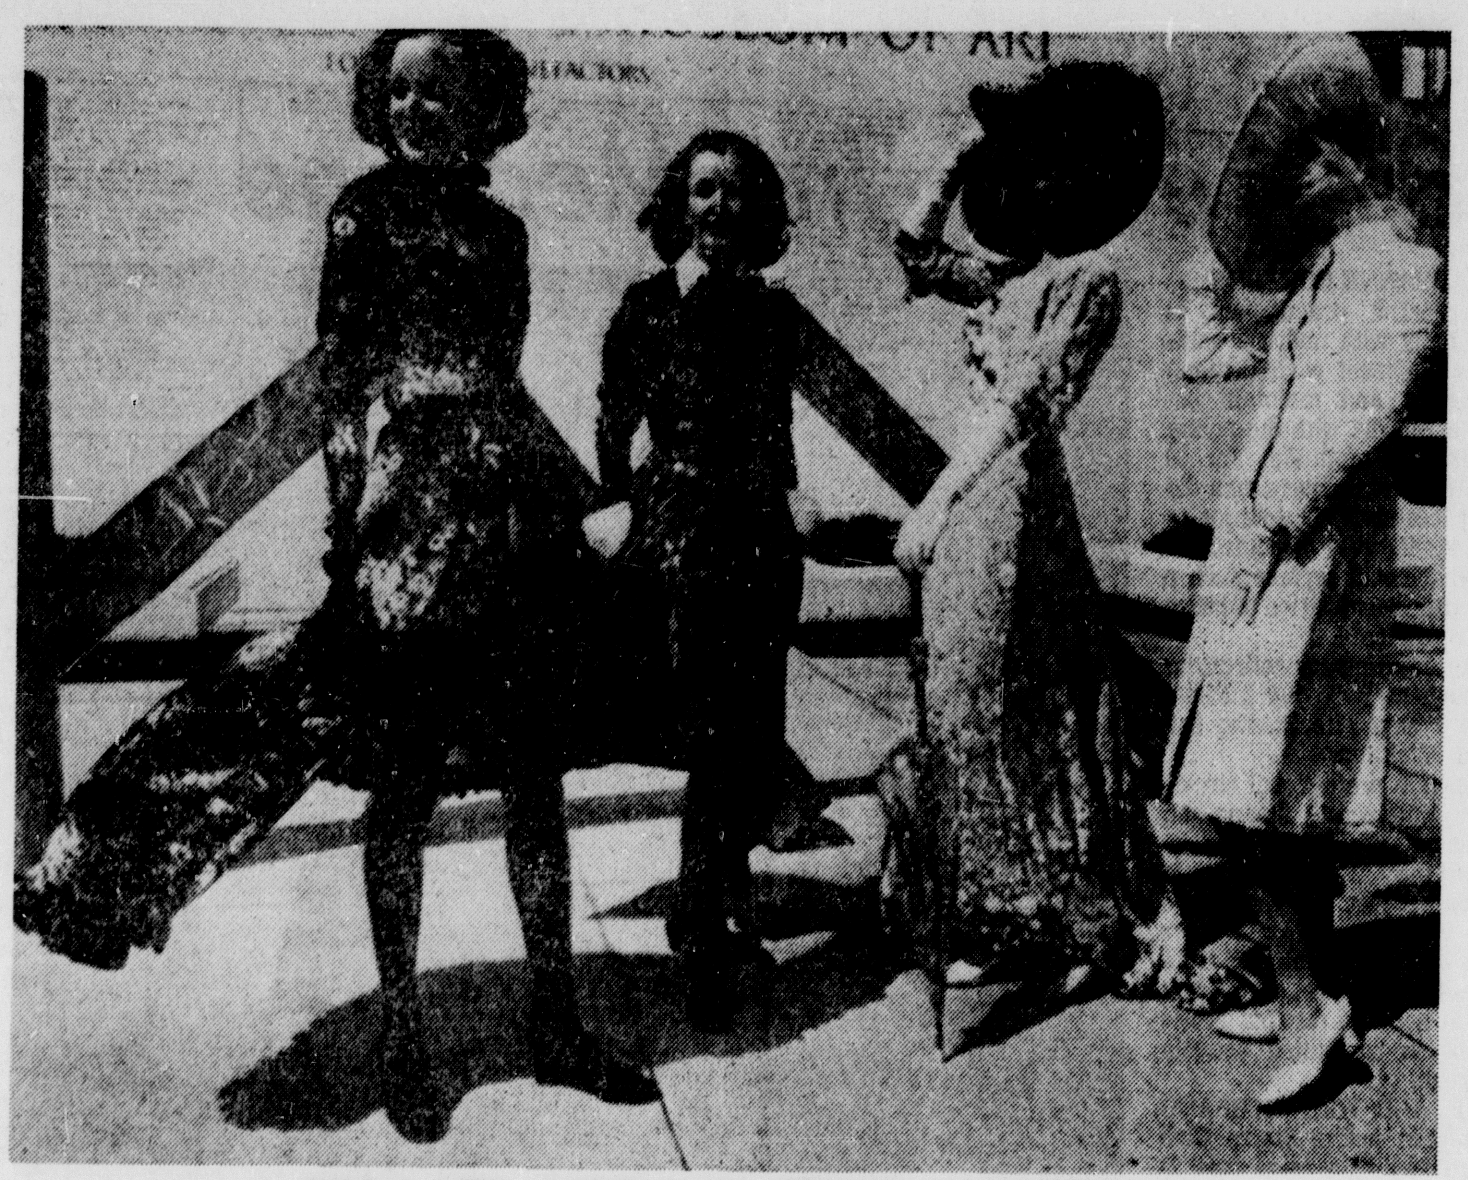
Disposables Are New Way Of Life

A journal for pharmacists, "American Druggist", reports that "make it do, use it up, do without" has become an outmoded philosophy. The new view is "use it once and throw it away." Disposable products are often cheaper and healthier, and the list of available items is constantly growing.

Among the newer items: bedsheets, thermometers, ash trays, nightgowns, undershorts, wash cloths, and ice bags. a disposable hair brush is also under consideration, the publication reports.



BILL BLASS VS. THE MUSEUM

The Los Angeles County Museum of Art provides a look into the past and the future by showing designer Bill Blass' 1971 collection along with some of the museum costumes. At left, Natalie Tirrell shows a modern evolution from her velvet print hot pants to Jane Lynn's velvet print with knickers which point the way to this year's longer warm pants, second from left. Sylvia Mackey wears an Irish crochet gown, circa 1905, from the museum collection, evolving to the 1971 white pique coat with gloves and hat worn by Julie McClay. (UPI Telephoto)

ON BEING BLACK

Misrepresentation Seems Profitable

By SANDRA HAGGERTY

"It's for a school project," the petite teenager said as she smiled shyly. "We're working on our ability to communicate with people. Could I come in and talk with you for about three minutes and see if you don't get mad at me?"

How could one possibly become angry with this picture of youth, dressed neatly and wearing knee socks and tennis shoes? And who wouldn't be interested in helping an enthusiastic youngster with her school project?

Once inside, the girl warmly made friends with my children and my mother.

Now, about this project, I said.

BUT RATHER than talking about her school project, the girl initiated a discussion about the death of her parents. The story may have been true, but she seemed to stress the point about being an orphan.

Again, I asked about the details of this class project.

Casually, she handed over a list of magazine subscriptions she was selling.

I told her I was already subscribing to those magazines I wished to receive.

"Well," she said sweetly, "but a subscription (any subscription) for one of the local school libraries."

I answered that I was already sharing my magazines or written materials of interest with the local schools I come in contact with.

"Well," Miss Representation went on, "buy a subscription of Ebony for me. You can understand why I'd like to receive a black magazine."

No, but do come back again when you're selling something I really need — like food.

"Well," she signed, "would you rate me?" She handed me a slip of paper with spaces for the customer's signature and a rating.

I filled it out.

She looked at it, surprised. "How come you gave me such a good rating when you didn't buy anything?"

I had rated her as being personable, charming and intelligent. In fact, she was just the kind of young girl I would have been pleased to have as my secretary or a companion for my children.

Of course, such tactics are SOP for some of the magazine sbuscription units that tour the cities using young people as salesmen. Their stories are carefully rehearsed and tear-jerker statements — I'm an orphan or I'm struggling my way through school — are judiciously inserted in the sales pitch.

I liked this young girl immediately and would have subscribed to a magazine to help her out — if she had been honest from the get-go.

Unfortunately, far too many people are taken in by a phony sales pitch, and too many goods and services on the market today are not at all what they are asserted to be or do as stated on the label or in the TV commercial.

It is unfortunate that overall misrepresentation has become so profitable.

This is one potential home customer and I'm sure there are many others in which Miss Representation would have found honesty — a trait which is in danger of becoming tarnished, beyond restoration — to be even more profitable.

Cooking Broccoli

When preparing broccoli, cut a thin slice from the bottom of the stalk, then cut lengthwise slits up the stem almost to the flowerets. This allows the vegetable to cook more evenly. Unless it is done, the flowerets tend to get cooked tender ahead of the stem.

Secretarial Forum Slated May 14-15

"Secretaries Forum '71" will be held May 14 and 15 at the Sir Francis Drake Hotel in San Francisco, sponsored by the University of California Extension.

Session speakers will be Marian Ash, editor of the Sacramento newsletter, "Skirting the Capitol," which covers news of legislation of special interest to women; Raymond E. Miles, associate professor of business administration at the University of California at Berkeley, and Mina Johnson, professor of office administration at San Francisco State College.

Their topics will be "Femininity vs. Reality," "The Woman's Role in Management," and "Stretching Your Talents."

Sessions will run from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. both days.

Information may be obtained from the Daytime Program, University of California Extension Center, 55 Laguna Street, San Francisco.

Cause Of Some Mental Retardation

Severe malnutrition of either the mother, or her baby while in early stages of development, has been found to be the cause of mental retardation, according to the National Society for Medical Research.

The society maintains that an adequate diet from the mother's own birth through growth and reproduction is of utmost importance for both mother and baby.

Dr. Brown's topic will be "Everything You Have Always Wanted to Know About Your Child But Have Never Had Time To Ask."

Sometimes The Child Is Forgotten

Baby-sitting is important.

Parents want and need a night out, and teen-agers need a way to earn spending money and also to have a way of showing they are able to accept responsibility.

But the most important person in the arrangement is the child, and his happiness and safety must be taken into consideration.

It is imperative that the baby-sitter know either how to reach the parents or what to do in case of emergencies. Parents should provide the sitter with the telephone number where they can be reached, and it is a good idea for the sitter to know the name and number of the child's doctor.

IF THE parents do not do this the sitter should not hesitate to ask. It is also the sitter's responsibility to ask the parents for explicit instructions regarding any schedule to be followed if the child is not asleep when the parents leave or in the case of an infant who may require a feeding or change of diapers.

Good rules for sitter to follow are:

Learn your way around the house before the family leaves so you don't become confused if the child calls or cries out.

Teen-agers should let their own families know where they are and when to expect them home and arrange in advance to be escorted home if after dark.

Do not entertain friends unless you have received permission.

BEWARE OF small children near windows, stairs, light plugs, electrical cords, stoves or radiators, and never leave a child alone in the bathtub.

Be sure a child cannot reach matches or poisonous substances of any kind.

Keep small and sharp objects out of reach.

Cancel a baby sitting engagement if you are ill or feel that you are catching a cold.

Never answer the door unless you are certain that you know who is there.

Parents can make the job easier for the babysitter by telling the sitter approximately what time they plan to return.

SHOW THE sitter where and how to regulate the heat.

If the child has any unusual fears, habits, likes or dislikes discuss them with the sitter.

Be certain the sitter knows what privileges the child is allowed regarding television, phonograph, telephone, food and visitors.

Both parents and babysitters should remember that babysitting is a business arrangement. If the sitter is mature enough to accept the responsibility of taking care of a child he should be mature enough to dicuss money matters and not be embarrassed to discuss wages.

BEFORE HIRING a sitter parents should check references, and, no matter how good they are, meet the sitter and look for signs of maturity, responsibility and a genuine interest in children.

A teen-ager should never go into a home without meeting the family and knowing something about the people he will be working for.

Personal impressions are important, but the child's well-being should receive the greatest consideration.

WHAT TWA DID FOR COACH...

Last Fall TWA introduced Ambassador Service, a whole new way to fly for the coach passenger.

There's the new Twin Seat. If the plane's not crowded, it can be three across, two across or even a couch.

You'll find a choice of three international meals. With wines, champagnes and liqueurs from around the world.[1]

You'll find a choice of two movies on every movie flight[1]. One for general audiences, one for mature.

You'll find new carpets, new colors, new fabrics, new hostess uniforms, new everything.

The only problem was, first class started to look dull by comparison, so...

TWA NOW DOES FOR 1ST CLASS.

...we took out those old overstuffed first class seats. And put in all new overstuffed first class seats.

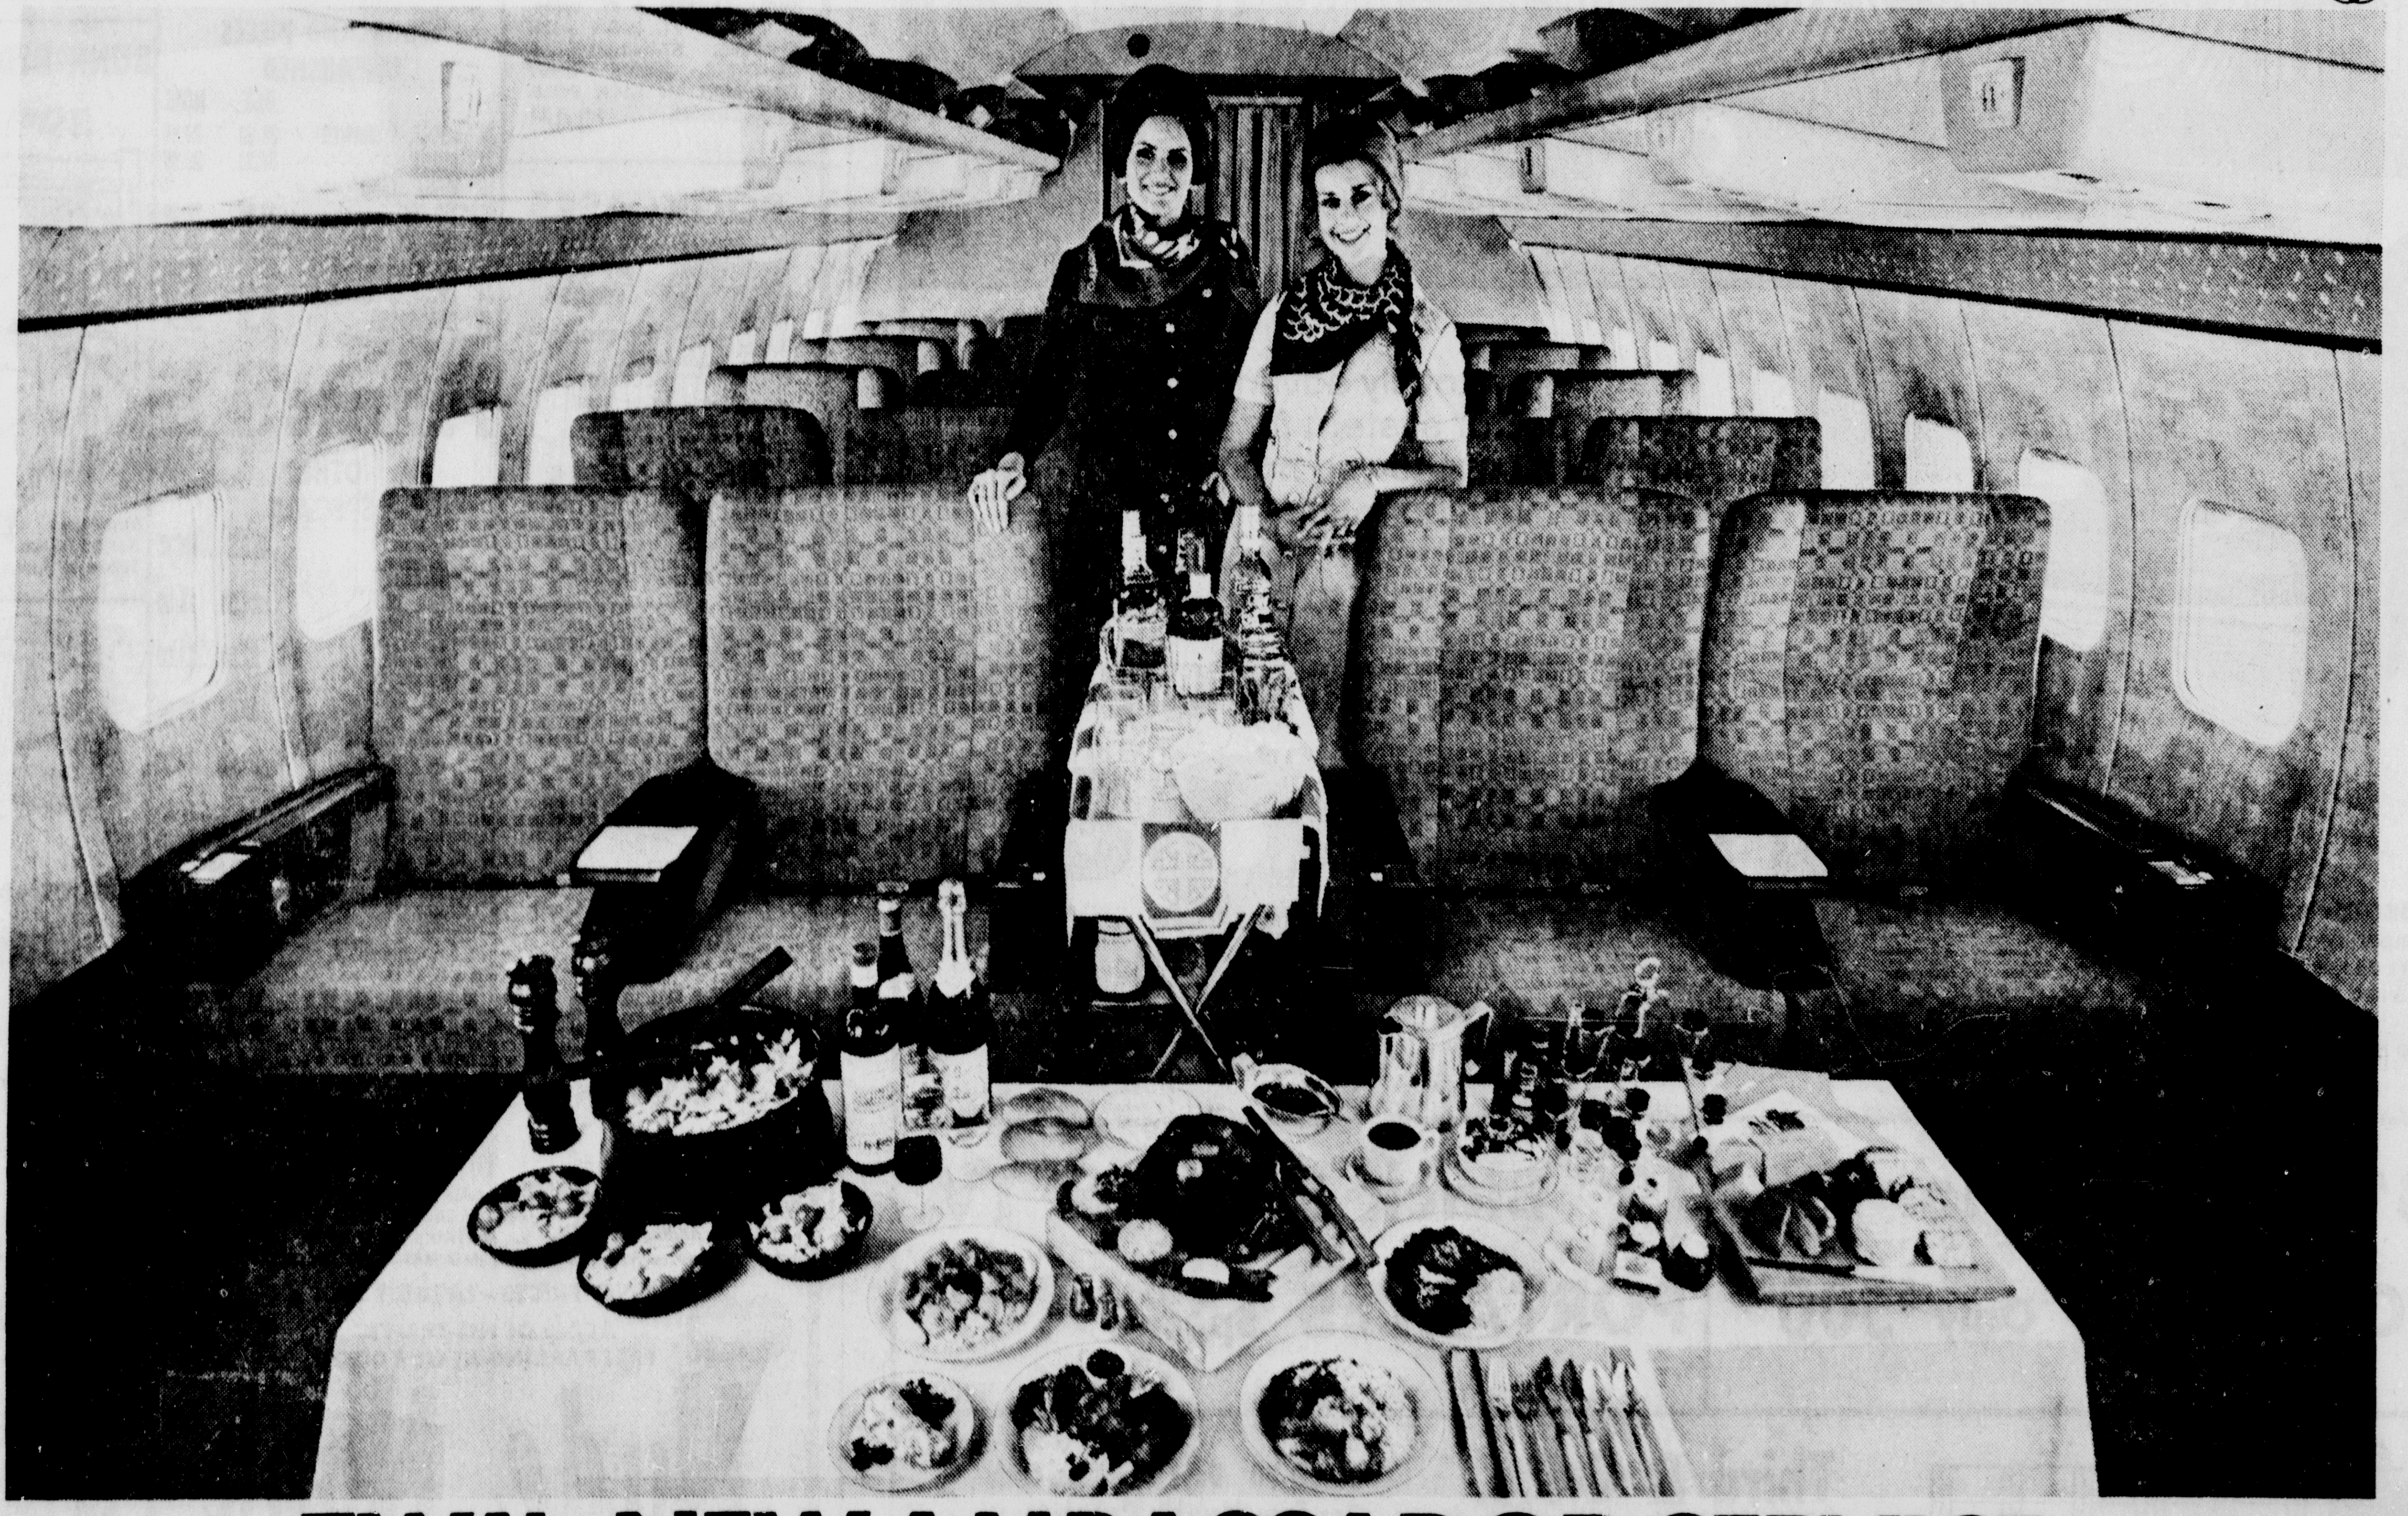
We put in a choice of five meals, the best you'll find on any airline, anywhere.

After dinner, settle back, and we present a choice of two movies on every movie flight. One for general audiences, one for mature.

And on top of this (and below it and all around it) you'll find new colors, new carpets, new fabrics, new everything.

Next time you're flying across the United States take a TWA Ambassador Flight from San Francisco or Oakland[2] Int'l. Airport.

Coach or first class, nobody else gives you anything like it.



TWA's NEW AMBASSADOR SERVICE.

A WHOLE NEW WAY TO FLY TO NEW YORK, NEWARK, BOSTON, PHILADELPHIA, BALTIMORE, WASHINGTON, COLUMBUS, OR CHICAGO.

SKATING INTO IMAGINARY ORBIT

Blood Bank To Celebrate With A Life Redeemed

A birthday cake, flowers and an active 14-year-old boy will be on hand at 1 p.m. Monday as the Marin Blood Center celebrates its 10th anniversary.

Carnations and cake will be given to the donors at the center at 506 Fourth Street, San Rafael.

The active boy is Lee Shinabarger of 110 Elm Avenue, San Anselmo. However, Lee was not always so active. For the first years of his life, he seemed doomed to a life of inactivity. All that was changed in 1962 when with the aid of blood donated by Marin County citizens, he became one of the first persons to undergo open heart surgery.

Lee, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gene Shinabarger, rides his bicycle on his Independent-Journal route. He plays ball with the Little League, plays tennis and basketball, and swims.

During the 10 years since the center opened on May 1, 1961, more than 53,000 pints of blood have been donated by Marin County residents.

The center is an auxiliary of Irwin Memorial Blood Bank of San Francisco, sponsored by the Marin Medical Society. Dr. James R. Dahl of the Marin Medical Society, will also be on hand for the opening.

Open House Set For Cooperative Nursery School

The San Anselmo Cooperative Nursery School will hold its annual open house and registration for the fall semester, from 9:30 a.m. to 11:30 a.m. May 8 at the school, 24 Myrtle Lane.

Interested parents may take their preschool youngsters to explore the facilities, according to open house-cho-chairmen Susan Stuart and Linda Gomez.

The school's directors, Katherine Buettner and Anne Falkenberg will anwer questions and demonstrate techniques used in the program, which is sponsored by the College of Marin.

A limited scholarship program is available for pupils.

MOTION PICTURE GUIDE

The Marin Motion Picture and Television Council provides these ratings of movies now being shown in Marin County. The council's findings are from the California and National Parent-Teacher Association magazines and the Parent's Magazine unless otherwide noted. More complete reviews may be obtained by calling the San Rafael Library.

FAMILY

"Italian Job" — A wacky exercise in grandiose crime, farcical and amusing. A computer is used to mastermind a huge robbery. Very fast paced, wild and imaginative nonsense.

"Tora, Tora, Tora" — Impressive dramatization of the attack on Pearl Harbor, seen from both the American and Japanese point of view. Excellent cast, amazing photography, well worth seeing.

"Wild Child" — Excellent semi-documentary based on case history about the problems of teaching an 11-year-old boy to live with people after living as an animal in the forest of France.

ADULTS AND TEENS

"Butch Cassidy and the Sun Dance Kid" — A deft sophisticated comedy about two bandits. Imaginative camera work, wonderful score, witty performances. Very violent ending.

"Incredible Twoheaded Transplant" — A medical student grafts the head of a homicidal maniac to the shoulders of a retarded brute. Fare will appeal to horror buffs.

"Lawrence of Arabia" — Reissue of magnificent production telling the story of T. E. Lawrence, an English soldier who led the revolt of Bedouins against the Turks during World War I.

"Little Big Man" — Excellent tragicomic history of Indian-white relations as recalled by a 121-year-old ex-gunfighter. It spoofs several frontier myths. Amazing performance by Dustin Hoffman.

"Love Story" — Film is pure romantic escapism and an old fashioned simple love story. Acting is exceptional and some tasteless language mars an otherwide beautiful portrayal.

"Patton" — Excellent characterization by George C. Scott who portrays an indomitable spirit that could achieve its destiny only in wartime. Strong film makes use of violence, profanity.

"Wuthering Heights" — Absorbing new version of Emily Bronte's classic tale of love, hate and revenge. Beautiful moody photography.

BORDERLINE
(Most sources say Adults Only)

"Alice's Restaurant" — Episodic treatment of true life happening in a commune. Tells of uninhibit sex life and indulgence in "pot" harming only themselves, yet searching for happiness.

"Derby" — A documentary about the roller derby, one of the roughest professional sports. Film deals with personal lives of the men and women who participate.

ADULTS ONLY

"Diary of a Mad Housewife" — Acidly funny look at the disintegration of a modern marriage in New York. Good comedy with sex and dialogue that is very frank.

"Gimme Shelter" — Documentary of the free concert in Altamont with "Rolling Stones" and the murder that occurred. The language used, violence, nudity and sex shown will make some people wince.

"I Love My Wife" — Stylish comedy about a doctor who satisfies his desires indiscriminately Frank sex scenes and cursing.

"M.A.S.H." — Nothing escapes the mockery of this ribald, blood soaked comedy of wartime Korea. Several scenes are as gruesome as they are funny. Sex, nudity and cursing make this a very adult satire.

Government Oppression Peril Right To Know

"There was a time when excellence in reporting received awards. Now it is just as likely to draw a subpoena."

That bitter comment came recently from Julian Goodman, president of National Broadcasting Co.

"Never has the subpoena been used as viciously, as irresponsibly and as often against freedom of the press as it has this year."

That was contained in a report of the American Society of Newspaper Editors' freedom of information committee, presented at the society's annual convention.

BROADCASTING AND PUBLISHING both are faced with what amounts to government attempts at suppression. Broadcasting is by far the more vulnerable to such attacks, since every radio and television station must be licensed by the government. But both forms of mass communication are menaced; and a threat to either is a threat to both.

The extent to which government censorship has imposed itself on the broadcasters was made frighteningly obvious last week when NBC cancelled a speech by former Interior Secy. Walter J. Hickel, on commercially sponsored time, because it was "too controversial."

The network had agreed to carry the address, entitled, "Wanted: a New Breed of Leader," on 234 stations. But after Ben Raub, an NBC attorney, read an advance copy, it cancelled the agreement. Raub, like network president Goodman, was afraid of that subpoena.

CENSORSHIP IS IMPLICIT also in new "guidelines" issued by the Federal Communications Commission warning radio stations against playing records which promote the use of drugs. (One of several lawsuits challenging this raises the question of whether "Tea for Two" might be barred from the air.) And censorship is at least hinted in the FCC's new requirement that broadcasting stations renew their licenses annually, instead of every three years. But it is exposed most nakedly in the attempts by the Justice Department to subpoena notes and records of TV, radio and newspaper reporters and photographers.

Capital sources deny piously that there is any attempt at censorship. But when the vice president publicly berates the networks for alleged distortions in newscasts and documentaries, there is no suggestion from elsewhere in the administration that it is possible that Spiro Agnew himself might be guilty of distortions. And when the Justice Department attempts to violate the well-established right of reporters to protect their news sources, no one in the White House interposes a word in defense of freedom of the press.

TO NBC'S PRESIDENT Goodman, the attempted suppression has become Orwellian. FCC claims it is "expanding freedom" by its new rules and guidelines. Says Goodman, wryly: "Restriction is freedom. Stepping back is going forward. Supervision promotes independence."

"The end result," declares Vincent T. Wasilewski, president of the National Association of Broadcasters, "will be that the government will inform a station what program it must broadcast, how often and in what time period."

The indications are that the government would like to apply to newspapers the same kind of restrictions it can apply to radio and TV stations through its licensing powers. Unable to do that, it must depend on the attacks of Spiro Agnew and company.

It is time to call a halt to this sort of thing. Oppression has no place in a democratic government. The tactics of dictatorship cannot be brooked in a free country.

AFFAIRS OF STATE

In California, 'Nothing's Too Good For Our Legislators'

By HENRY C. MACARTHUR

SACRAMENTO (CNS) — A few years ago, the disclosure that a state legislator made a sum of money through a real estate deal, or even stood to make a profit on an investment connected remotely with legislative business, would have caused more than lifted eyebrows.

Such a disclosure would have provided the motif for legislative investigations to determine whether the legislator was acting outside the law, or even acting in an immoral manner.

But this isn't so today. The prevailing attitude is, "Who cares? And even if it's so, who's going to prove it?"

THIS HAPPENS to be the case in an attempt to connect Pauline Davis, D-Portola, with possible profit on a real estate purchase at Lake Davis, an artificial lake in Plumas County which was named by the state legislature for Mrs. Davis's late husband.

The deceased husband was prominent in fish and game and conservation activities, so when the time came to name the Plumas County lake, the legislators chose to call it after their late colleague, a happening which is not infrequent in legislative procedure.

The fact that his widow, who was elected to succeed him and has been elected regularly to the post ever since his death, chose to invest some money in a land holding around the lake would seem to be her private business, and also the business of her legislative friend who similarly invested in the lake property.

NO ACCUSATION of illegality in the deal was made, although there were inferences in the disclosures that "influence" may have played a part in the legislators' obtaining the property at a good price. But anyone wanting to show that Mrs. Davis sold a vote for a piece of land would have to go a long way to prove such an allegation.

So Mrs. Davis is guilty of nothing, apparently, except the desire to acquire some recreational land, and possibly turn some of it for a profit, a course followed by thousands of citizens all through the state.

THE PITIFUL PART of the picture is that legislators find it necessary to engage in extra-curricular activities to add to the already generous pay, allowances, expense accounts, fringe benefits in the form of ultra-generous pensions, virtually free automobiles, several offices, all manned with experienced help, occasional foreign trips available to some members, airplane tickets, and so on, ad infinitum.

Add to these goodies the fact that legislators have free meals available whenever they want to call in a lobbyist, and free hunting and fishing trips on occasion, paid for by the lobbyists.

MRS. DAVIS IS NOT the first legislator to profit or contemplate profiting by a real estate deal. In fact, her deal was picayune in comparison to some.

In fact, the attitude of the public these days is to give the legislators anything they want, and provide the greatest leeway for them to profit on the side.

The voters of Mrs. Davis's far-flung legislative district will decide next year whether her real estate deal is subject to question. Odds are that they will pay no attention to it.

Rap Session Contest Letters

The Independent-Journal today presents the first "Rap Session" contest letters, discussing Youth and the Establishment. The contest will continue until May 24, with a prize of $75 offered for the best letter from each of four age groups: 14-17, 18-21, 22-30, and over 30 years old. Your letters are invited.

Community Rapping The Only Solution

I think that the only way that we can overcome the generation gap is by rapping amongst ourselves. I know that we can have family conversations and such, but we need more. We need to have whole communities in which we can all discuss and overcome this one terrible gap. We can all get together and solve all of our problems with each other. Maybe we can have one special TV channel that discusses the problems of the generation gap. We can also send letters to this community (if we have one) of recommendation on solutions of the gap.

Forget Yourself: Listen To Your Kids

I just heard the story of the San Francisco police sergeant and his son who argued with the result that the father was shot by the son. The father had previously turned the son in for possession of marijuana. He evidently felt the law was worth enforcing; the son obviously disagreed. This story is an example of the complete lack of understanding between the young and their parents that exists in too many homes today. If members of a single family cannot relate to each other, what chance is there for love and peace to prevail among all of us in our relationships with other people?

I feel the problems between the youth and the over-30s have got to be solved in the home. If parents would stay home and listen to their kids, the first step toward true communication and understanding will begin. Forget the X-rated film at the Lark; forget the alcoholic and nicotine haze you get at the neighbors'; forget your volunteer work that feeds your ego and gains you recognition; forget working so many extra hours to earn money to buy your third radiation-producing super-duper color TV; forget your damn self, and listen to your kids. You will find them so intelligent, so full of compassion for the oppressed, so full of enthusiasm, and so filled with the same idealism that you had when you were young and lost in an effort to conform. Don't make them lose their idealism! Praise them and love them for it. It has given you the freedom to wear your bushy side burns and your bell bottom pants. It may bring you a pollutant-free planet, equality of races and sexes, world peace, and your own dignity.

Mrs. PAT GRABRIAN

San Rafael.

To Over-30s, Youth: Seek Understanding

To the over-30s: Do you sincerely want the exchange of better understanding with the youth?

For those that do: First, I suggest you present a genuine warmth for the youth. A warmth of genuine concern, interest, action, and respect for whatever their developed or undeveloped values may be.

You must mass out that "particular favoritism" for only some of the youths. Dismiss that "jealousy" carried toward the youth. Cease referring to the youth as "incompetent." Do away with the "false protection" for the youths and allow the youth to not only stumble but fall, once.

A genuine acceptance will introduce "adulterations." Harmony then makes her entrance and Hostility will take its exit!

It's not the youth that is responsible for the over-30s, but it is the over-30s that is responsible for the youth. Learn to value the young, also, instead of demanding them to value you.

Over-30s, broaden your wisdom. Get out your dictionary. Find the word "welcome." Now apply the definition to someone besides yourselves!

I say to the youth: It's not too late, understanding those other than ourselves. It is only the youth that understands later, and growth understands better.

Question yourself. Could a better understanding with over-30s be healthy for me?

Learn to value your health also, and always express how profoundly equal is your energy; and in the strainage, allow the division of directions, where those energies must reach, include a better understanding with everyone.

"It's never too late for the better or the best."

Youth, Adults Must Both Get Involved

We are extremely fortunate to live in a comparatively open society where there are few bans on self-expression and differing viewpoints. Because of this, many of our problems are a lot more visible to everyone. So, also solutions can be provided more readily. This is both a hazard and an asset.

To accomplish change in our society, youth and adults should use the tools which our open society has available.

1. Publicity — Television, newspapers, magazines, radio, demonstrations, pickets, assembly, conversation-dialogue.
2. Action — Vote, political contributions (time, ideas, money), social contributions (volunteer programs, church programs, government programs).

Get involved. Get interested. Do something more than just living, working, and existing.

Adults resent youth because they feel that youth has the time to get involved whereas the adults never had that time when they were young and feel they don't have it now.

Parents must take the time to get involved with their kids and the community. Involvement is the name of the game. So, don't be a bystander. Pick something you like and jump in. Express yourself. Do something. Don't just stand there. Our country has room for everyone's opinions and ideas. Only by becoming involved will we keep it that way.

DO IT NOW!

Generation gap here to stay?
That's what many people say —
But is it true I ask of you?
Now think a bit, analyze it.
Age is not an unchanging spot.
People dissent, problems are met.
People involved, problems are solved.
So jump in — begin — begin!
Begin something. Change something.
Retain something. Gain something.
That is how, the time is Now.
So don't procrastinate — regenerate!

OVER 30

Has Youth Seen Honest Fortitude?

I am a 64½-year-old grandmother! I think the youth of today is truly wonderful, "super-dooper" I used to tell my tiny tots in nursery school.

They are super-smart, and super-hurt, and we or our children are the ones who have done the hurting (of these beautiful people). My grandson, Steve, huge, blond and handsome is smart, honest and confused. And my child and her husband have sincerely tried to be "good parents." But — and I write this with a bleeding heart — like so many other "over 30," I truly believe they were too busy "searching for their own identity" and gouging for that damned "almighty dollar." Poor babies!

"God's in His heaven, all's right with the world." OK. So preach it from the pulpit — and those young people are in church and Sunday school — and then take another pill, a "pepper-upper" or a "downer" or a vitamin or a reducing pill or whatever. Tell me, has their generation ever seen a honest case of "good old American intestinal fortitude" — guts, to quote my dear, wonderful, dead 87-year-old mother?

I've a beautiful 17-year-old granddaughter, and she's a beautiful person, she has character and guts, but she didn't learn it from her parents' generation! Maybe from mine.

Russ Step Up Space Program While United States Cuts Back

WASHINGTON — Space exploration is entering the era of the commonplace.

The United States and the Soviet Union are showing that they now have the capabilities of doing almost anything in outer space and going almost anywhere — even to distant planets — if they try hard enough.

The Russians have excelled in unmanned flights.

The Americans have excelled in manned flights, thrice to the moon with more trips in prospect.

But at the very moment the United States is cutting back its NASA budget the Soviets are stepping theirs up.

They are devoting four times as much of their gross national product to space as we are.

They are launching more spacecraft per year than the United States.

THE RUSSIANS are currently spending as much on space as NASA was at its peak two years ago — and are keeping it up while we are considerably curtailing.

It is estimated that Russia is putting at least 2 per cent of its GNP into its space program while the United States is spending only .5 of one per cent of its larger GNP.

Momentum is still with the United States but there is no assurance it will remain that way. During the first 13 years of the Space Age the experts credit the United States with 42 "firsts" and the U.S.S.R. with 31. They break down as follows:

	U.S.	U.S.S.R.
Spaceflight and propulsion	7	12
Manned flights	8	8
New scientific knowledge	16	8
Technological applications	7	2
Auxiliary systems	4	1
Total	42	31

What next?

THE RUSSIANS are projecting a very comprehensive program for exploiting space technology, including exploration and settlement (if possible) of the planets. Moscow plans its own manned landings on the moon and, as illustrated by its latest experimental dockings of Salyut and Soyuz 10, is getting nearer to creating earth orbital stations for a variety of new ventures.

The Soviet Academy of Sciences pictures a future space station as a hub to which up to four Soyuz craft can dock like spokes in a wheel. From this beginning the Russians foresee large and permanent orbital stations on which many astronauts, scientists and technicians can carry on research. They will also be used for orbital assembly and launch devices for sending manned expeditions to the moon and the planets.

The United States is also projecting an ambitious sky-laboratory with a life support system capable of serving a large number of people for substantial periods of time.

But the main new element in the American program for the '70s will be the development of a reusable, low-cost shuttle space craft to act as a ferry from earth to orbit and return. Each shuttle could be flown 100 or more times.

THE USE OF SHUTTLE craft would soon reduce the cost of manned space flight considerably and in the end, experts say, would drop them to a mere one per cent of what they are today. Thus the cost of an Apollo manned flight would be cut from $400 million to $4 million.

At such prices future space exploration becomes a very profitable national investment.

In the next five years U.S. space craft will orbit Mars twice, another Mariner will fly around Venus and on to Mercury. They plan to explore the Asteroid belt and approach Venus. The Russians are talking about flying to the giant planets, even to comets and planetoids.

Apparently anything man can think of he can do —if he applies himself.

BY NO MEANS NEUTRAL

Marchers Don't Influence Nixon — But the Polls Do

By ERNEST B. FURGURSON

WASHINGTON — When the organizers of the spring series of be-ins here in the capital were soliciting their first press clipping, I belittled them. Not because they were not going to draw a crowd; you could draw a crowd with Lawrence Welk these sunny, breezy days along the Mall. But because Richard Nixon so clearly was going to anticipate them by stepping up troop withdrawals and otherwise proving that the war is indeed winding down.

Wherewith a lady in California, whose signature I cannot decipher, wrote me a thought-provoking post card, as follows:

"If Nixon reads of the peace movement plans to step up activities, and he causes casualty figures to dip and numbers of troops home to rise, then the peace movement is making itself felt, you ninny!"

THE LADY EXPRESSES herself as pithily as I would like to. But she assumes, as both the well-behaved and the exhibitionist marchers do, that the President makes his war decisions on the basis of how many bodies can crowd downtown Washington on an April Saturday afternoon and how many Viet Cong flags can be flown from how many generals' statues, and how many benches around the Washington Monument can be broken up for firewood during an all-night rock concert.

The assumption is shared by some of us sideliners, too. The Washington Post, for example, laid on five stories and two pictures about the march on page 1, plus all the news holes from page 14 through 23 inside, a total of about 30 columns of space on a Sunday morning. Of course, you have to allow for the fact that for them it was a home-town event.

But from any less besieged viewpoint, the movement is beginning now to qualify for a paraphrase of Spiro Agnew on slums or Ronald Reagan on redwoods: When you've seen one demonstration, you've seen them all.

TRUE, THE BACKDROP was different. This time the masses converged at the foot of Capitol Hill, so the telephoto lenses brought the 19-foot bronze figure of Thomas Crawford's Freedom on the Capitol dome up tight against the longhairs waving the enemy flag from atop the Peace Monument.

True, too, there were a few more legislators who came out to say a kind word for the demonstrators. This time they didn't have so far to walk. But still they were a minority handful.

Yet when all this was taking place last week end, the one man with the authority to make a peremptory change in the nation's Indochina policy was enjoying the redbuds and early dogwood up at Camp David. And today, when the more radical complainants gather to execute their thing, he plans to be at Camp Pendleton, in San Diego County, Calif., welcoming some marines home from the war.

If last week's march had brought 100,000 more protesters to the capital than it did, or 100,000 fewer, it would not have altered the fact that those marines were coming home. Altogether, 265,000 troops have been brought back from Vietnam now. That is more people than came to town for what was intended to be the biggest antiwar rally of all.

MR. NIXON DOES NOT have to hang around the White House of a week end and watch the festivities to find out how the nation feels about the war.

If he is not the most scrupulous student of public opinion polls since Lyndon Johnson went home to the ranch, surely that person is somewhere on his White House payroll, reporting to him. And the polls have shown a steady rise in the percentage of Americans who want out of Vietnam and a steady slump in those who think Mr. Nixon is handling the war well.

A Gallup Poll in October, 1969, showed 57 per cent in favor of withdrawing by the end of last year. Still, two months later, another check recorded 65 per cent endorsing the President's handling of the issue. Last November, 61 per cent wanted out of Vietnam by the end of this year. But this March only 37 per cent approved Mr. Nixon's conduct of the war.

A Christian Science Monitor survey in February found 62 per cent supporting a unilateral U.S. pullout — but, significantly for the President, the marchers and my lady correspondent from California, the same poll showed 57 per cent of Americans were unsympathetic to demonstrations lumped as "student unrest."

The point is that we have in the White House, or at Camp David or Camp Pendleton, a man who is such an analyst of public opinion that he is predictable more for his followship than his leadership. Such a man sees writ large and unavoidably what he must do. So if we weren't having such nice weather, the marchers in their thousands would do just as well to stay indoors and watch the troops coming home on television.

Who Is Bill Hall? It Turns Out He's Been Free Some Time

Driving through Mill Valley, one still can see tattered remnants of green bumper stickers plastered to telephone poles, fences and walls. In sign-concious Mill Valley, the bright strips stand out like fluorescent signs.

A few stickers have weathered the winter's rain and wind and their legend still can be read: "Free Bill Hall, keep Mill Valley free."

With many leaders of alternative political organizations in jails and prisons, slogans imploring their freedom are common. They urge the release of, among others, Angela Davis, Bobby Seale and Huey Newton.

But Bill Hall? And why should his release help keep Mill Valley free?

WILLIAM REED HALL, it turns out, is free — for the moment. He goes to trial next month in Marin Superior Court on a charge of possession of one ounce of marijuana.

He was arrested July 10, 1970, by an agent of the Marin County Drug Abuse Bureau who said he saw Hall sharing a marijuana Cigarette with two young girls. The agent said he found a lid of grass in Hall's pocket.

The speed of justice being what it is, Hall still awaits trial on the charge. Meanwhile's he's out on bail.

After months of seeing Hall's name on bumper stickers, I wasn't sure he really existed. But he does — I spoke with him this week at his Mill Valley home, where he was trimming the hedges in his back yard.

And the bumber stickers? "I was surprised when I got out of jail and saw them," he said, brushing clippings out of his hair.

"A friend of mine who runs a bumper strip operation thought it would be fun to print some for me. Maybe they'll be valuable some day."

DIRECTORS OF the Tiburon Sanitary District, rebuffed in their attempts to remain independent of a special district set up to study waste disposal in Southern Marin, have installed a pilot treatment plant designed to turn sewage outfall into clear water.

The board ordered the equipment at its Paradise Drive treatment plant even though the San Francisco Bay Regional Water Quality Control Board has refused to approve an application for federal funds for the project unless the Tiburon district joins the special Southern Marin district.

The board has made its position clear — it wants to convert its entire plant to the new activated carbon process rather than take part in "just another study" to determine how to dispose of waste.

But the regional board, which must approve loan applications before they can be submitted to the federal government, also made its positioc clear — if Tiburon doesn't join the district, its application will be ignored.

Now the district has gone ahead and set up the pilot plant, a complicated maze of tubes, chambers, dials and wires.

Here's hoping the members of the regional board will see that tiburon really wants to clean up San Francisco Bay!

COUNTY COMMENT

By WILLIAM D. (BILL) FUSSELMAN

Supervisors Now Must Face Genuine 'Political Necessity'

Last week, when I heard over KTIM on Tuesday that Alan Bruce had resigned, I determined to say very little if anything regarding him. However, there have been several items in the press which I must refer to while commenting on the county government situation. Following are several quotes from those items.

At a dinner meeting of the Marin Council for Civic Affairs, Bruce was the invited guest. Mrs. Margaret B. Azevedo, the chairman, paid him high tribute for courage and competance. Bruce thanked them for celebrating his liberation. Supervisors Michael Wornum, Peter Arrigoni and Arnold Baptiste were also in attendance.

Wornum expressed regret that "political necessity" had forced the supervisors to press for Bruce's resignation. (This "political necessity" will be referred to from time to time in the following weekly columns.) He also said "The job you did for the county can never be fully repaid."

FROM ANOTHER ITEM: Bruce: "I have no regrets for what I have done. I have had to cope with a relative lack of leadership and initiative in the board which I have not enjoyed at all. There has been an abdication on their part of responsibility without an abdication of authority."

Again — Bruce: "The department head . . . makes proposals that look good to him, but his proposals should be tempered by an administrative generalist who sees them in the overall context . . . The final tempering of judgment must come from the board of supervisors."

Yet another quote — McInnis: ". . . your refusal to accept graciously the policy determination of the elective forum."

IT MIGHT BE a good idea to clip this column and save it, as it will make it easier to follow references I will be making. The county government for the past decade had not been what one would be inclined to write home about. I hope to make observations and comments that will cause some serious thinking — thinking that will result in a more normal, down-to-earth operation with a realistic cost.

"Political necessity" that Wornum was concerned about is still around and is not going to vanish by Bruce's resignation. The public is in no mood to accept halfway changes that will simply be more convenient for the board members.

Three seats on the board of supervisors will be up for grabs in just a year and a year rolls around mighty fast. At the moment the rating of the board is not so good. Bruce's parting shots have not helped their image even a little bit.

Unlike Washington, D.C., and Sacramento, Brasilia is not the capitol of Marin. It is the administration building and the hall of justice. The amount of legislation produced there is minimal and only effective in the unincorporated areas. The grand manner of administration, which is effective only in a third of the county, is somewhat out of balance.

WHEN I READ that Supervisor Arrigoni had put in the agenda for Tuesday's board meeting the immediate hiring of a new administrator and then later heard that it had been continued for one week, it seemed that it would be better to discuss some things that I had intended for later.

Bruce resigned as of July 1. People feel that the better part of the next two months should be used for a review of the past 14 years of operation.

This board of supervisors has an opportunity to show the extent of its comprehension of what the situation really is.

Let's consider this for a moment. The City and County of San Francisco has a population of 715,674. The supervisors are paid $800 per month. They use the committee system, which keeps them close to the problems. These committees report to the board as a whole. Their board does not have to depend on one man for recommendations.

Marin County has a population of 206,038 but the supervisors here only have authority to function for one-third of that figure or 68,679. They receive $1,000 a month. It is well known that they have abdicated their responsibilities. They refer everything to staff. You have a great chance to be applauded. If you act like this is a hot potato you want to drop so that you can go on your way, you will not be.

Walk For Development Again To Combat Hunger

By ANNE DUGGAN
Junior, Terra Linda
High School

No one likes the idea of starving people. Pictures of Biafran children with stomachs distended from malnutrition brought outraged cries and donations of food and money when first published. Public sympathy was aroused and those with more gave to those with less. However, it seems to be a different story when there is hunger in this country. No one is starving in the good old U.S.A. — right? In case anyone hasn't noticed, there are people starving in marvelous Marin County; there may not be many pictures, like the tear-jerkers taken in other countries, but hunger exists.

Very often, plain old citizens, like you and me, take measures into their own hands. The Marin Walk for Development (formerly the Marin Walk Against Hunger) is one of these efforts. It is a drive run mainly by high school students who take no compensation for the time they spend on this project.

THE NEXT WALK in Marin is May 9, and covers 20 miles, beginning at Redwood High School at 7 a.m. The route will go through Corte Madera, San Rafael, San Anselmo, Fairfax, and Ross, and end at Redwood later that evening.

The money will go to almost the same three charities as last year.

Meals for Millions, which is building a multi-purpose food factory in Ecuador, will get 42.5 per cent of all the money received.

Money to the Economic Opportunity Council, 42.5 per cent will help pay for a school lunch program here in Marin County.

The American Freedom From Hunger Foundation is the parent organization of all Walks for Development and will receive 15 per cent of all donations. They furnish publicity, films, literature, and information for such walks.

THE SAME SPONSORSHIP system will be used this year. Each walker, after receiving his walk card, will go to parents, friends, relatives, neighbors, or businesses in an attempt to raise money. Those sponsors pick an arbitrary amount of money, such as 10 cents per mile, and sign the card.

Those wishing information should contact Bob Morgen or Steve Jensen at Drake High School, Anne or Vicki Duggan at Terra Linda High School, or Parker Lee at San Rafael High School.

Wine Fete Sept. 23

The Novato Civic Foundation's wine tasting party to benefit the Novato Creek Demonstration Project will be held Sept. 23, not Sept. 13 as erroneously reported in yesterday's Independent-Journal.

Eyebrow Lifting Suit By Zsa Zsa Seeks $3 Million

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Zsa Zsa Gabor filed a $3 million lawsuit Thursday against Thrifty Drug Stores for allegedly selling her brand of false eyelashes at $2.75 a pair instead of $15.

Miss Gabor sued the Los Angeles based drug chain in conjunction with McBride's Industries Inc., a cosmetics firm which markets a line of cosmetics under the name "Zsa Zsa."

At a news conference the actress accused Thrify of unfair business practices and infringement of trademark in a dispute over sales of the eyelashes.

She said she didn't know whether Thrifty's eyelashes were genuine Zsa Zsa, but "it was our box."

"We don't sell to everyone," she added. "We never appointed Thrifty to join that select group."

Thrifty's April 8 sales ad inferred "we were out of business," Miss Gabor said. Actually, the company markets a line of 125 cosmetics.

The suit asked $1.5 million real damages and $1.5 million punitive damages. It asked the court to stop Thrify from advertising or selling Zsa Zsa products and to make Thrifty account for all previous sales.

DINING OUT AND INNS

By HARRY CRAFT

Swedish Trick De Cuisine Or Not, Old Viking's Fare Is Scrumptious

For sheer flavor suggestive of all the benefits of home cooking it's hard to beat the Old Viking in Lagunitas.

Whether this is a Swedish trick de cuisine or Phyllis Mattsson's own personal skill I am not sure, but it makes itself particularly evident in meat dishes like short ribs of beef, the Swedish beefsteak and the pot roast. And it also extends into the salads and desserts. The Viking red cake would make Betty Crocker sit up and take notice.

Now well into its seventh year, this little restaurant has done amazingly well. It passed the "survival test" three or four years ago and since then Matts and Phyllis Mattsson have been moving along comfortably in the stretch.

Driving from the east, you come on it suddenly at a curve in the road and you may pass right by it if you are not paying attention. Its brightness and old fashioned architecture identifies it as a place you must visit sometime and if you experience this feeling, respond to it before it cools off and you are submerged again in the complexities of living.

Too often the "little spot at the side of the road" gets passed over when it may be the very thing you need to quiet disturbing problems. It's hard to keep your tensions at the Old Viking.

If the parking area is filled at both sides with cars, you can be sure the tables are well filled. In this case, stop a minute or two, look inside and inquire if reservations may be necessary for any other time you have in mind.

A BUILDING PERMIT has been issued and construction is scheduled to begin immediately on a new 4,100-square foot Sambo's restaurant at 1700 Novato Boulevard, Novato. This is on a one-half acre site in the Hoytt Enterprises complex and should allow plenty of room for off street parking.

BIGGEST DAY OF THE YEAR for most restaurants is Mother's Day. For many it is more crowded than Easter. And some of the restaurants that closed on Easter will remain open this day.

The reason is, I presume, that Easter is regarded by some as a family day calling for dinner at home. But Mother's Day is a time for Mom to get away from the kitchen and cooking and have someone wait on her.

It is only a little more than a week away (May 9) and if ever there was a time for advance reservations, this is it. There is no point in keeping Mom waiting for a table on her day off, whereas a little forethought should move things along much more smoothly and quickly.

FRANCHINI'S CHATEAU expects a big turnout on Mother's Day, I know, and reservations are definitely in order here.

This year there will be no Mother's Day brunch at Franchini's and dinners will be served from 1 p.m.

Next week this restaurant will revert to its former seven-days-a-week operation. For some time now it has been closing on Mondays.

BILL AND ADOLPH'S WEST END VILLA in San Rafael, which started holiday brunches last Easter, will follow this up with another one on Mother's Day. Service will begin at 11 a.m. and continue to 2:30 or 3 p.m.

Leading off as an appetizer will be strawberries Bavarian — a variation from the Pineapple Bavarian dish that was popular on Easter. Eggs benedict, mixed grill and other combinations will be featured. With any decent weather, service will be given in the outdoor garden patio.

Mother's Day dinners will be served from 2:30 p.m. Menu will include prime rib, lobster thermidor, roast leg of lamb, Virginia baked ham, scallopini, parmigiana, cannelloni and several steaks.

A dish that is finding increasing favor at West End is the crepes Bombay — crepes filled with lobster, shrimp and crab, curried and topped with a mornay sauce and cheese. You can also get this as an appetizer to whet your appetite.

NOW I KNOW at least one reason why the Pepperwood in San Anselmo's Red Hill Shopping Center has been so busy recently. (Scotty) Jim Davidson has been cheffing here, and there is no doubt that his food is well liked. He served at the Pepperwood once before, a couple of years ago.

At times you will also find him at the Rafters in Corte Madera. (This is also a Compton Corp. restaurant).

ENTERTAINER MARK WILLIAMS completed his fourth year last weekend at the Windjammer in Tiburon and is now starting his fifth. He has been a popular performer at the piano bar on Friday and Saturday nights and we hope to see him celebrate quite a few more anniversaries here.

MARK WILLIAMS
Four years at Windjammer

MICHAEL BERGES at International Gourmet, 430 Las Gallinas Avenue in Northgate has now acquired an on sale wine and beer license.

Lunches are served here, although the place is primarily a delicatessen. Anyway — now you can have a beer with your pastrami sandwich.

NEXT WEEK, if you notice that Gary's at 928 Grant Avenue, Novato has closed — it won't be for good.

It will mean that Gary and Vivian Bowker have completed a transaction now pending for its sale. New owners plan on a complete remodeling job lasting about three weeks. This means there won't be a reopening until the latter part of May.

Projected here is a different type of operation — an English and American pub to be known as the Two Flags Pub, serving dinners and with a dart board set-up. Since the sale is not yet closed, more about it when it is.

THE HEXAGON HOUSE at the edge of Armstrong Woods in Guerneville opened last week for dinners on weekends. Service is from 5 p.m.

Cattle Judging Set May 22

Dairy cattle judging will be held May 22 at the Petaluma Fairgrounds as part of the California Black and White Show.

The event is sponsored by the Redwood Empire Holstein Friesian Association, and judging of junior and senior divisions will begin at 9 a.m. The judge will be professor Robert J. Selkirk, head of the dairy department at Fresno State College.

Entry cards and information may be obtained by calling the chairman of the event, Hank Corda of 539 Upham Street, Petaluma, after 6 p.m.

New Shakespeare Group To Perform

The new Shakespeare company of San Francisco will present "As You Like It" at 8 p.m. May 6 at the Sonoma State College Commons.

The performance of the 25-member company, headed by the director-producer team of Margrit Roma and Clarence Ricklefs, is sponsored by the college English department.

Drunkenness Fine Imposed

A member of the Hell's Angels motorcycle club has been fined $45 for being drunk in public, a charge which stemmed from his arrest April 21 in Sausalito.

Judge Peter Allen Smith of Marin Municipal Court also placed the cyclist, Peter Richard Knell, 34, of San Francisco, on probation for one year.

Knell was arrested outside the Red Pants Bar on Bridgeway after a visit to Sausalito by about 75 members of the motorcycle club on their way to a luau at Kirby Cove on the Marin Headlands.

Summer Session Registration

'Weekend In Paris' Theme For Annual Ross Festival

The Marin Art and Garden Center in Ross will become a bit of France for its traditional Independence Day weekend festival, July 3 and 4.

This year the celebration will not be the longtime Marin County fair, but rather will be staged as a benefit for the 14 organizations that operate the nonprofit art and garden center. The county fair will be held in October at the Marin County Civic Center.

The festival in Ross will center on the theme "Weekend in Paris," with French tricolor-decorated stalls, Parisian entertainment and French food offered from 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. each day.

Entertainment will include can-can dancers, puppetry, folk dance and vaudeville acts and fashion shows. Art in action demonstrations will have a "Left Bank" flourish, the planners said, and will compete with a "daring Montmarte picture collection, bijou and bouquet exhibits." A flea market, bookstalls and an antique shop, sidewalk cafe with French menus and formal Gallic gardens also will be featured.

Admission and sales revenues will be used to keep the art and garden center grounds and exhibits in operation the year around, sponsors said. The committee in charge includes Carl Q. Riznik, William A. Millen, Hugh Peterson, Eugene A. Ostaggi and Tom Perry.

Breakdown Of Contaminants To Be Reported

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — The annual breakdown of all major sources of contamination will be presented to Bay Area Air Pollution Control District directors at 10 a.m. Wednesday in district offices, 939 Ellis Street.

The 1970 "source inventory report" will identify each major source, and list the tonnage of contaminants they emit.

The staff also will report on possible legal grounds for appealing a decision by the state Air Resources Board permitting Sonoma and Solano counties to exclude portions of their territory from the district.

The executive committee will meet first at 9:30 a.m.

Bank Robbers Do It Just Like The Movies

BOREHAM WOOD, England (UPI)—To passers-by it looked like just another scene being shot by one of the big studios down the road.

So hundreds of shoppers went calmly about their business Thursday as a gang of masked men with shotguns held up the local Barclays Bank, making off with $69,600 in payroll money.

"I'm not surprised," a police spokesman said. "We have television and film studios up the road at Elstree. People around here are used to seeing dramatic situations being reconstructed."

Equal Rights Bill Advances In House

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The proposed constitutional amendment guaranteeing equal rights to women has won approval from a subcommittee of the House Judiciary Committee.

The full committee now must pass on the proposal. Last year the House passed the same proposed amendment but it died in the Senate.

Oakview School Planning Playground Fund-Raiser

A walk to raise money for playground equipment will be held from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. May 8 by the students at the Oakview School.

The walk will not be monotonous as there will be live entertainment and refreshments to go with it, according to Publicity Chairman Judy Kaye.

This is the second such walk for the school. The one last year raised $4,000 to purchase playground equipment for the four-year old school at 730 Oakview Terrace.

The march will start at the school, led by a San Rafael Fire Department truck. It will go two miles to the Terra Linda High School track. There the students will continue marching around the track, each lap counting one quarter of a mile.

Here they will be entertained by the Prince Charles Marching Bagpipe Band from Corte Madera, several rock bands, and Alice in Wonderland and the White Rabbit played by actors from the American Conservatory Theater, Mrs. Kaye said. Local dignitaries have been invited, she said.

Participating children are given a card on which they can have up to 25 neighbors and friends pledge to pay them so much per mile. Last year the students averaged eight miles, although many of them walked as far as 22 miles, according to Mrs. Kaye. Mothers of the school children will keep track of the miles walked, she said.

Hamburgers, ice cream and soft drinks will be for sale at the site, she said.

A Rockefeller Divorce Settled

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (UPI)—The wife of former Arkansas Gov. Winthrop Rockefeller was granted a divorce Thursday on grounds of "general indignities."

Attorneys for both sides declined to disclose terms of the settlement to which Mrs. Jeannette Edris Rockefeller agreed.

Rockefeller was reported to have paid a $6 million settlement to his first wife, Mrs. Barbara Sears "Bobo" Rockefeller when they were divorced in 1954.

A's Pitching Sensation Vida Blue On Mound Tonight

OAKLAND (UPI) —Dick Williams, the Oakland A's manager, admits he got a "little hungry," but overall he is satisfied with his team's play.

Williams wanted three victories in the four-game series with the world champion Baltimore Orioles, especially after the A's won two of the first three games. But the Orioles, who always seem able to make the big play when one is needed, beat the A's 3-2 Thursday in the windup game of their series in Oakland.

"Before the series started I gladly would have settled for a split," said Williams, "but after we won two of the first three I'll admit I got hungry and wanted that third victory."

The A's, who have been making some pretty big plays themselves of late, almost pulled off another last-minute victory and for a split second in the ninth it looked like they might, but Dave Johnson speared Tommy Davis' pinchhit bid for a single and turned it into a doubleplay to end the game.

So tonight the A's start another four-game series, this time with the struggling Cleveland Indians and Vida Blue, the young man with the golden arm and a 5-1 won-lost record, has the starting assignment.

Diego Segui will pitch Saturday and Jim Hunter and Chuck Dobson will work Sunday's doubleheader. It will mark Dobson's first start of the year. He went on the shelf with a sore pitching elbow just before the start of the season. Williams says he is hoping Dobson can go five innings "and we'll go from there."

John (Blue Moon) Odom, another sore-armed pitcher, is at least a month away from taking a turn but the way the A's are playing now they hardly miss the one-time All-Star hurler.

Rollie Fingers has done a good job of taking up some of the slack. In Thursday's game against Baltimore he outpitched Jim Palmer but an error by shortstop Bert Campaneris and two gopher pitches did him in.

"I'm a little concerned about him serving up home run pitches," said Williams of Fingers' work, but added quickly, "He pitched good enough to win."

Boog Powell and Don Buford hit the homers for the Orioles and Fingers now has given up seven homers this year in 38 innings.

Campaneris booted a roller to short by Paul Blair in the first inning and Powell followed with his fifth homer. A single by Sal Bando and a homer by Dave Duncan tied the score at 2-2 in the second and it stayed that way until the eighth when Buford opened the inning with a homer.

Fingers gave up only five hits, struck out 10 and walked two as his record slipped to 1-3.

Palmer, a 20-game winner for the Orioles last year, wasn't as sharp as Fingers but he had more luck as he improved his record to 4-0.

Palmer was in trouble all the way and needed a game-ending doubleplay on a hard hit ball to survive.

Rick Monday opened the bottom of the ninth with a single, went to second on a sacrifice and held on as Palmer walked the pinch-hitting Steve Hovley.

Davis, who won Wednesday night's game with a hit in the ninth, lined the ball toward center but Johnson speared it and flipped to second for the doubleplay.

"You have to be lucky as well as good to win sometimes," admitted Palmer. "Another foot either way on Davis' hit and the game is tied, and maybe I'm out of there."

"That game now is history," said Williams, "so I'm going to forget it. Now all I want to think about is the Indians."

Williams said that Larry Brown, the shortstop-second baseman the A's purchased from Cleveland last weekend, will play in one of Sunday's games. He will go in for either Campaneris or Green.

Neither is hitting much and Campaneris is having his problems in the field. The error he made in Thursday's game was his 10th of the year and it came in his 24th game.

"Maybe he needs a rest," said Williams. "One thing's for sure, he is not playing as well as he can."

Campaneris had one hit in four at-bats Thursday and slipped under .200. Green isn't much better at .202.

For Sam Chapman A Return To Philly

Samuel Blake Chapman of Greenbrae, the former major league outfield star, will return to the scene of his prime this summer.

Now an inspector for the Bay Area Pollution Control District, Sam has accepted an invitation from the Philadelphia Phillies to play in a Philadelphia Old Timers game in August.

Actually, Slammin' Sammy played for the Philadelphia Athletics for about a decade, but the A's since have roved to Kansas City, thence to Oakland. And who wants to go to Oakland for an Old Timers game?

I saw Sam the other day and at 55 he still looks fit enough to send a few pitches out of the new Philadelphia stadium. An All-American halfback on U. of Cal's 1938 Rose Bowl team that beat Alabama 13-0, Chapman later that year moved from the Berkeley campus to Philadelphia where Manager Connie Mack greeted him the first day with the announcement: "Get out there, Sam. From now on you're my centerfielder."

Chapman, a Tiburon kid who went on to stardom at Tamalpais High before his football-baseball heroics at Cal, never played in the minor leagues until the 1950s when he would up his pro baseball career with the Oakland Oaks of the Pacific Coast League.

It was during his days in Oakland that Tam High had to tear down "Sam Chapman Stadium" as unsafe. Sam had outlasted the ballpark named in honor of Tam's most distinguished alumnus.

AND WHILE we're on the subject of major leaguers, I hope you noticed that John Dominic Boccabella of San Anselmo had a double and single in five trips to the plate yesterday as the Montreal Expos downed Boc's former teammates, the Chicago Cubs, 7-6. Boc The Sock played first base.

AND SPEAKING of Montreal, Allan Barrett Murray of Marin is busily organizing a tour to follow those red hot San Francisco Giants to Montreal-New York-Philadelphia June 7-16. Murray is president of the Giants Boosters Club and this is just one of several trips he has arranged. Contact Murray at GTS Travel, San Rafael, for further information.

WILLIAM KING DILLON of Novato, who guided Novato to the Babe Ruth World Series in Anchorage, Alaska in 1967 and has been active in junior baseball for several years, has resigned as director of the Ruth program's District 7. A sales representative for lithographic supplies company, Dillon said his job covering 11 western states has grown more demanding.

John Hover, president of the Redwood Empire League, has replaced Dillon. Assisting him are Ed Salmina, president of the Novato League, and John Bugbee, a director of the Santa Rosa League.

Marin Tars Top Solano

College of Marin exploded for 12 runs and 14 hits yesterday against Solano Junior College to whip the Falcons, 12-3, as the Tars raised their Camino Norte Conference baseball record to 11-5 in a game at Kentfield.

Going all the way on the mound for Marin was Jerry Goodrick, who gave up only one earned run and nine hits.

Taking the batting honors for the Tars was Rafael Gallardo, who was three for four. Also making a major contribution to the effort was Ken Robie with two hits, including a triple.

Three other Marin batters got two hits.

Chicago Cubs third baseman Ron Santo was stunned after feeling his jaw where a line drive hit him yesterday in the third inning against Montreal. The hit, by Bob Bailey, went for a single. NEW YORK, CHICAGO TIED

Montreal Earns Berth In Stanley Cup Finals

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

The story of the National Hockey League Stanley Cup playoffs Thursday night was one of two late goals—one that counted and one that didn't.

The one that counted was by New York's Pete Stemkowski at 1:29 of the third overtime period and it enabled the Rangers to defeat the Chicago Black Hawks 3-2 and tie their best-of-seven series at three games each. The deciding game will be played Sunday afternoon in Chicago.

The goal that was disallowed was one by Minnesota's Ted Hampson and the call enabled Montreal to hold on to a 3-2 decision and advance to the Cup finals. The Canadiens won the series 4-2.

"It's the finest game I've ever seen the New York Rangers play," said Emile Francis, the club's coach and general manager. "It was our finest hour, a case of them refusing to lose. You'll live a long time before you see another game like that."

Chicago took a 2-0 lead on goals by Dennis Hull and Chico Maki but the Rangers tied it on a second period score by Rod Gilbert and Jean Ratelle's third period goal. New York outshot the Black Hawks 8-3 in the first overtime and Chicago missed eliminating the Rangers twice in the second overtime as Stan Mikita missed point blank goals.

The winning goal came when defenseman Tim Horton fed Ted Irvine, who skated in and shot at Chicago goaltender Tony Esposito. Esposito blocked Irvine's shot but Stemkowski, whose only other goal in the playoffs decided the first game in overtime, slammed in the rebound from about 15 feet.

Rejean Houle was the hero for Montreal as the Canadiens eliminated the surprising North Stars. Houle's goal at 13:29 of the second period snapped a 2-2 tie and provided the margin of victory. But it was Hampson who provided the last bit of excitement.

Minnesota pulled goalie Cesare Maniago in the closing seconds and Hampson broke loose. "Somehow I got ahead of the puck," said Hampson. "I saw Jude Drouin in front of me and tried to slide it to him, but it slid back into (goalie Ken) Dryden's pads and came back out. I got the rebound and shot it back in. It was a clean shot. I had no idea whether the light was on or not. I was concentrating on the puck."

The light Hampson referred to was the dual system in Minnesota. When a period ends, the blue light goes on and automatically negates the red light which signifies goal. Referee Bill Friday said that the blue light preceded Hampson's goal. "I have to respect his decision," said Hampson. "He's a good referee."

NBA Title Game On Television

BALTIMORE (UPI) — The Milwaukee Bucks shoot for a sweep of the final round of the NBA championship tonight when they meet the Baltimore Bullets in a game that will be televised in the Bay Area at 5:30 p.m., channels 7-11-13.

The Bucks, in their third year in the league, are confident of blitzing the staggering Bullets for the fourth straight time to record the first title sweep since Boston beat the old Minneapolis Lakers in 1959.

Stars, Colonels Game Is Sellout

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI)—Utah Stars' fans have responded to their team's American Basketball Association Western Division crown by insuring the one-year-old club of a sellout in their first game of the ABA championship Monday.

The Stars get the homecourt edge as they open the championship playoffs against the Eastern Division Kentucky Colonels in the best-of-seven final round.

Officials at Salt Lake's Salt Palace Coliseum report a greater ticket demand for the first two games than they've ever witnessed before.

Young Texas Golfer Is Most Confident

NEW ORLEANS (UPI)—The state of Texas has produced another quality golfer, and like most of the tour regulars from his state, Roy Pace does not lack confidence.

"I'm as confident of my game as I've ever been," said Pace Thursday after firing a six-under-par 66 in the first round of the $125,000 New Orleans Open. "I'm hitting the ball as straight as I've ever hit it, as accurately, and my putting is about as good as it's been."

Pace's 66 put him one stroke behind first-round leaders Lou Graham and Jacky Cupit, another Texan, and tied with Larry Ziegler, J.C. Snead and Chi Chi Rodriguez.

Pace came into prominence April 11 when he captured first place in the Magnolia State Golf Classic. It was his first tour victory.

Pace says a golfing self-improvement project he began 18 months ago flowered at the Magnolia and continues to bloom in New Orleans.

"I used to hook the ball a lot," he said. "But I've worked my swing into a pattern when I can hit the ball a lot straighter now, and even fade the ball where before I couldn't fade it at all.

"And my pattern enables me to hit a lot more shots and it seems like I can hit better shots under pressure."

Pace, of Longview, Tex., said, "I've been working on the same thing for the last year and a half, and it's just now starting to materialize and kind of get normal."

Pace had plenty of competition, though, because 76 golfers broke par over the 7,080-yard, par-72 Lakewood Country Club Course in the first round. Most of them praised the wide, flat greens and dry conditions.

One stroke back at 67 were Rod Funseth, Dave Hill, Gordon Jones, Johnny Pott, Alex Sutton, Lee Elder, Jack Lewis, Gene Littler and Kermit Zarley.

Pre-tournament favorite Lee Trevino, who won at Tallahassee last week and who fired a hot 66 in the pro-am, faltered at 74, nine strokes off the pace in the first round.

Billy Casper, who has won $64,820 this year to go with his previous $1 million winnings, complained of bursitis in his hip point and withdrew after firing a par 36 on the back nine.

Crowded Field For 'Derby'

LOUISVILLE, Ky., (UPI)—There were strategy meetings all over the backstretch at Churchill Downs today as trainers and jockeys studied the post positions assigned 21 horses for Saturday's $188,000 Kentucky Derby.

Twenty-one horses were originally entered Thursday morning but the field was reduced by one late in the day when Mrs. Taylor Hardin's Sole Mio was scratched. Sole Mio apparently hurt a leg in his stall and trainer Woody Stephens said the colt would be unable to run in the derby.

"I'm afraid of 21 horses in the race," said trainer Johnny Campo whose Jim French drew No. 11 in the richest renewal of America's premier turf classic.

"There are too many horses in the race. That means a change of strategy for me. No, I am not going to tell you what it will be. But I'm not going to make any excuses for Jim French in this race. In his other races he had excuses," Campo said of Jim French who has raced this year in Florida, New York and California where the colt won the Santa Anita Derby.

"Jim French loves to fly but it makes me as sick as hell," said the man who was the leading trainer in New York last year.

It will be up to jockey Angel Cordero to carry out Campo's battle plans but that may be difficult in the second largest field ever to start in a Kentucky Derby. Twenty-one horses also started when Zev won in 1923 and when Clyde Van Dusen scored in 1929 while a record 22 went to the post in 1928, Reigh Count's year.

Jim French was a 4-1 third choice behind the Calumet Farm entry of Bold and Able and Eastern Fleet, favored at 5 to 2, and the Twist the Axe-Impetuosity entry, second choice at 7 to 2.

The Calumet Farm Entry, out for the famed stable's eighth victory in the Kentucky Derby, took over as favorite after the draw for post positions.

Bold and Able, with Jorge Velasquez riding, breaks from the coveted No. 1 post position and the colt has all the speed necessary to take full advantage of his lucky draw. Eastern Fleet, with Eddie Maple in the saddle, will start from No. 18 and trainer Reggie Cornell hinted at his strategy when he said, "He'll have to come out of there flying."

FOX GIVES CREDIT

Pitching, Kids And An Old Man

ATLANTA (UPI) — The Giants, winners of 17 of their first 22 games, are off to their fastest start in their 14 seasons in San Francisco and manager Charlie Fox says the credit goes "to our pitching, our kids and that fabulous old man."

The statistics bear Fox out:

The mound staff has a 2.25 earned run average; rookies Chris Speier and George Foster are hitting .336 and .308 respectively; and the "old man," soon-to-be-40 Willie Mays is hitting at a .348 clip.

Mays, who drove in the winning run in Tuesday's 10-inning contest, scored the winning run Thursday night in the Giants' 5-2 victory over the Atlanta Braves. And he did it in typical Mays' style—racing home from second on a bloop single by Ken Henderson.

The Giants best previous April record since moving to San Francisco in 1958 was their 15-5 mark in 1962. Also, their current 4 1-2 game lead in the National League West is their biggest margin in nearly five years.

"That kid at shortstop (Speier) has been sensational, our pitching has been really great and that Mays, what can you say about him that hasn't been said before, he's simply fabulous for his age.

"And that's not all," Fox continued. "Bobby Bonds (who is hitting .347) has been playing with an ailing ankle.

"It just seems that everybody we've put in there has done a good job for us." The Braves, who lost three straight to the streaking Giants to fall seven games off the lead, had a chance to win in the 12th inning Thursday night when they had the bases loaded and only one out. But third baseman Hal Lanier flagged down Hank Aaron's line shot and turned it into a threat-ending double play.

In the 13th, the Giants had to face Cecil Upshaw, the Braves' ace reliefer.

Speier led off with a single and Mays followed with a smash to right that struck Speier for the first out. Mays was credited with a single and promptly stole second, his third steal this month without being caught.

Willie McCovey flied to center and Dick Dietz walked and that brought up Henderson, hitless in five previous trips, with two on and two out.

"I really threw him a good pitch," Upshaw said sadly. "I jammed him right on the hands and he blooped the ball. I knew as soon as it started to float that we were in trouble."

The Giants tried to keep it going at Cincinnati tonight where they open a three-game series. It will either be Rich Robertson or Juan Marichal on the mound for San Francisco.

Up To Date Report On Oil Spillage

By AL GIDDINGS

It has been just a little over three months since the two Standard Oil tankers collided, spilling approximately 800,000 gallons of oil into the Bay Area waters.

Last week, a representative of Standard Oil, Mr. Keating, gave an informative talk with slides at the Marin Rod and Gun Club's ecology meeting on the oil spill, its cleanup and other problems caused by the spill. It was most interesting, showed clearly that Standard Oil did an excellent cleanup job, and that it was a massive task. It also showed that great numbers of dedicated people (possibly 40,000 volunteers) put forth an effort that in scope seems almost unbelievable. The volunteers worked on all phases of the cleanup.

One of their biggest projects was the task of trying to save the sea birds which were caught in the path of the moving oil slick. Fish and Game Department estimates placed the numbers of birds affected at about 7,000. Of these, approximately 3,700 were Western Grebes, 1,500 were scoters, 800 murres, 210 ducks, and about 700 others covering about 50 species. Murres are the most abundant of the pelagic (sea) birds. Western grebes and scoters are also very abundant. A count of 5,800 scoters had just been taken in the San Francisco Bay Area in the annual waterfowl census. Grebes and murres are protected birds, and except for the occasional shooting of a scoter (they are in the family of diving ducks) by an uneducated hunter (who will find their flesh very fishy tasting,) the birds have a fairly safe life!

The Dept. of Fish and Game took the position that 97 per cent of all the oil covered birds would die. (This was generally the case with the oil covered birds in the Santa Barbara spill.)

With a goal of more than just the predicted 3 per cent birds that would live, the volunteer bird saving army went to work! They had a job, and they had a purpose, and to hell with anyone who stood in their way!

They gathered stricken birds in anything suitable that would hold them. Under guidance from veterinarians, the Audubon Society and any one with any knowledge at all, they started their program. Bird care stations were started, with the Richmond Bird Care Center finally becoming one of the busiest stations for the stricken birds from the oily areas of Marin County. They cared for approximately 1,400 birds all told. All the work was done by volunteers. The building was partitioned off with areas marked for cleaning, resting, swimming, feeding or whatever the birds needed! The area was posted with rules for bird handling, personnel health, visitors and other problems. Standard Oil gave the center $100 per day for food, oils, etc. for bird care. Live minnows for the birds was a must, so minnow holding ponds were built and stocked. Some people moved in with the birds to stay even to this day.

What has been the result of this undertaking? I took a trip to Richmond this week just as a curious visitor. They didn't know me from Adam! It was most interesting!

I arrived at the area about 10 a.m., reading all the signs posted for the visitors and for the personnel there. Most of the signs gave information as to the best way to be when around the birds. Upon entry, I was left alone to look around, but finally a very young girl (her name was "Egg" and she was 17 years old) came along. She gave me a tour of the place explaining much of the setup. She fed some of the grebes in the pools with live minnows, simulating the outdoor natural feeding habit of the birds. She explained that about 60 of the grebes had already been released back into the wild. There were probably one hundred or so birds still being cared for; all seemed to be in good condition. One mallard, a canvasback and two bluebills looked like they might be healthy enough to be leaving soon, too.

About this time, along came Norm McIntosh of the National Audubon Society. He is the manager of Richardson's Bay Bird Sanctuary and was over there to make a donation of $400 from the NAS to the Richmond center group! They looked at him like he was straight from Heaven! Standard Oil stopped the $100 per day payments on March 28, but recently restarted them. So the volunteer group has been on its own since that time.

Egg, the young girl, said they had been down to a doughnut diet this past week, so this $400 would really help. While I was there another donation of a quart of cooking oil arrived! It too was the cause of much rejoicing! These people can use any help you can give them!

Our guide continued her informative talk with a suggestion that both Norm and I should go up to Tubb's Island in Sonoma County, a 330 acre refuge area owned by the Nature Conservancy group, where approximately 100 scoters had been sent to be released in a fenced area of the island. The area was identical to some of the natural habitat of the birds. Of course we went and we saw the birds, all looking in good shape, now living along the shoreline of one of the sloughs there. They are keeping them fenced for further observation and feeding.

All in all, it was a very illuminating day! Perhaps this group will be able to actually save close to 250 birds or about one/sixth of the 1,400 they started with! Their efforts, if documented, may be the means of saving many more birds if another oil spill ever occurs. The birds could have been 7,000 or more canvasback ducks which would then have been considered a calamity by everyone! I think they did a great job!

Terra Linda Golfers Get Some Help

The Tamalpais High School golf team gave Terra Linda some breathing room in a hotly contested Marin County Athletic League race yesterday, with a 180-200 victory over San Rafael High School in Mill Valley.

In other MCAL matches, Terra Linda defeated Drake 216-240, and San Marin shelled Redwood, 219-234.

The Tam Indians nearly unbeatable on their home course, raised their MCAL mark to 5-3 with the win over the Bulldogs, which, coupled with the Terra Linda win, puts the Trojans in first place with a 7-1 mark.

Medalists for Tam were Rick Golfien, Jeff Bricker, and Mark Churchfield, all with 35's.

Redwood — Arnold Brooks, 44; Jeb Harrison, 44; Tim Novacic, 45; Bob Zimmerman, 49; Rich Hagler, 52.

UP AND OVER — Former Redwood High School and College of Marin athlete Steve Carroll clears hurdle while becoming the second fastest 3,000-meter steeplechaser in University of California history. A senior at Berkeley, Carroll has developed into a top long distance runner.

Ex-Marin Ace Developing As Cal Distance Runner

Steve Carroll had never seen a steeplechase race before he ran in one.

That was two years ago, in his first meet as a California runner. Now, the former Redwood High School and College of Marin student is looking forward to his first Pacific-8 victory tomorrow when the Bears host UCLA.

Since that first bloody race, when he fell over a hurdle, and stumbled through the water jumps, Carroll has run the 3000-meter race in 9:20.6. That time makes him the second fastest Cal steeplechaser in history.

Last Saturday the 22-year-old senior raced to his fastest ever two mile, 9:00.8, in finishing second in the Cal-WSU dual meet.

This represented a 10-second improvement over his previous best time, and a world of improvement since his junior college days.

"Steve is relatively young as a runner," Cal coach Dave Maggard says. "He's come along very well, and should continue to improve."

Carroll ran a 4:20 mile for the College of Marin. He didn't start competing in track until his final year at Redwood High School, so his performances should be all the more appreciated.

UCLA has runners who have run 9:08 and 9:19 in the steeplechase, but Carroll thinks he can win the race.

If he does, it could be a big boost as the Bears hold an outside chance of defeating the undefeated Bruins, a team many people think is the best dual meet squad in the nation.

Carroll has a pair of victories to his credit this year. He won steeplechases in the season opening triangular meet against the Athens Track Club and Sacramento State, and against San Jose State.

He has scored 19 dual meet points thus far this year, and he is assured of his varsity letter.

In his first year at Cal, in his first race, he ran the steeplechase, and he had his troubles. He finally finished in 10:06.2, well out of the money.

He came back the next Saturday, improving 32 seconds for a second place against San Jose State, and then won a steeplechase race in San Diego against San Diego State.

Carroll ultimately got second places against UCLA and Washington State, and third places against Stanford and Southern Cal and earned his letter.

Carroll, 6-0, 140-pounds, is a Psychology major with a 3.6 grade point average.

Seals Headed For S.F.?

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Charles O. Finley may move his California Seals hockey team from Oakland to San Francisco —if he gets an arena where his club can play.

The Yerba Buena Center, a proposed 17-000 seat facility, is scheduled to be built in San Francisco by 1973 and developers of the project Thursday said Seals' owner Finley has told them he would move his team if the construction of the arena is not delayed.

The reason the completion date is so important is that Finley's lease with the Oakland Coliseum, where the Seals now play, expires in two years.

Lyman Jee, president of Schlesinger-Arcon Pacific, the builder of the Yerba Buena center, said Finley discussed the move with him. Jee also said he had been assured that the National Hockey League would not object to a transfer of the Seals.

According to Jee, Finley's team is not the only one interested in playing in the proposed arena. He said San Francisco Warriors president Franklin Mieuli also told him he was ready to move to the arena when it was completed. The Warriors now play at San Francisco's Cow Palace and Civic Auditorium and the Oakland Coliseum.

Jee said the Yerba Buena project could be completed by the fall of 1973 if San Francisco expedites issuance of revenue bonds.

NATIONAL LEAGUE ROUNDUP

Downing Trade A Real Winner

By U.P.INTERNATIONAL

The Los Angeles Dodgers felt all along that an off-season trade was going to make them a pennant winner in 1971.

But it may turn out to be the trade for Al Downing—and not the one for Richie Allen—will make the difference for the Dodgers in their bid for their first pennant since Sandy Koufax retired in 1966.

The swap of Andy Kosco to Milwaukee for Downing this spring received little notice but Downing has developed into the fourth starter the Dodgers will need if they're to overhaul the San Francisco Giants.

While Allen has been ailing and is floundering at .234, Downing pitched 7 1-3 innings of six-hit ball and Pete Mikkelsen came on to get the victory as the Dodgers downed Pittsburgh 2-1 Thursday night on Duke Sims' run-scoring single in the ninth.

Downing, 2-1 this season, earned a starting assignment when he pitched 5 2-3 innings of two-hit relief ball against San Diego in his first appearance on April 9. He beat St. Louis 2-1 on a nine-hitter in his first start and has joined Bill Singer, Don Sutton and Claude Osteen in the regular Dodger rotation.

The Dodgers are still 4 1-2 games behind the Giants but the race has just started. And the Dodgers figure that Allen is eventually going to start hitting despite his 0-for-3 appearance Thursday night.

Meanwhile, Downing's pitching is a real plus. "I feel I've gotten into a pretty good groove," Downing said. "I've gotten a chance to pitch regularly and it's done a lot for my confidence. I wasn't especially sharp tonight but I went mostly with my control."

Downing blanked the Pirates until the eighth when Richie Hebner's third hit followed Jose Pagan's single and a sacrifice. Mikkelsen came on and retired Roberto Clemente and Willie Stargell—both 9-for-4—to end the inning and then blanked the Pirates in the ninth.

In the other National League games, Cincinnati edged San Diego 4-2, New York blanked St. Louis 7-0, Montreal edged Chicago 7-6 and San Francisco topped Atlanta 5-2 in 13 innings.

In American League games, Baltimore edged Oakland 3-2, Chicago nipped Washington 5-4 and California beat Cleveland 84. The Minnesota at Boston game was rained out.

The New York Mets suddenly are starting to show their 1969 form again. They blanked the Cardinals to complete a four-game sweep. Manager Gil Hodges' two-platooning system, which was criticized last year when the Mets came in third, worked perfectly as Donn Clendenon hit a three-run homer. Clendenon was replacing Ed Kranepool, who had three hits and three RBIs on Wednesday, but the move worked as Clendenon got two hits.

Ron Swoboda, who was traded by the Mets because he was one of the guys knocking Hodges, sparked a three-run rally in the ninth inning that carried Montreal past Chicago. Swoboda tripled in the tying run and then scored the winning run on Johnny Bateman's single.

A Four-Hitter

Stan Gilstrap threw a four-hitter to lift Fairfax Shell past Foust Chevron, 9-0, and the Doves beat the Bar, 8-2 in San Rafael Recreation Department adult softball league games last night at Albert Park.

Interest Lost On 'Flat' Bond Sale

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. I purchased 32 bonds and paid interest on them. Five months later I sold them "flat" under the impression that I would receive interest due. When the interest was paid into my account my broker said I was not entitled to it, that it belonged to the buyer. I and 90 per cent of investors don't know what "flat" means and I think I was morally entitled to that interest. — C. S.

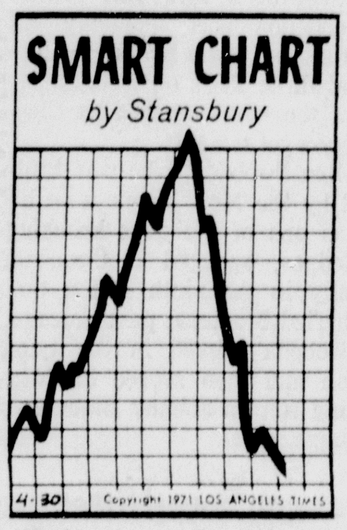
A. This term should have been very carefully explained to you by your broker prior to the transaction. When a bond is sold "flat," the seller revokes any claim to accrued interest and, under terms of the Uniform Practice Act, a due-bill for the full amount of said interest should accompany delivery. In this type of sale there is generally an upward adjustment negotiated in the selling price for the bond.

Q. My wife and I are close to 75 and need income to supplement Social Security. About two years ago we bought 600 shares of Sav-on-Drugs at 29½. Later it dropped to 11 but has since recovered to 25. Should we hold for full recovery or take a substantial loss? — M. S.

A. This 63-unit drug supermarket concentrates its operations in the Southern California area. Outlets are open 13 hours a day, 364 days a year, are self-service and dispense more than 25,000 items, primarily at discount.

In spite of the intense competition in this field, Sav-On has boosted sales an average of 10 per cent and earnings 14 per cent annually in the last five years. Cash for store expansion has been internally generated. The five new units planned for opening this year will also be financed without recourse to long or short-term debt.

There are only 3.5 million shares outstanding, with a large percentage of these closely held, leaving a float of under one million shares. Price action, therefore, can be volatile, as witness the 125 per cent rebound since last July. Hold for further recovery.



"Sales have slipped on our Tibet Mountain Properties."

SOME FUNNY BUSINESS

Some reports indicate the barbering business has fallen off, but here are two examples of some funny business in the barbershop. Above, Minneapolis barber Craig Morris talked Carol Sikkema, 17, into dropping by for a leg-shave. "It was a smooth job, all right," said Carol. Below, barber Duke Mercurio helps five Mount Tacoma High School students meet their campaign promise to cut their long hair if a special Tacoma, Wash., school levy passed.

Stocks Fall Second Day In A Row

NEW YORK (UPI) —The stock market backed off for the second consecutive session Friday in what some analysts believed may be the signal a downward correction was getting underway after a sharp, sustained advance. Turnover was heavy.

After almost two hours, declines were leading advances by a two-to-one ratio.

While the Dow Jones Industrial Average fell, Standard & Poor's 500 stock index was off 0.43 at 104.20.

Prices declined in brisk trading on the American Stock Exchange. Of the 950 issues on the tape, 442 pointed lower, while 252 advanced.

Among the most active Amex issues were Automated Building Components down more than 2 on 65,000 shares, Ling-Temco warrants fractionally lower on a volume of more than 26,000, and United Brands also slightly lower on over 25,000.

On the Big Board, IBM was off 3 1-4, while Louisville & Nashville Railroad, Burroughs, and Wrigley Co. dropped 2 or more.

Steels and motors generally surrendered fractions, as did aircrafts.

State Business Falls Sharply In Last Quarter

SACRAMENTO (CNS) — Business during the Christmas quarter of 1970 was more than a quarter of a billion dollars down from the record high set in the fourth quarter of 1969, the State Board of Equalization has reported.

The board's report shows that taxable transactions for the quarter totalled $11.5 billion, $260 million (2.2 per cent) less than the 1969 total.

The report says the slowdown was due to high unemployment levels, continuing inflation and the ten-week General Motors strike.

It also shows that taxable transactions for all of 1970 reached $43.2 billion, 2 per cent higher than 1969, but the pace of business became progressively slower during each quarter and accelerated downward during the fourth quarter.

Sales in Los Angeles County, which has 37 per cent of the taxable business in the state, dropped by more than $340 million, or 7.7 per cent.

Rocket Contract

REDMOND, Wash. (BW) — Rocket Research Corp. has received a contract of approximately $1.7 million from the Space & Electronics Systems Division of the Fairchild Hiller Corp. in Germantown, Md., for the design, development, qualification and flight delivery of Application Technology Satellites (ATS) F & G Spacecraft Propulsion Subsystem (SPS).

Computer Unit That Sketches Wins Contract

LAKE SUCCESS, N.Y. (BW) — Astrosystems Inc. has announced the award to its subsidiary, Dimensional Systems Inc., in Waltham, Mass., of a major computer graphics contract by the Westinghouse Electric Corp.

The system is a complete stand-alone computerized drawing processor which automatically converts and produces finished schematics and manufacturing drawings from rough engineering sketches.

The system includes a central processing unit, provision for digitizing stations, editing stations with cathode ray terminals and up to four plotters. In addition to preparing the finished drawings, the system automatically captures data for wire list information, bills of materials and other direct and indirect manufacturing uses, all of which can be stored on magnetic tape in industry compatible format.

Ford's Income For Quarter Up Over Year Ago

DEARBORN (BW) — Ford Motor Co. consolidated net income in the first quarter of 1971 was $169 million, compared with $124 million in the first quarter of 1970, it was announced Monday.

Net income a share in the first quarter of 1971 was $1.57, up 37 per cent from the $1.15 earned in the first quarter of 1970. Earnings in the 1971 quarter were reduced by an estimated 38 cents a share because of a 65-day strike against Ford of Britain, which ended in the first week in April.

Consolidated sales, also depressed by the strike, were $3.9 billion in the first quarter of 1970, up 14 per cent from sales of $3.4 billion in the first quarter of 1970.

Worldwide factory sales of cars, trucks and tractors were 1,178,902 units, up slightly from factory sales of 1,151,454 in the comparable quarter of 1970.

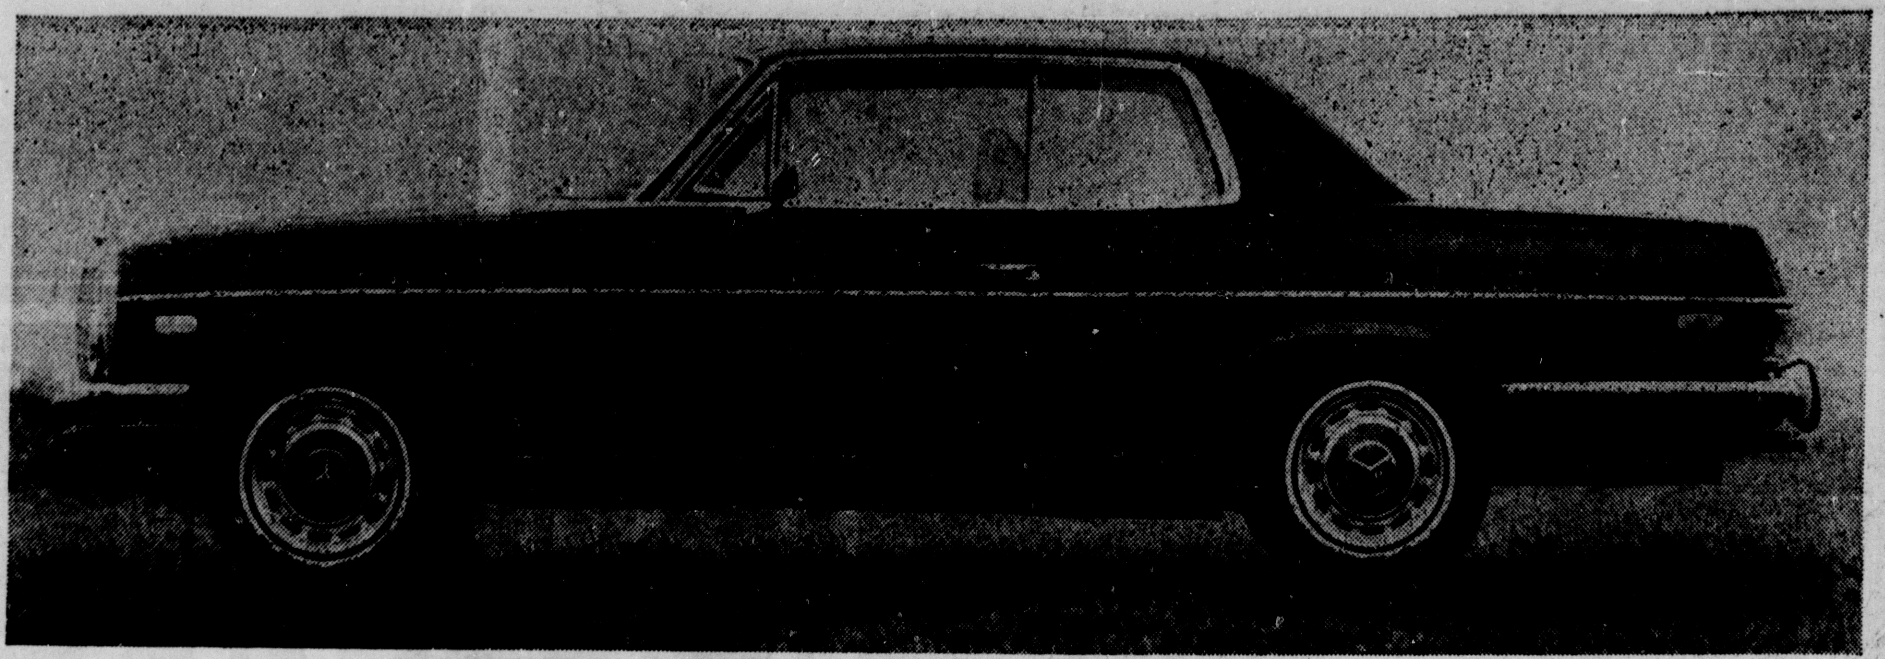
Care Of Brake Fluid

Improper use of motor-vehicle brake fluids can harm your brake system.

Knowing exactly what fluid to use poses no problem. Simply stick with the brake fluid recommended by your vehicle manufacturer, for any other fluid may harm brake seals and cause brake system failure.

Remember that vapor lock can develop during hot weather if you use a brake fluid with a lower boiling point than that of your recommended fluid.

Vapor lock can also develop if you don't reject brake fluid from unsealed containers, which can accumulate dirt and absorb moisture. Use fluid only from sealed containers or small amounts of water in the fluid.



SPORTY MERCEDES-BENZ 250 COUPE

Power steering has been added to the standard equipment list of the 250 coupe for 1971. Other standard items include four-speed automatic transmission, four-wheel power disc brakes, electrically heated rear window and bucket seats. The 250 uses the Mercedes-Benz 2.8 liter six-cylinder engine.

A Built-In Automobile Market

By HARRY CRAFT

Marin County has a built-in automobile market all its own.

With more than the usual amount of hilly terrain, winding and narrow roads and comparatively short driving distances to everyday shopping and conveniences, this area is about as close as you can get to being ideally suited for the small car.

Add to this the fact that the country leads the western states in the size of its average family income and it follows that Marin residents should be "hot" prospects for quality cars, probably not inclined to haggle too much over the extra cost of desirable options.

The hypothesis is indeed supported by fact.

During the 1970 model year, sales of foreign cars (mostly small cars) in Marin accounted for 40 per cent of the new car market. That approaches three times the national percentage figure. In terms of new car registrations it meant that out of a total of 10,227 passenger vehicles, 4,100 of them were imported makes. An additional segment of the market can be credited to a healthy showing by domestic compacts and also some of the new sub-compacts which began appearing on the scene in 1970.

This unique situation has caused some local dealers to take on small imports in addition to their regular lines of larger cars. And of course American manufacturers have already moved into the mini field — Chrysler with its Simca import, Ford with its Pinto, Chevrolet with Vega, American Motors with Gremlin, Dodge with the imported Colt, Buick with its Opel import, Lincoln-Mercury with the foreign manufactured Capri — and so on.

Marin is also a county of many two-car (or more) families and one of the cars is almost bound to be an import, possibly of an older vintage.

Since our last edition there have been several dealership changes. George Dexter gave up his Pontiac-GMC and American Motors agencies in San Rafael to concentrate on Dexter Toyota, which has been moved from Larkspur to San Rafael. He has also kept his interest in Annex Motors. The Pontiac-GMC and American Motors agencies are now operated by Marin Automobile Co. and Marin American Co. respectively — both at Fourth and E Streets, San Rafael.

Marin Dodge in San Rafael retains its same name but the new dealer-operator here is Frank Proto. L. J. Dervin Ford Co. of Novato is now Novato Ford, headed by Denny Saris. Brown Motors, Inc., San Rafael replaces Doug Dicker Sports Car Centre.

There are other new names in our list of dealers. Marin Mazda, San Rafael is one — handling the new Japanese Mazda with the rotary engine. Mill Valley Imports with a BMW agency and Paradise Motors, Corte Madera with a SAAB agency are others. Recently Marin Automobile Co. added the Japanese Honda line to its other cars.

Again this year, Marin new car dealers have joined in a common time for promoting and displaying their mid-1971 models at their individual showrooms. This is now traditionally known as the Showroom Auto Show and will take place throughout the coming week.

Imports, minis and midis and large domestic makes all will be shown in profusion. Special inducements to buy will be offered. This is the great mid-year automobile season which follows the introduction of many new models for the first time at automobile shows in major American cities.

It is a good time to reappraise the qualities of your favorite car and compare it with competitive makes. It is a good time of the year for buying and one of the best for looking.

Visit one or more of your local dealers during the coming week. Who knows? You may not even know you need a new car until you see the improvements made since your last one.

What It Was Like In Old Days — No Comfort In Memories

When father or grandfather gets a faraway look in his eye and tells of those beautiful winter drives to the farm when he was a lad, the pleasure of remembered scenery is blotting out the real discomforts of those trips.

This, at least, is quite likely the case if he was reared in the northern reaches where the mercury often flirted with zero at night and kept up the courtship all the next day.

Before World War I, most cars in the north stayed under cover all winter — drained of water and oil and jacked up to keep the tires from going flat and ruining the tubes.

A few rugged souls kept going. In the morning they'd fill the engine block with hot water, and the crankcase with oil kept overnight in the house to keep it from taking on the consistency of very thick molasses.

Side curtains cut off the worst winds but were seldom really tight — especially if several of their brittle mica or "isinglass" windows were broken out.

The combination of hot water and warm oil, and sometimes a teakettle or two of boiling water poured over the engine block, would normally get you underway.

With very many passengers, however, the windshield frosted over quickly unless you sliced an onion in half and rubbed the glass well with the fresh-cut end.

Later you could buy little fans to mount on the dash or steering column, or electric heaters with glowing wires like a toaster and suction cups to affix them to the windshield. Unfortunately, the latter tended to fall off on bumpy roads.

Passengers could have warm feet for awhile with wrapped soapstones, bricks or even mother's irons, heated on the kitchen range.

These primitive "heaters" were of little use to the driver, who had one foot on the accelerator and the other poised for the clutch. He did have his own touch of luxury, however, a wheel cover to keep his fingers from freezing tight to the rim.

Manifold heaters, an early attempt to bring engine heat to passengers, were hard to control — they sometimes got so hot they charred the wooden floor boards.

Engine heat could be used to de-ice the windshield in freezing rain. A hammer handle propped the hood open on the left side and warm air flowed back to the glass.

These and all the other tricks seldom made winter driving a real pleasure, however. That waited on development of closed cars, good heaters and defrosters.

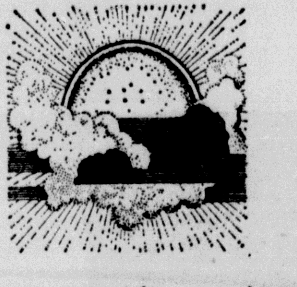
They really don't build cars like they used to!

The Growing Loss Of Car Stereos

Music appreciation among thieves seems to be on the increase, judging from the growing number of thefts of auto stereo systems.

Whether they are inspired by the charms of music or the charms of high profits, thieves cost insurance companies $40 million in paid claims in 1969 for auto tape decks and stereo tapes. Figures for 1970 are not available, but it is believed such thefts have continued to mount.

You cut down on air pollution, too.



About a decade ago, we made a promise to remove our cars from the air pollution problem.
Today we're making good. We're almost there.
1971 Chevrolets emit 80% less hydrocarbons than typical cars of roughly ten years ago.
And about ⅔ less carbon monoxide.
Best of all, we're testing devices that can reach control levels as high as 95%.
But it hasn't been easy. We've had to develop devices that muzzle and reburn exhaust fumes.
Devices that check wayward gases around the crankcase vent.
Devices that prevent the escape of raw gasoline vapors.
We've even had to invent instruments sophisticated enough to measure the effectiveness of these devices.
The goal and reward have been one and the same: cleaner air.
Estimates are that if all U.S. industry could make similar strides, and all cars on the road today were emission controlled like '71 Chevrolets, we'd be breathing 1940 air.
You might call that a great step backward.
A step we've been proud to take.

Occasional Drink, Driving Out

You eight out of 10 men over 21 and you two out of three women over 21, who drink alcoholic beverages at least occasionally, should not drive afterward.

The National Automobile Club reports that the drinking problem has reached staggering proportions on the road. And a two-year study of fatal holiday accidents by the California State Automobile Association and the Automobile Club of Southern California showed that alcohol was involved in almost half of all fatal accidents covered.

The study also showed that two-thirds of the fatal accidents occurred within a 25-mile radius of the driver's home; that two-thirds of the accidents occurred in rural areas; and that only 15 per cent occurred on freeways.

Single vehicle "solo" accidents accounted for 46 per cent of all fatalities, two-car accidents about 31 per cent, multiple car accidents 6 per cent and pedestrian fatalities 17 per cent.

And if you think that only "drunks" caused them you'll be surprised how many so-called light drinkers were the guilty parties.

The Proper Care Of Radiator

As the heart of your car's cooling system, the radiator requires careful attention, without which it can cause your entire engine to overheat.

For a starter, excessive heat has a bad effect on engine oil, causing it to produce varnish and acids that damage valves, cylinders, and pistons.

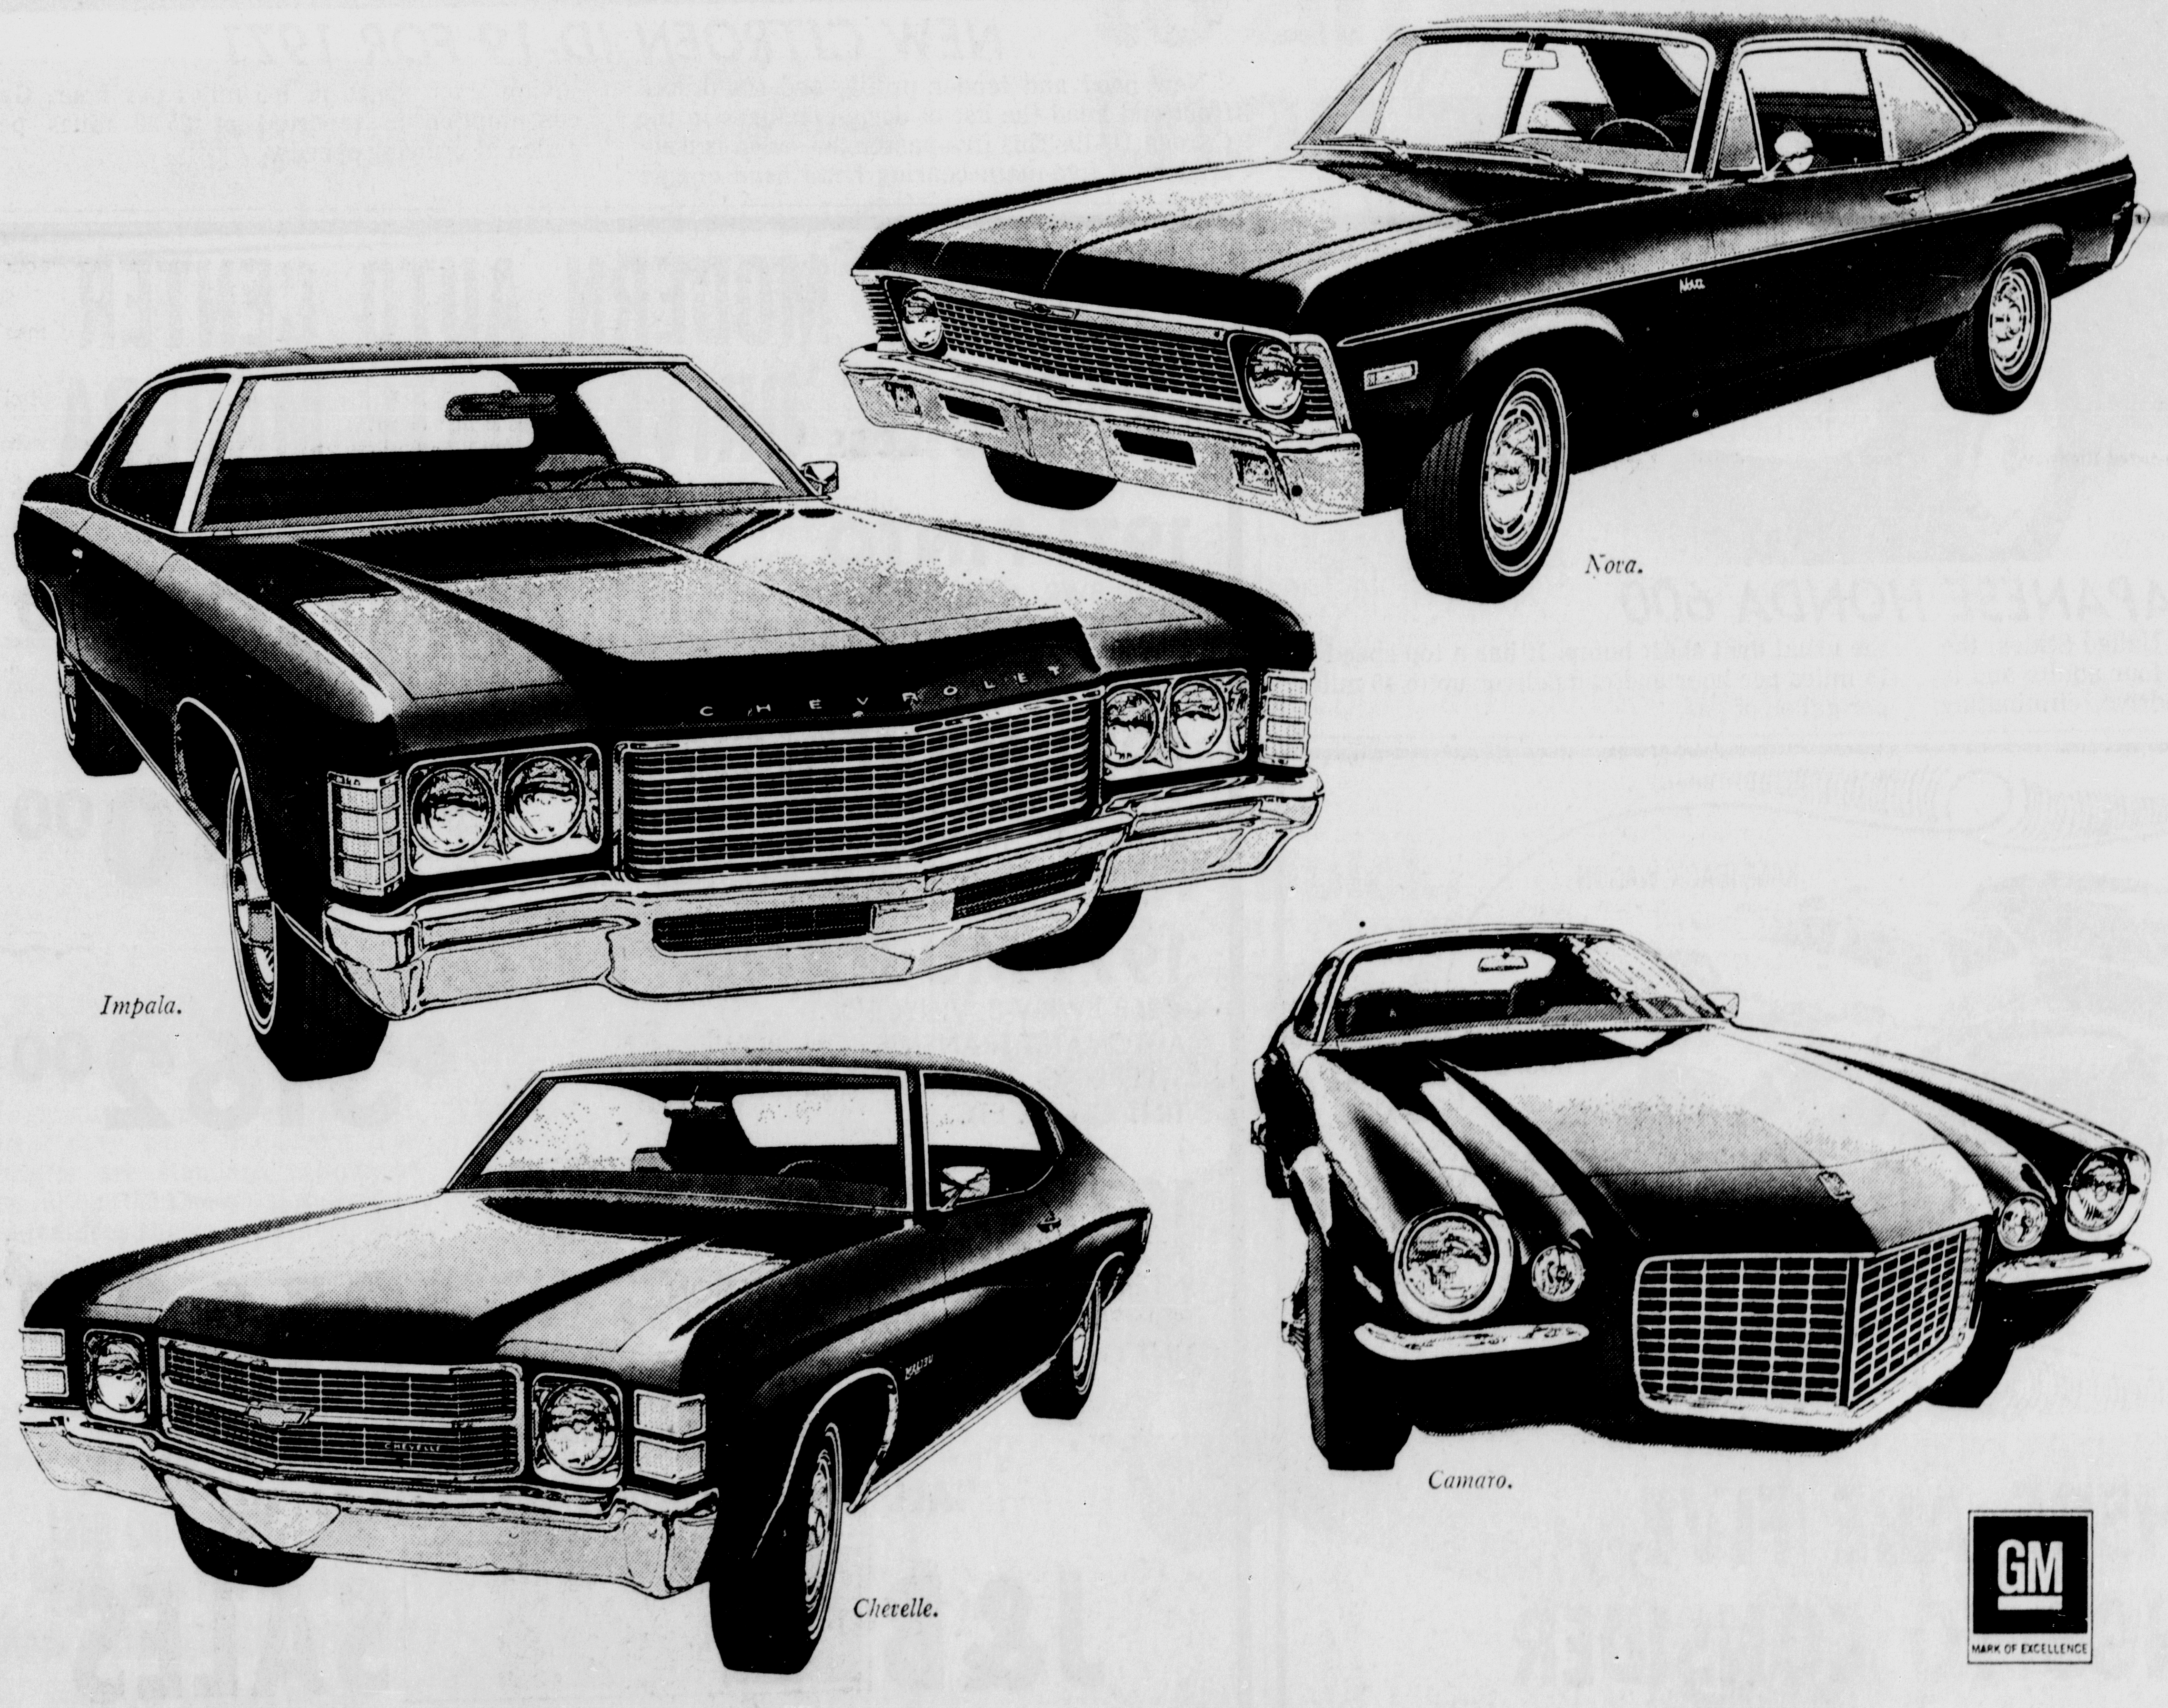
What is your radiator's worst enemy? Since rust is the answer, it makes good sense to drain and flush your radiator about twice a year.

Taking good care of your radiator means keeping an eye on its water level. By not letting water hosswater hoses get too old, by not filling the radiator to the top, you're helping it to perform the way it should. And another thing, you should brush or wash out insects, leaves and dirt from the radiator's core. Other sise the air can't cool the water.

Whatever you do, don't pour cold water into an overheated radiator. That cylinder head can crack under the strain of a sudden temperature change.

Give the radiator, the heart of your cooling system, that careful attention.

Highway speed laws in Nevada say only that drivers must be "careful and prudent."



You cut down on outer wear, inner wear and under wear with any of these Chevrolets.

MARK OF EXCELLENCE

Your money's tight these days.

And before you go loosening it up on something new, you want to be very sure what you buy will be around for a while.

We understand. And we've done something about it.

Impala. Chevelle. Camaro. And Nova.

Each car, for example, gives you a lot more outerwear protection. In things like Magic-Mirror acrylic finish that's tougher and less porous than enamel. That holds a shine longer. Bumpers, door handles, and locks that are made to resist rust. And special protective inner fenders to help keep the outer fenders looking new.

Each car gives you more innerwear protection, too.

That's because our Body by Fisher craftsmen equip the cars with upholstery and materials that really hold their good looks. Resilient cushioning that gives you thousands and thousands of comfortable sits. And long-lasting vinyl trim.

And each car gives you more underwear protection. The engines last longer because they run cleaner on no-lead or low-lead gas. The brake lines are corrosion-resistant. The exhaust system is aluminized. And there are rocker panels or body sills designed to help keep rust spots from ever forming under the doors.

Impala. Chevelle. Camaro. And Nova.

If you like their good looks now, you'll love the way they hold onto their good looks.

It's putting you first like this, that keeps us first.

Things are seldom what they seem.

Big cars often pose as big cars, when they're really small cars.

For instance, notice how much bigger the big car seems than the Volkswagen Squareback Sedan.

Then count the number of suitcases it can take on: only 12.

Now, notice how small the Squareback seems to be.

Then count the number of suitcases it can take on: 16.

That's because the Squareback has 32.8 cubic feet of carrying space. Which is one and a half times as much as that of the largest sedan trunk.

Of course, if you really have a lot to carry you can always fold down the Squareback's rear seat. Then you'll have more than twice as much carrying space as the largest sedan trunk.

So which would you rather have—a sedan that looks like a big bully but really is a 12-suitcase weakling?

Or a little fella who's really a 16-suitcase giant?

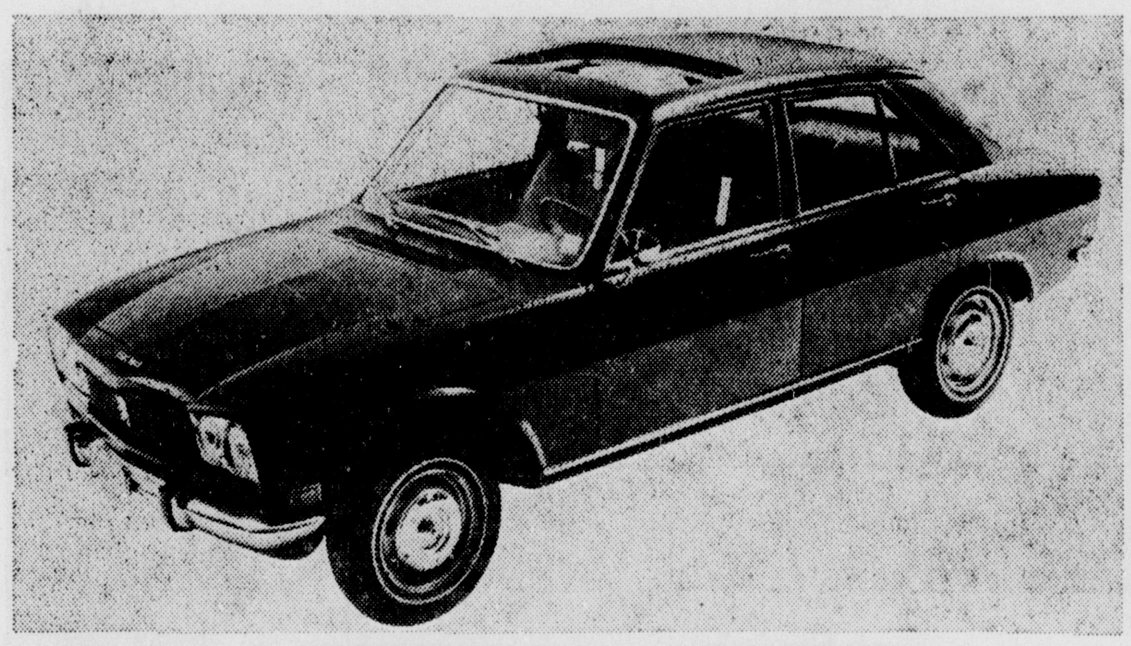
LOWER PRICED CHRYSLER NEWPORT

The Newport Royal has been introduced this year by Chrysler-Plymouth Division. It features a new 360-cubic inch V-8 engine as standard equipment. Formerly a 383-cubic inch V-8 was the smallest engine available in a Chrysler model. Same optional equipment is available as on other Chrysler models.



MORE POWERFUL PEUGEOT

An increased displacement to 120 cubic inches gives the Peugeot 504 a boost to 98 horsepower. Standard features for 1971 are fourwheel independent suspension, power assisted four-wheel disc brakes and sliding sunroof. Automatic transmission, radio and air conditioning are optional equipment.

Women Are Challenging The Males

Another claim to male superiority is on shakey ground.

Results of a nationwide test show that men may not be better drivers than women after all.

In fact the study showed girls reacted slightly better in four simulated traffic emergencies than their male counterparts.

The teenagers, members of driver education classes had to cope with an impending head-on collision, a near sideswipe, brake failure and a tire blowout. Using the Drivotrainer system they sat in small model cars fully equipped like real automobiles. The "drivers" responded to changing traffic conditions seen in full-color, sound films. Shown the Aetna emergency driving film for the first time, the girls grappled with the crises better than the boys in two out of four situations and tied them in a third.

The percentages of correct responses were:

Tire blowout — girls, 26 per cent; boys, 19 per cent. Sideswipe — girls, 17 per cent; boys, 11 per cent. Head-on — girls, 26 per cent; boys, 27 per cent. Brake failure — girls, 57 per cent; boys, 66 per cent.

Although the girls did somewhat better than the boys, neither group scored highly.

Rusty Car Can Bring Value Drop

Not only does the owner of a rusty car lose face among his friends but he also will lose plain dollars and cents. If and when he decides to sell that car, he will get less for it than its Blue Book value.

Rust sets in as the result of exposure to several substances, with salt often being the culprit. In industrial area, chemicals can corrode various car parts too, sometimes more so than salt.

To curtail the rusting of your car, go in for weekly car washes with thoroughness. Drive on dusty, wet, or snow-covered roads and your car better get even more washings than that.

Driving practices indeed have something to do with the formation of rust. Tailgating, a highly dangerous practice for the driver, also does damage to cars. For tailgate and your car can have its bumpers and body scratched by the road gravel and other debris thrown back by the car ahead.

And damaged parts do rust. Any nicks or paint chips on your car, therefore, need to be touched up immediately. Don't wait. To remove rust, use steel wool or sandpaper.

Remember these procedures for guarding against the dirty work of salt and chemicals, for protecting the good appearance of your car. Why lose face or money with a rusty car?

Flex Phenomenon Heats Up Tires

Did you know that tires can get hotter than boiling water?

It's a fact. Water boils at 212 degrees Fahrenheit. Tires that flex rapidly at fast speeds, however, can build up a higher temperature than that, a temperature as high as 250 degrees Fahrenheit.

And what causes such rapid flexing of tires? Underinflation for the loads carried makes tires flex more rapidly.

Keep your tires cool. Maintain the air pressures recommended in your owner's manual and you'll be a safe driver with safe tires.

Visibility of 250 miles is possible in an atmosphere containing only permanent gases and uncondensed vapors, says Encyclopaedia Britannica.

PLYMOUTH'S 1971 COMPACT MODEL

A new vinyl sun roof is being offered on the Plymouth Duster. Manually operated, it slides to the rear where it is stowed atop the roof. The Duster, introduced at the outset of the 1970 model year, is available in two models — the standard two-door coupe and the performance Duster 340 shown here.

PLYMOUTH SUBCOMPACT — Under development since 1966, the Plymouth Cricket has a four-cylinder engine producing 70 horsepower. Standard transmission is a floor-mounted, four-speed manual box. Other features are coil springs and anti-roll bar, power disc brakes and forced air ventilation.

PERFORMANCE CAR

Plymouth's Road Runner is intermediate in size with a standard 383-cubic inch, four-barrel V-8 engine, with 440-cubic inch, six-barrel and 426-cubic inch hemi as optional equipment. Road Runners are equipped with wide oval fiberglass belted tires.

Pact For Suspension Research

Ford Motor Co. has been awarded a federal research contract to investigate the feasibility of magnetic levitation as a suspension system for high-speed ground vehicles.

The feasbibility study could lead to a system of vehicles gliding on a cushion of electromagnetic force at speeds of up to 300 miles per hour. Such vehicles might be propelled along a roadbed by linear-induction motors, jet engines or turbine-driven propeller systems.

The basic theory behind the study is relatively simple: Like magnets repel. By installing powerful electromagnets on the vehicles, currents would be induced in the roadway. These currents would act as an opposing magnetic force, thus providing an invisble but very real cushion of magnetic energy.

Vehicles would be borne along this cushion with little friction. "Levacar" conept of the late 1950's. The Levacar used compressed air to lift it from a smooth surfaceway.

Under the government contract, studies will be conducted at Ford's scientific research laboratories in Dearborn, Mich.

The government also issued a contract for a similar study to the Stanford Research Institute of Palo Alto. The Ford and Stanford teams have agreed to coordinate their program plans to avoid unnecessary duplication of effort and to cooperate in exchanging information with the Canadian Federal Department of Transport, which also is interested in the concept.

If the concept proves workable, it would be particularly attractive for transportation systems running between the hearts of metropolitan centers ranging from 100 to 500 miles apart.

The Correct Way To Fix Flat Tires

Do you know what to do when you have a flat tire, besides swearing?

A great many people don't.

Of course, the first thing to do is to stop as soon as possible — but not without first checking where you are. Try not to pick a roadside spot just below the crest of a hill. Get on the shoulder of the road, out of the line of traffic.

And you might cut out and keep these rules, just in case it does happen to you:

Be sure the parking brake is on, the jack is firm on the ground and the lifting head is positioned on the car in a way so it will not slip. It's good idea to place a brick in front of or behind the tire diagonal to the one with the blowout. (In front, if the flat is a rear tire; behind if the flat is a front tire). That also helps prevent the car from shifting and sliding off the jack.

Loosen the lug nuts before — not after — jacking. That way you won't have to contend with a turning wheel when you take off the lug nuts.

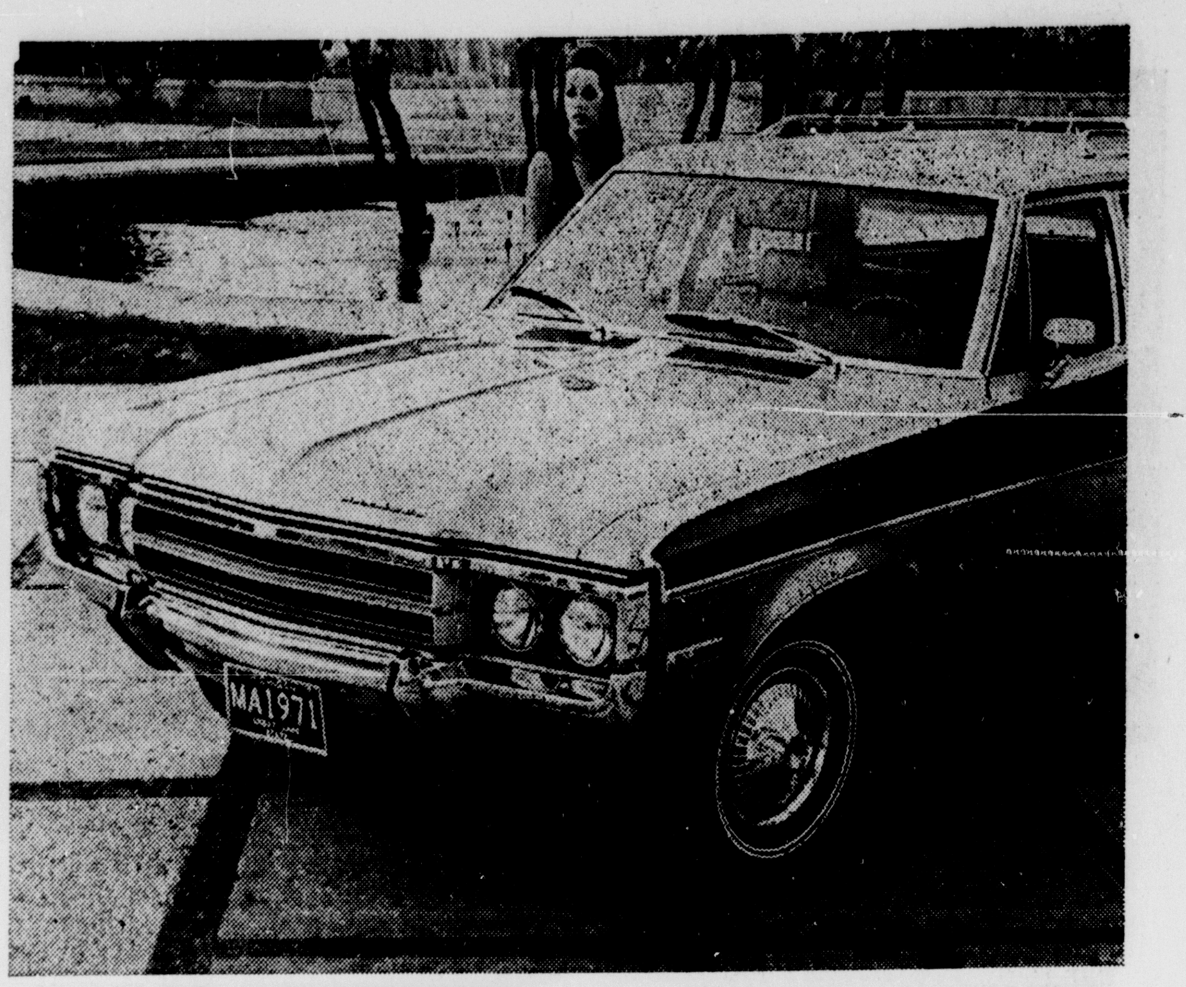
FOUR-PASSENGER JAVELIN

This sporty two-door hardtop by American Motors is slightly longer, compared with the 1970 model, and three inches wider. Sculptured raised fender sections keynote the styling. The windshield is sharply raked and side windows are ventless. High bucket seats are standard.



NEW NAME FOR INTERMEDIATE AMERICAN — The Matador is successor to the Rebel. All models seat six passengers, except bucket seat-equipped hardtops and this station wagon model is available with an optional third seat to provide space for eight persons. In addition to the standard 135-horsepower six engine there are five step-up options.

Air Conditioner Demand Goes Up

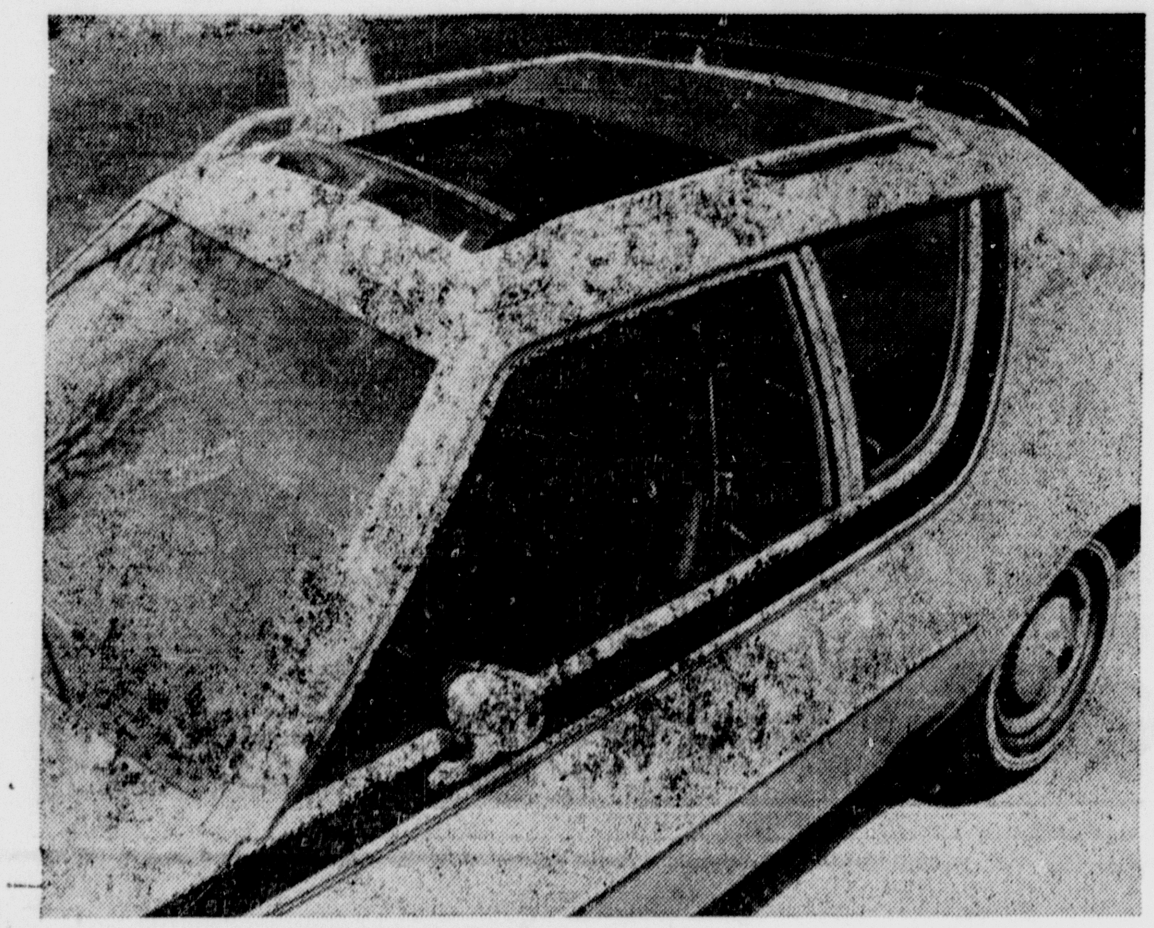
American motorists who keep up with the times have a thing about keeping cool.

Back as recently as 1960 our motoring citizens ordered air conditioning for a small minority of their cars, for less than seven percent.

Last year, however, those orders came flooding in, with Americans requesting air conditioning in more than 55 percent of their cars.

Boating Peril

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—The major cause of boating accidents is the failure of the operator to maintain a forward lookout, a U.S. Coast Guard study has revealed.



SPECIALLY EQUIPPED GREMLIN — A standard manually-operated sliding sun roof is a no-charge feature offered on the Gremlin four-passenger model, giving it a European flair. The sun roof is made of black vinyl with inner metal supporting members and slides rearward on aluminum rails.

Mountains Can Upset Drivers

After driving in mountain country for a little while, a person suddenly might not feel quite up to the whole thing.

That change in altitude often brings on weakness, sleepiness, or dizziness.

If you find yourself suffering from any of these symptoms while driving, better stop at a safe spot and get some rest.

Only resume your driving when you feel more like yourself again.

The Citroen. It's so different it will take courage to buy it.

After you get to know it, it will take courage to buy anything else.

No matter how often guys tell themselves that other people's opinions don't matter, they still do. Unless something happens that's really convincing.

Well we're going to make that happen. Convince you that the Citroen ton for ton and dollar for dollar is the finest, best engineered and safest car in the world.

Just go to a Citroen dealer and drive one in the roughest conditions you can find.

And after that if you can still buy anything but a Citroen, maybe courage will be the wrong word to describe what you'll be doing.

As customers get tougher Ford cars sell better.

Ford LTD, quiet and strong, is the luxury car without the luxury car price.

Ford LTD is the car that can match the luxury of cars costing hundreds of dollars more. And LTD's quiet ride is the standard that those same more expensive cars have to match themselves. That quiet strength is one reason for consumers choosing LTD over all other luxury cars in its class.

Torino is sized and priced right in the middle. Room for six, small car handling.

Consumers know the mid-size Torino gives them the roominess of a big car plus the easy handling of a small car. For a price that's right in the middle. As a result, Torino has become the most popular 4-door in its class. Your Ford Dealer has 13 other models to choose from, including sedans, wagons and hardtops.

Maverick, the simple compact car, offers 2 doors or 4; 6 or V-8 power.

Take Maverick. Consumers know that the simple machine is simple to own, simple to run, simple to keep. And they learned recently that a leading independent survey found Maverick has the best frequency of repair record of any American car. That might explain why it's America's best-selling compact.

Set A Good Example When Teaching A Teen To Drive

Sitting in your comfortable easy chair, you put down the newspaper as your teen-ager approaches you with that pleading but determined look. You half suspect what's up. Soon come the words that put butterflies in the stomach of many a parent.

"Let me learn to drive."

With all his outbursts and coaxing that follow, you finally consent, but not without reservations.

After all, unmarried youth under the age of 25 continues to be the most potentially dangerous person on the road today.

Still you're not without the means to raise him to be a careful driver. Hopefully you already started this long ago in preparation for his first day behind the wheel.

Time and again you've probably heard that parents have the greatest single influence on their children when it comes to driver development, good or bad. This is true.

While riding with parents, even young people not of age to drive often watch them like hawks. Actually driving habits begin to form unconsciously in children as early as their preschool days.

So, if you always exercise proper control of your driving, chances are your teen-ager will too. If unfortunately you don't, it's not too late to change.

All this boils down to your setting a good example. Observe all traffic laws so that your teen-ager won't throw something like this at you: "You don't always signal your intentions." Or, "You don't always come to a full stop at stop signs." And almost in the same breath he'll arrogantly ask why he should.

In the matter of your teenager's first chance to take the car out alone, don't allow it until you're sure he can handle the car in all traffic and weather conditions.

Okay. You think he's ready to go his own way on the road. About all you can do now is hope that you taught him everything he needs to know about safe driving.

In the event you get some feedback that he's pulling reckless stunts, you should restrict his driving privileges. Once he cuts out that nonsense, you can take off those restrictions

FAT CARS DIE YOUNG!

Burdened with tons of chrome and useless sheet metal, some cars collapse under the strain at a tender age.

But Volvos live to ripe old ages. Because Volvos are unfettered by fat.

They're trim. Yet they're designed to make good use of the space they take up.

That's why a Volvo's trunk holds more than a Lincoln's. And why a Volvo has more leg room in front than a Cadillac and more in the rear than a Buick.

So take a look at our Volvos. Driving a long-lasting, lean car can help put the fat where it belongs. In your bank account.

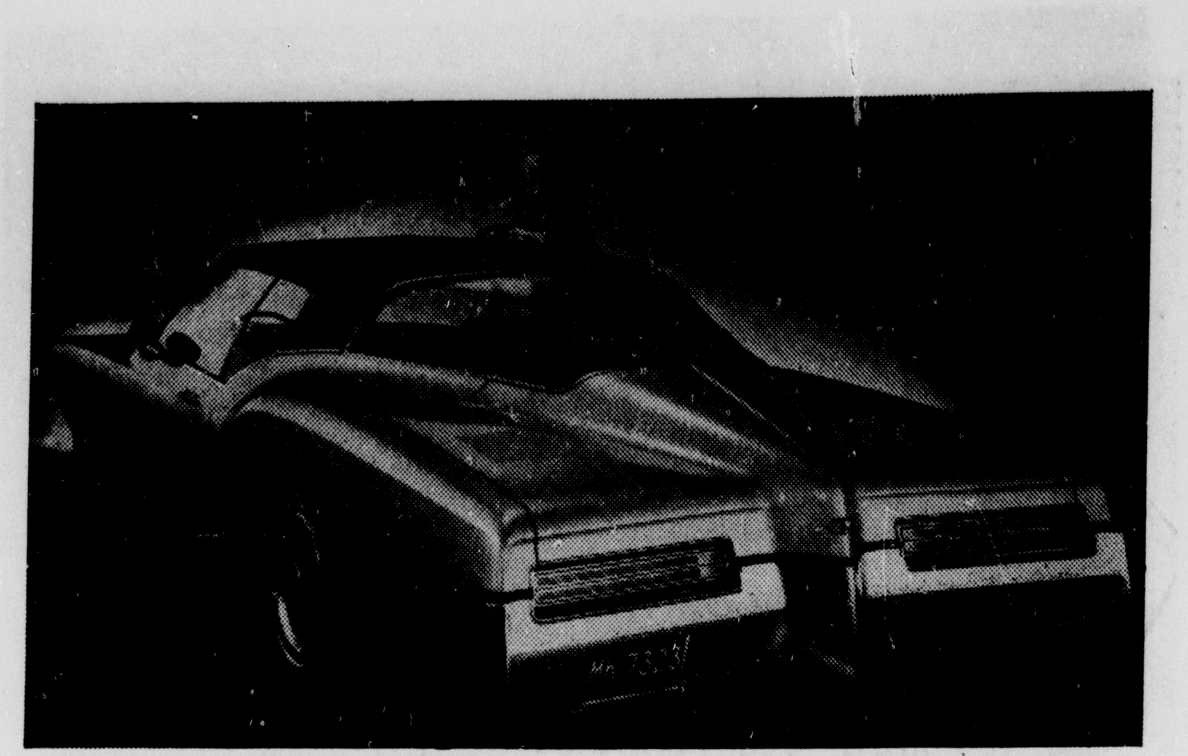
Like all regular Buick models, the Centurion has curved glas windows and cantilever roof styling. Power is delivered by a 455-cubic inch engine. Variable ratio power steering and power brakes with front discs are standard.



DRAMATIC REAR DESIGN - Buick's Riviera sport coupe for 1971 has a unique rear window treatment. New body has larger interior dimensions and 35 per cent more trunk space. Continued Truck Boom? It's Stylish

It's stylish to drive a truck.

That, at least, is one explanation for the continued boom in truck sales, particularly of weight vehicles. Truck sales are booming even more than auto sales.

But not all trucks are sharing the boom. Medium weight trucks have been losing popularity for years. Lightweight trucks are those with gross vehicle weight ratings of 10,000 pounds or less.

What's the reason?

In some suburban and exurban families, the pick-up truck or utility vehicle has become the second car. It's more convenient for hauling materials, such as new shrubbery or picnic gear, than any other type of vehicle.

There also seems to be a social status aura about it. Almost certainly a family with a pick-up truck is a two or more vehicle family, and driving the truck to the railroad station or even to church is one way they can advertise that fact.

Another force behind the spurt in light truck sales is the tendency for many skilled craftsmen — plumbers, carpenters, roofers and the like — to use the truck as their office.

In urban areas these skilled craftsmen work out of their shops. But with the growth of the suburbs the craftsmen forsake shops and are reachable at their homes. They don't need a shop because they keep all their tools and other equipment in their truck — an office on wheels.

Also stimulating sales of weight trucks is the surge in outdoor recreation and camping. Three-quarter-ton pick-up trucks (6,001 to 10,000 pounds) become a part of the "camper" type recreational vehicle.

The pickup trucks are used for daily shuffling around town during the week. Comes the week-end, and the camper is mounted on the truck and becomes the family's rolling home as they go exploring the great outdoors.

Car Engine Study

HANOVER, N.H. (UPI)—Dr. David V. Ragone, dean of the Thayer School of Engineering at Dartmouth College, has been named chairman of the Advisory Committee on Advanced Automotive Power Systems. Russell E. Train, chairman of the President's Council on Environmental Quality, said the panel will be responsible for evaluating and advising the council on the status of various advanced power systems which could serve as alternatives for internal combustion engines.

VW Buyers Like Brighter Colors

Light and bright colors are the choice of Volkswagen Super Beetle buyers this year with nearly 25 percent of them asking for yellow cars, according to a survey conducted by Volkswagen of America.

This is the second year in a row that yellow has taken first place in buyer popularity. Three years ago the favorite was light blue.

In second place on VW's 1971 color card is the tangerine-like Clementine, the choice of 17 per cent of all Super Beetle buyers through February.

1971 Pinto 2-Door Sedan

Pinto Ford's little Pinto is priced small. But it's big on value and performance. Pinto averaged over 25 mpg in simulated city/suburban driving.

Pinto calls for only half as many oil changes as VW. One-sixth as many chassis lubes. Has self-adjusting brakes.

It has more overall room inside than VW and is only an inch longer outside. Pinto has high back, front bucket seats and a fully synchronized four-speed floor shift. Pinto also has a 75-hp engine so you can merge easily into high-speed traffic.

And Pinto's wide stance and low silhouette are designed for better stability—even in gusty winds. It has rack-and-pinion steering (like expensive sports cars) for precision handling.

Pinto. It's at your Ford Dealer's now. Along with the brand-new 3-Door Pinto Runabout with the 5-foot trunk.

*$1919 is Ford's suggested price for the base 2-Door Pinto. However, the car shown is equipped with white sidewall tires $29, and accent option $60. Destination charges $99. Dealer preparation charges (if any), state and local taxes are extra.

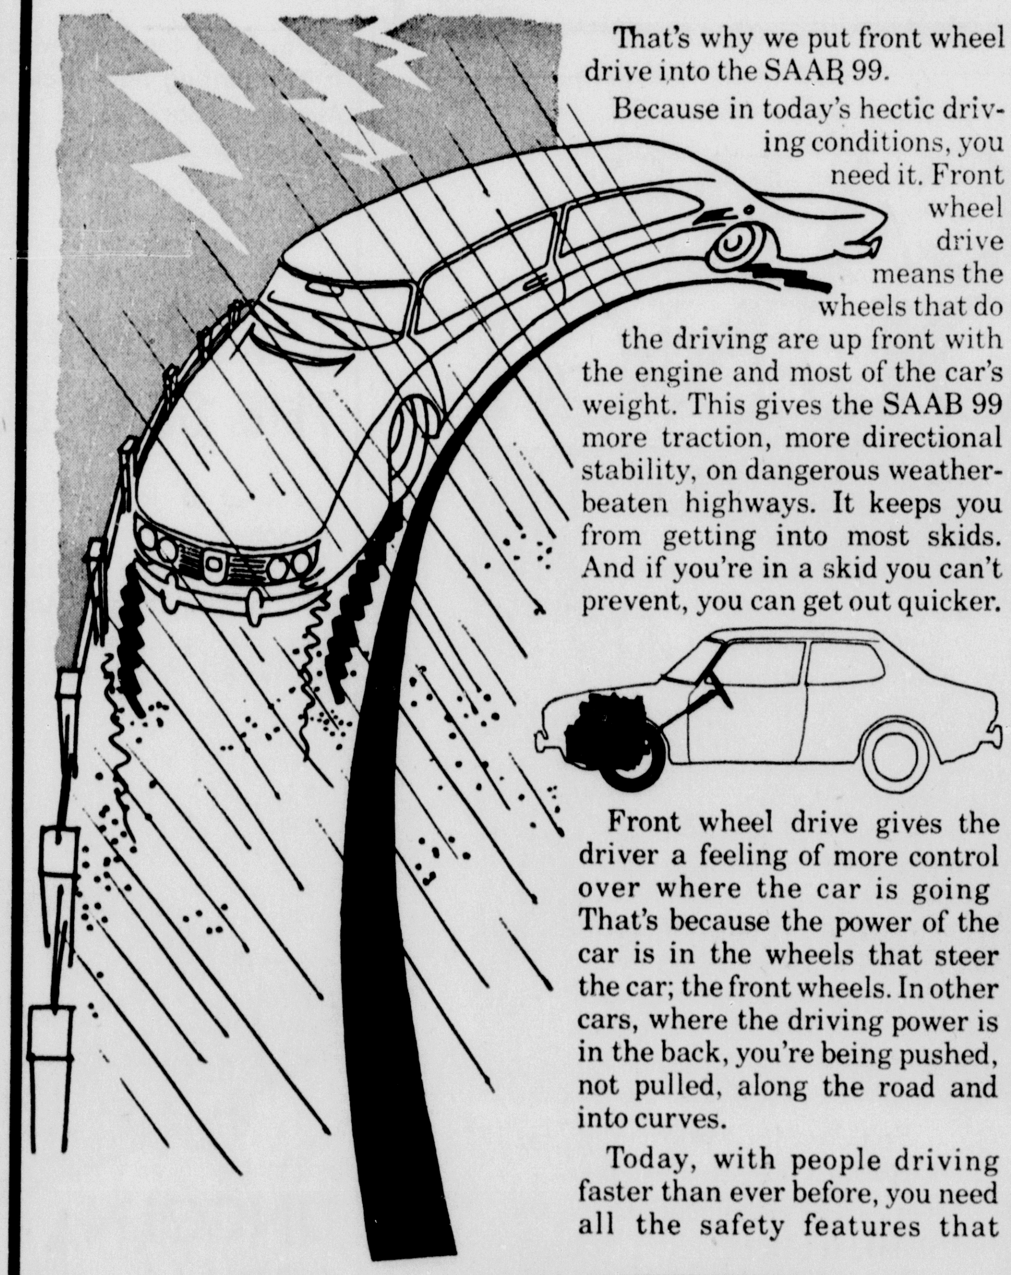
Today, if your car doesn't pull you out of a curve, you may have to be towed out.



That's why we put front wheel drive into the SAAB 99.

Because in today's hectic driving conditions, you need it. Front wheel drive means the wheels that do the driving are up front with the engine and most of the car's weight. This gives the SAAB 99 more traction, more directional stability, on dangerous weather-beaten highways. It keeps you from getting into most skids. And if you're in a skid you can't prevent, you can get out quicker.

Front wheel drive gives the driver a feeling of more control over where the car is going That's because the power of the car is in the wheels that steer the car; the front wheels. In other cars, where the driving power is in the back, you're being pushed, not pulled, along the road and into curves.

Today, with people driving faster than ever before, you need all the safety features that SAAB has put into the 99.

. Take our wide-track. It's the widest of any small car. It keeps the 99 on an even keel, hugging the road tightly.

And before we put the 99 out to face wind-swept roads, we tested it in a wind tunnel. The result is an aerodynamically designed car that's built to stay stable in the gusts that sweep across open highways. It also means that the 99 is quieter than other cars, because there isn't that noise you get when you're constantly fighting the wind.

And the 99 is available with fuel injection, automatic transmission, and in either a two door or four door model.

When we built the SAAB 99 we built a car for today's driving conditions. For driving on wet roads, bad roads or super fast highways. SAAB 99 is a car built to pull you out of danger spots, instead of pushing you into them.

LATEST IN TRIUMPH'S SPITFIRE LINE

The 1971 Mark IV Spitfire is Triumph's lowest priced sports car and one of its most popular models. It boasts an extensively restyled interior as well as several chassis and engine modifications which improve performance, comfort and handling.

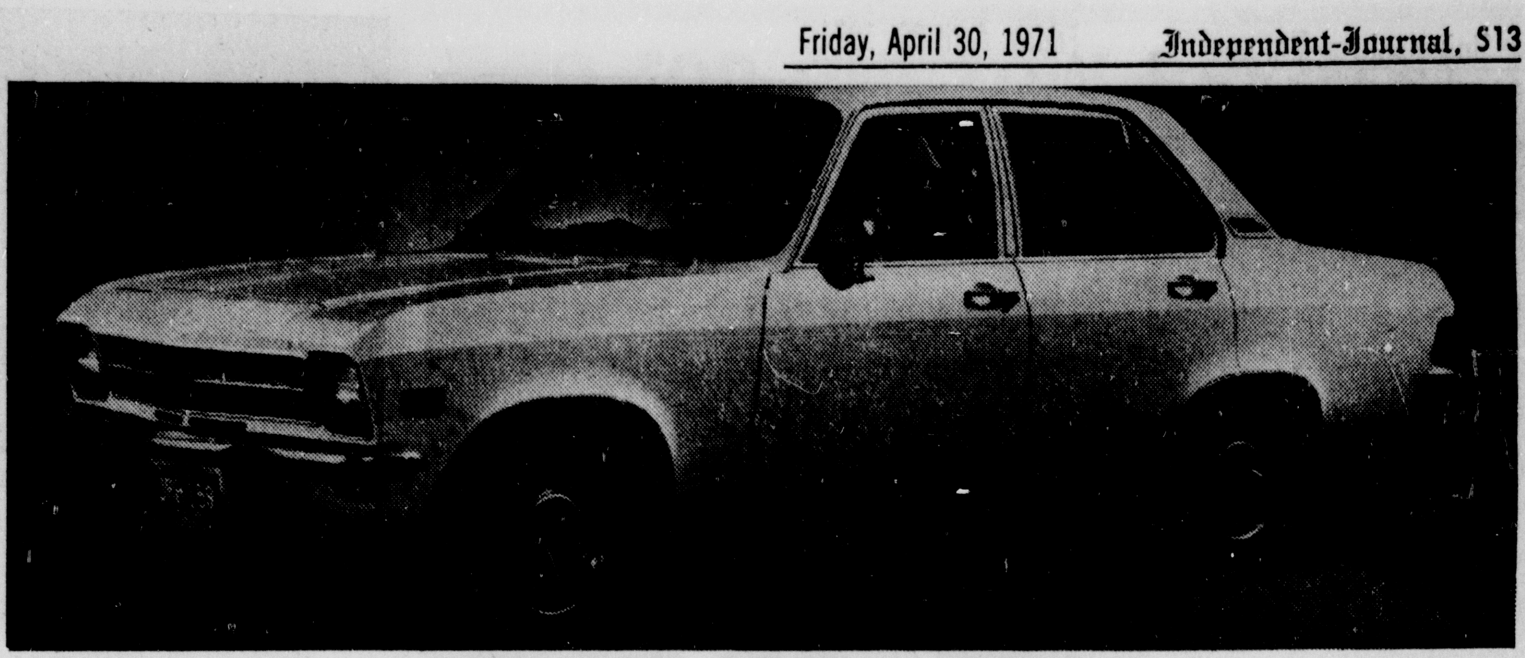
The Use Of Safety Studs

Safety tire studs should never be installed in worn tires, even if their use has been minimal, because the holes molded into the tires to accept studs will quickly collect particles of dirt.

If studs are installed over these dirt particles, they could push them through the casing and ruin the tire.

Winter tires and tire studs have been improved over the past years so that it is not likely that one would lose the studs out of his tires. Replacement of lost studs, which was done occasionally years ago, is no longer necessary.

Venezuela is the largest oil producer in South America.

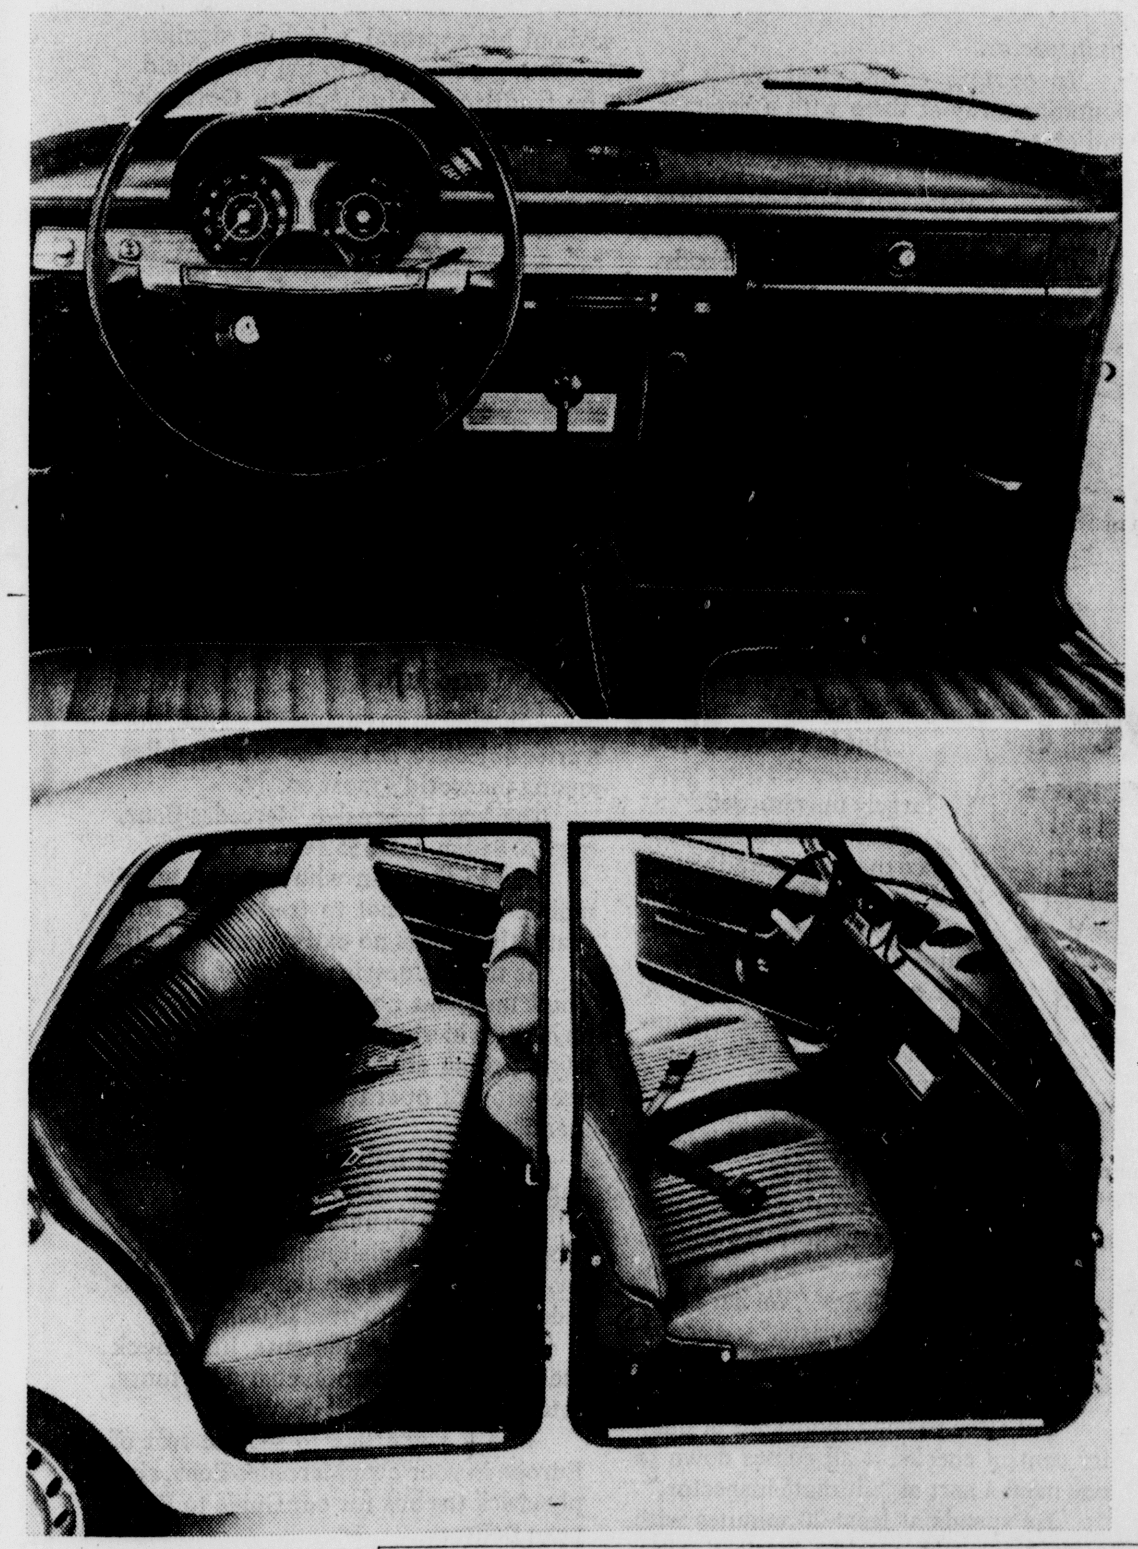


NEWEST OPEL MODEL

This four-door version of the Opel 1900 is being introduced this spring. The 1900 series, which made its appearance this year, features longer looking hood, wider treads and power brakes with front discs as standard equipment.

VOLVO'S NEW SPORT SEDAN

The 142-E two-door sedan added to the Volvo line this year has an electronically controlled engine that generates 130 horsepower. Four-speed transmission is all synchronized and comes equipped with an electrically operated overdrive.



FIAT STYLING Passenger compartments in the new Fiat 124-S sedan are carpeted. A center console is suitable for radio, stereo or air conditioning. There is a locking glove box and two molded compartments on the firewalls. Front seats have reclining backs and adjustable head rests.

Tie Rod Comes In For Damage

What vehicle parts get damaged most frequently in various types of collisions?

Of the parts in the steering system the tie rod proves to be the one most likely to take a treal beating during a collision.

When it comes to the suspension of the car involved in a serious accident, both front-wheel and rear-wheel alignment frequently go out of whack.

Among the visual aids, damage to the windshields and side windows can be counted on more often than not.

In the propulsion of the car, fan cad clutch, radiator, engine mounts, and transmission linkage all bear checking for damage after a collision.

TREAD WEAR EXPECTANCY

Because of variable driving habits and road conditions under which tires are used, it is impractical for Montgomery Ward, and conceivably misleading to our customers, to guarantee any specific number of months or miles of tread wear. We can, however, indicate the wear potential we have built into our tires in terms of service in normal family use. If a Riverside tire wears down to the tread wear indicators during the Tread Wear Expectancy, Montgomery Ward will upon presentation of the tire and evidence of date of purchase replace the tire for the then current regular price less the following dollar allowance:

Rules For Driving In The Rain

No matter what day or what hour the rain comes, the average driver realizes that it brings with it increased driving hazards.

Driving in the rain need not be so bad if you know the meaning of caution, the safe driver's guiding light. The following are the ways in which you should exercise that caution:

Rule number one concerns speed. By all means, slow down. Don't risk skidding, among other things.

Get the "feel" of the road, another important rule. To do so, brake gently and experimentally.

Consider the ill effects of rain.

Drive Slowly Into Curves For Safety

Don't gamble on the curves.

Since it is easy to underestimate both your speed and the sharpness of a curve ahead, you should approach all highway curves with caution. It is much wiser to enter a curve at a low rate of speed and then accelerate while rounding it than to enter at a high rate of speed and have to brake while rounding the curve. Excessive speed on a curve will put your car in the relentless grip of centrifugal force, throw it out of control, and drag it from the road. Excessive speed on a curve can all too easily end in disaster.

Bicycle Riders Also Need To Obey Rules

Obeying the rules of the road is not a policy only for car drivers. To remain safe, bike riders also must have such rules clearly in mind and follow them to the best of their ability.

Rule number one stresses respect for the law. You bicyclists as well as motorists should try to obey all traffic signs and signals without exception. You have no right to decide which ones you want to obey and which ones you want to disobey. Every sign and signal on the road demands your obedience.

The authorities devised such signs not to place an added burden on you but to protect you against those many road dangers.

Always stop on "red" and go on "green." Never attempt to beat the lights. And so keep your eyes peeled for signs designating one-way streets. If you ride down a one-way street the wrong way, you might crash into a big car or truck, with your little bike being no match for either one. And you might really get yourself "wiped out."

For the very reckless driver, the chances of avoiding a serious accident are mighty slim. And your chances won't be much better if you perform some reckless stunts on your bike. Don't speed or weave from lane to lane. Don't be selfish. Be courteous. As for the other maneuvers, keep to the right, and whenever you're near parked cars keep that safe distance. Make turns from the proper lane. And always be careful.

Summer's On The Way So Watch Out For Damage

Long, hot summer drives can do anything but wonders for your car.

One of their major threats to your car and to your pocketbook, that of overheating the engine, can damage delicate engine parts. Resulting repairs did others out of a pretty penny. They can do the same to you.

It pays to remember that a car's engine develops enough heat to keep a house warm in winter. So it's logical that many causes of overheating exist, causes that can't be eliminated by just pouring fresh water in the radiator.

That radiator itself can leak. It can leak from any part that has rusted through. And any radiator with a leaking pet cock that won't shut off is considered damaged and requires replacement.

Another possible cause of overheating: A loose fan belt will slip. A slipping fan belt prevents the pump from circulating coolant.

How about a defective thermostat? If it releases hot water at all, it still won't release it to the radiator soon enough.

Not the least of a driver's worries, a faulty water pump can be detected by leaks around the shaft. A churning noise clues you in too.

Find the above causes bad enough? Many others come into play, too, others such as a clogged radiator core, damaged radiator cap, or loose head gasket. But the worst in any driver's book is the cracked cylinder head or block.

As soon as the overheating problem hits, take your car to an able mechanic.

Repair Costs Hike Insurance

The continuing upward trend in the cost and frequency of automobile repairs can be expected to exert strong upward pressure on the barometer of auto insurance prices, according to the Insurance Information Institute.

The institute said it appeared unavoidable that insurance rates would be forced to react sensitively to such factors as the increasing number of highway accidents, soaring repair costs and the reluctance of auto manufacturers to produce new cars less vulnerable to damage in low-speed crashes than their predecessors.

While deaths and injuries declined slightly in 1970, the number of accidents rose to more than 22 million — an increase of almost 100,000 over the previous year. Meanwhile, a national survey of auto insurance adjusters and repair garages shows that the average hourly labor rate increased from $5.10 in 1965 to slightly more than $8 in 1970, a 56-per cent jump.

Skipping Meals On Road Can Be Costly

Skipping meals might be one way of making up for lost time on the road. It's just as foolhardy, however, as all the other ways.

Through this practice you're only risking the fatigue and drowsiness that can be brought on by low blood sugar. Have regular meals along the way, but make them light and of easily digested foods.

Road and Track Magazine (May 1968) says:

"The BMW 1600 and 2002 are the best sedan buys in the world."

Next to BMW owners themselves, professional critics are the most enthusiastic endorsers of BMW performance. You'll understand why five minutes after you're behind a BMW wheel. Come in for a test drive today.

BAVARIAN MOTOR WORKS

Most automobile makers would like you to visit the showroom.

Mercedes-Benz would rather you visit the factory.

Almost any automobile can be made to look good in the showroom.

Sloppy workmanship and production shortcuts are easily glossed over amid a barrage of adjectives and the glitter of neon lights.

But you can't hide anything in the factory. It's as revealing as inspecting the kitchen of a restaurant.

That's why, at Mercedes-Benz, we wish everyone could visit our factory before they visit our showroom.

Here are some of the things you'd discover.

Some quaint notions

The work areas are clean and bright. The atmosphere orderly and unhurried. More like an Old World Guild Shop than a typical automobile factory. While some brag about assembly lines that build 100 cars an hour, we boast of building 30. We take six weeks to craft our 600 model.

And we have some refreshingly quaint notions about how automobiles should be built.

In our upholstery shop, over 100 former dressmakers cut, stitch and tailor each interior with the care that goes into a designer's original.

A luxury to some makers. A necessity to Mercedes-Benz.

Five layers of material, an inch of rubberized padding and 16 man-hours go into every convertible top. That's longer than it takes most manufacturers to assemble an entire convertible.

Over 100 former dressmakers now live in Sindelfingen, West Germany. They work in our upholstery shop.

Expensive? Of course. But the top of a Mercedes-Benz convertible will never billow or flutter. And it muffles road noise better than most hardtops.

Cabinetmakers, not chemists

We have still another old-fashioned idea. It concerns the wood trim that goes into our automobiles. We think it should come from a tree. Not a plastic mold.

So instead of chemists we have cabinetmakers.

They take hours to select and match grains; highlight and accent the wood's character with artist's brushes and stain, protect its beauty with five coats of varnish; then polish it with oil and pumice. When time permits they use their cabinetmaking skills to build furniture for our executive offices.

Minutes, not seconds

Even the assembly lines reflect this pace. Cars crawl along while workers spend minutes, not seconds, on their specialty. You'd find craftsmen filling, grinding, and smoothing a single roof seam for 15 minutes or more. Solidifying the body into a single rattle-thwarting unit with 8,000 to 10,000 welds. And patiently fitting doors, hoods and trunk lids to a tolerance that cannot vary more than one millimeter.

A blow to time and motion experts. But a boon to some appreciative owner.

If it might rust, paint it

You can't fully appreciate the 44 pounds of rust protection we apply to every car until you've exposed your Mercedes-Benz to the slush and salt of several winters.

But in our factory you could begin to understand why it will resist the ravages of corrosion.

You'd see workers swabbing zinc oxide paint on the back side of body panels before they are welded airtight.

Gauze mittens protect inspectors' hands from calluses that might impair their uncanny touch.

Spraying the underside with a resilient armor that actually "heals" itself when struck with a stone.

Hand painting the front of the car with an extra coat of specially formulated enamel designed to shrug off gravel.

Even the insides of the bumpers get a protective coat of paint.

The ear rejects 1 in 10

Wending your way through the factory, you'd notice a curious mix in our labor force. One of every ten workers is an inspector.

Inspectors check vital welds by pounding away at them with a hammer and chisel. A skill so demanding they're sent back to school twice each year.

Inspectors with white gauze mittens painstakingly feel every inch of the unfinished body. Because the hand is better than the eye in detecting minute burrs and ripples.

And after inspectors subject rear axles to 55 mechanical and electronic checks, some to tolerances as fine as 8/10,000 of an inch, one in ten is rejected by an amazing device called the human ear.

"A small basket for waste"

But in checking disc brakes, our distrust goes largely unrewarded.

The machines that produce the discs are adjusted after every 40 pieces. An electronic inspector measures five critical dimensions on every disc they make. A production supervisor manually re-checks the dimensions on every fifth one. And a quality controller must personally take every disc from the end of the line.

Yet after all this, only one disc in a thousand fails to meet our exacting standards. As an experienced controller once told a visitor, "We have only a very small basket for waste."

One man decides

But after passing thousands of quality control checks, it all comes down to one man. A sort of "ultimate inspector."

He spends at least 20 minutes with each car as the world's fussiest critic. Feeling, checking and testing anything he suspects. No car can leave the factory without his approval, which he signifies by affixing a signature to the windshield. The traditional signature of Gottlieb Daimler. Only then is it ready for your approval in the showroom.

The mark of final approval is the same as it was in 1886. The signature of Gottlieb Daimler.

$5,000 and up.

Adhering to an engineering ideal, not a price objective, has put our automobiles among the world's most costly.

The least expensive Mercedes-Benz, our 220 Sedan, costs $5,445†.

But to the man who buys an automobile to keep, not to trade every few years, this seems no extravagance at all.

As the engineering editor of Road & Track magazine noted in a recent article on his own Mercedes-Benz, "The most satisfying thing about the car is its great precision of operation and quality of manufacture.

"At 35,000 miles...the car is more impressive than when new."

If you are planning to visit Europe this year, plan to visit our factory. To see, for yourself, why even the lowliest Mercedes-Benz is worth over $5,000.

To make arrangements, just check the coupon. Our man in charge of tours, Peter Grassl, will send details.

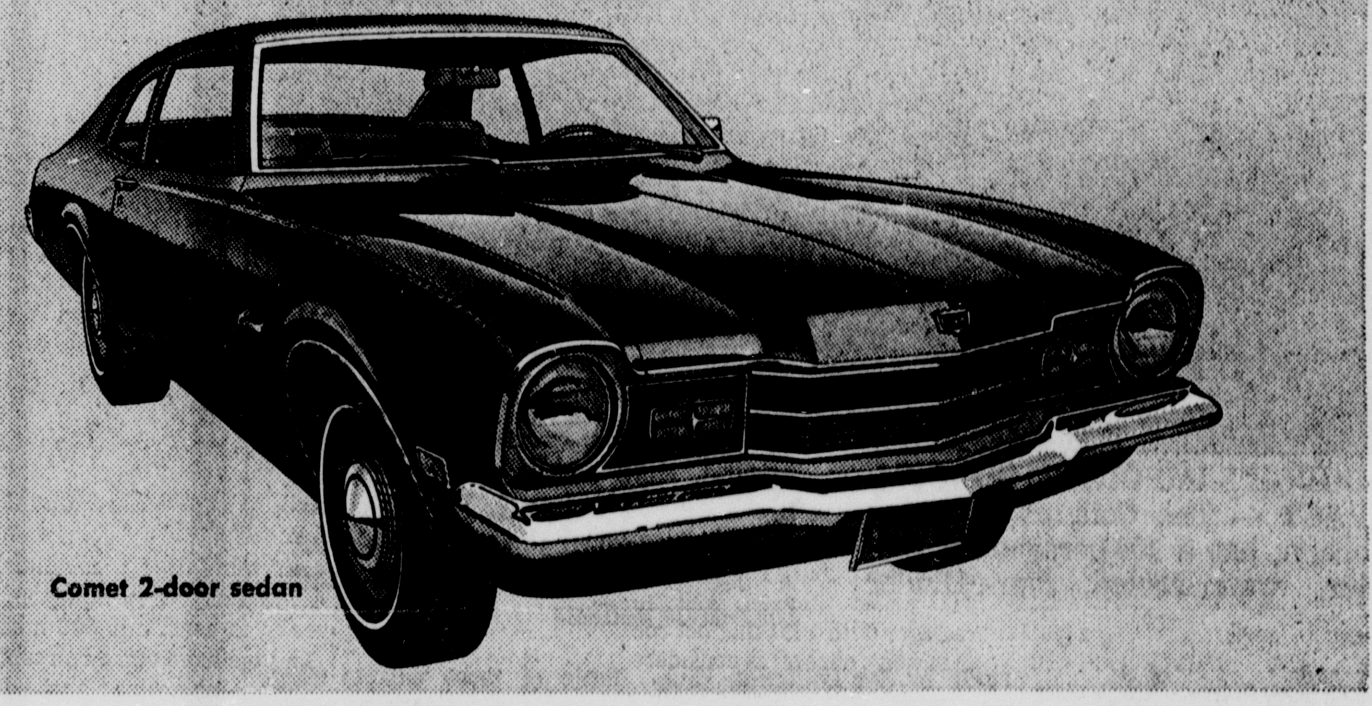
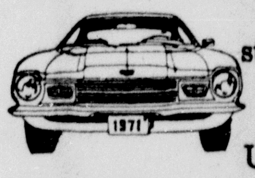
Mercury Comet puts in 3 important things the other small cars leave out.



Comet 2-door sedan

1. A gutsy, "expensive" look plus luxuries you don't pay extra for.



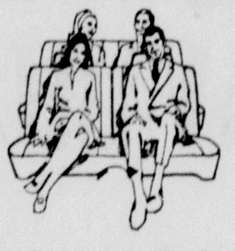
We thought you'd like styling to wink at, not wince at. Nice lines, smooth, solid looking, sculptured.

Unlike "stripped" small cars, Comet offers many luxuries. At no extra charge:

100% nylon carpeting both front and rear. Wheel lip moldings. Deluxe steering wheel.

Plus a cigarette lighter. Rear armrests and ashtray. Foam-padded front seat cushion. Lighted front ashtray. Dual body paint stripes.

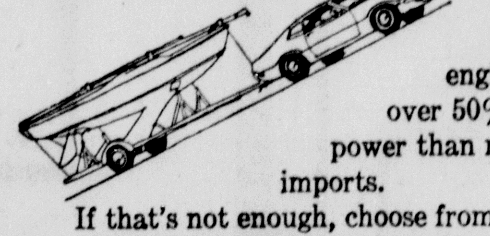
2. Real room for 4 adults—not just 3½.



Front hip room and shoulder room are much greater than in most other small cars.

In fact, Comet's front head room and leg room are within a fraction of an inch of big cars like Chrysler Imperial, Dodge Charger and Chrysler Newport.

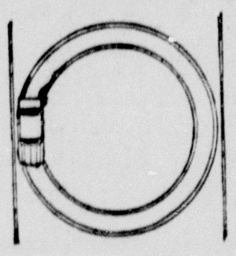
3. Zippy "6" or V-8 performance—100 to 210 horsepower.



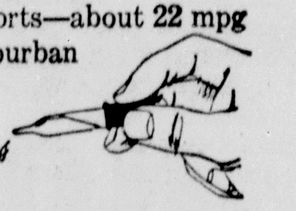
Comet's standard engine has over 50% greater power than many small imports.

If that's not enough, choose from 2 optional "sixes." 115 and 145 hp. Or a 210 hp. V-8. And some V-8 it is. Gets you up to turnpike speeds quickly. Let's you haul a fair-sized trailer.

And Comet gives you everything you buy a small car for: Easy handling. Gas economy. Low prices.



Turning diameter is only 36.9 feet, making Comet just as deft in a parking lot as it is on the highway.



Gas mileage rivals imports—about 22 mpg based on simulated city/suburban driving tests with standard engine.

And Comet is such a simple, easy-to-fix, money-saving machine, we even offer a Do-It-Yourself Manual.

And look at these low prices. Remember these are manufacturer's suggested retail prices. Why not see what your Mercury dealer suggests.

	Manufacturer's Suggested Retail Prices*	Mercury Dealer Prices
Comet 2-door sedan	$2217.00	....
Comet 4-door sedan	2276.00	....
Comet GT	2395.80	....

FIFTY YEARS MAKE A DIFFERENCE

In 1921 Dodge offered a commercial car with a choice of three wooden bodies — express, stake and business car. Today the "commercial car" is a truck. The "express" (top) is a pickup (bottom). The stake body is reserved for larger units and the "business car" has become a van.

DODGE'S IMPORTED SUBCOMPACT — The Colt, of Japanese origin, has a 100-horsepower motor, water-cooled four-cylinder engine, disc brakes and adjustable steering column. Besides this four-door sedan it is available as a coupe, two-door hardtop and four-door sedan.

Defects Vs. Fatalities

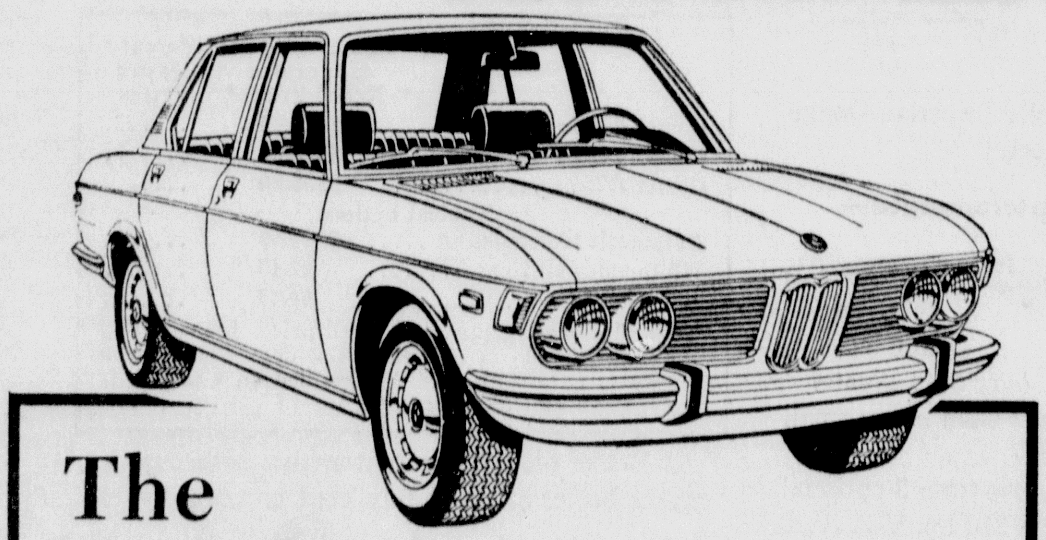
If you have been ignoring an annoying "cluck-cluck-cluck" from the front of your car or delaying replacement of a bald tire, you should know about a study by the California Highway Patrol which reveals the extent of relationship between mechanical defects and highway fatalities.

In a detailed study of 409 fatal single vehicle accidents, 29 per cent of the vehicles involved had one or more mechanical defects. Two out of three of these defects either caused the accident or contrubuted to it.

In 6.4 per cent of the accidents investigated, a mechanical deficiency was directly responsible.

The two year study discloses 172 faulty mechanical systems in 119 vehicles.

"See the HOT CAR" FROM BAVARIA



The Wundercar

Automotively speaking you are looking at the wonder of the age. The new BMW Bavaria. Take the way it goes. Up to 130 mph. (Cruises at 120 all day long.) That's because its engine is built around the most efficient combustion system ever designed. Take the way it holds the road. Like you'd hold a beautiful girl. Tight. That's because of a remarkable suspension system that features MacPherson struts up front, semi-trailing arms in back, with BMW's unique multi-jointed rear axle.

Small wonder Ken Purdy says, in Playboy Magazine, that BMW may be the best car in the world.
